HELP WANTED—Male.

SALESMEN.

On Jan. 3 we announced in the leading New York papers the start of our Sales Campaign—a Campaign that is destined to write a chapter in the History of Selling which will be read throughout the national selling fraternity.

We have secured through our initial advertising a large body of as high type salesmen as can be found in any selling organization in this city. The "reaction" of these men to our proposition was as INSTANTANEOUS as it was FAVORABLE. The enthusiasm of these men and the steadily increasing business they are daily bringing in is sufficient evidence of their sincere belief, that this is the type of proposition that comes to every man—ONCE.

the new dry cleaner, which as it cleans renders articles to which it is applied MOISTURE-PROOF.

Backed by a national advertising campaign, the start of which will shortly appear in the New York papers, every department store, drug store, hardware store, mail order house, &c., is a prospective dealer and EVERY man or woman a prospective purchaser.

If you feel you have the POTENTIAL ability and only need the RIGHT PROPOSITION to bring it out—and if you are willing to WORK—we offer you:

1. An opportunity to make from $5,000 to $20,000 in commissions this year;
2. To those who "make good" a permanent connection such as would take ten to fifteen years to secure with the average proposition;
3. An association with some of the best-known business men in New York City;
4. The right kind of CO-OPERATION—including REAL "leads"—that are bringing in the orders.

The men occupying the BIG positions in any successful enterprise today are the men who joined that enterprise in its infancy and helped put it in the position it occupies today.

If you have VISION, if you recognize OPPORTUNITY, if you have RED BLOOD in your veins, we want YOU and you want US.

CALL MONDAY ONLY, BEFORE 3 P. M.

KNOW
That no one living can defeat Nature's Laws.

That without reliability no high degree of material reward can be won.
That responsibilities gravitate to the man who can shoulder them and power flows to the man who knows how.
Men of this type are always in demand, whether the office boy or the highest paid executive.
We have opportunities in practically every line of endeavor in all grades, from lowest to highest.

IMPORTED BUTTER TO LOWER PRICES

More Than 4,500,000 Pounds Arrive From Denmark and New Zealand.

MORE EGGS FROM ORIENT

Cause a Drop in the Local Market—Food Prices Less Than a Year Ago.

The arrival here last week of more than 4,500,000 pounds of butter from Denmark and New Zealand will have the effect of bringing down the price of butter on this market this week, in the opinion of Herschel H. Jones, Director of the New York office of the State Division of Foods and Markets. The receipts of butter from abroad last week were more than double the receipts of the week before and far in excess of the usual weekly receipts at this time of year.

The heavy receipts had little effect on the wholesale market last week, however, the prices on the Mercantile Exchange dropping only one or two cents. The arrivals from Denmark totaled 2,114,920 pounds and from New Zealand 2,400,000 pounds. The butter from Denmark, which is of high quality, is shipped in large casks weighing about 112 pounds, and the New Zealand butter comes in 56-pound boxes.

The egg market dropped a total of 11 cents during the week because of importations from China and Japan. Another shipment of Chinese eggs arrived yesterday, making a total for the week of 10,288 cases, or 311,640 dozen received from that country. The Chinese eggs sold at wholesale at from 55 to 60 cents a dozen, according to quality. Western eggs of best quality went down to 67 and 68 cents, wholesale, and even storage eggs dropped 5 cents Friday.

Comparison of Prices.

The following comparison of prices at which perishables sold in the wholesale markets on Jan. 21, this year, and on the corresponding date of last year shows that all commodities are now lower:

	1921.	1920.
Bld'win apples, gr. A, per bbl	$4.00@$5.50	$5.50@ $8.50
Cabbage, Dan. s'd, per ton	10.00	100.00@125.00
P'toes, upstate, No. 1, per 180 lb. bbl.	3.00@ 3.50	7.50@ 8.00
Live poultry, hv'y, per lb.	.36@ .37	.38@ .40
Calves, fancy, per lb.	.22@ .23	.32@ .34
Bulls, per lb.	.04@ .07¼	.05@ .09¾
Sheep, per lb.	.02½@ .06¼	.05@ .11
Butter, cr'm., per lb.	.51@ .52	.64½@ .66
Eggs, State hen., per doz.	.72@ .73	.84@ .85

"Trading in the wholesale markets for fruits and vegetables was rather dull during the week," according to the weekly review of the State Division of Foods and Markets. "In many cases the farmers who shipped vegetables to this market didn't realize more than enough from them to pay the freight.

"Cabbage receipts from up-State for the week amounted to about thirty-seven carloads. White Danish seed cabbage that a year ago brought $100 to $125 per ton was freely offered during the week at $10 a ton.

"Two hundred and fourteen carloads of apples from New York State and nearby sections were received during the week, and there was a good demand for them. Wholesale dealers report active demand in the city for soft apples of poorer grades for the purpose of making cider.

"On Friday A grade 2½-inch Baldwins sold for $4 to $5.50 a barrel; some extra fancy fruit brought $6.50 a barrel.

Apples in Cold Storage.

"The State Department of Markets reports the cold storage holdings of apples throughout the United States up to Jan. 1, 1921, were 3,955,799 barrels and 7,285,088 boxes, compared with 2,692,731 barrels and 8,508,070 boxes on Jan. 1 a year ago and with 2,581,949 barrels and 5,136,726 boxes on Jan. 1, 1919."

A comparison of retail prices prevailing at one of the large market places last week and for the corresponding period last year and the year before, furnished by Mrs. Louis Reed Welzmiller, Deputy Commissioner of Public Markets, shows that nearly all meat products are lower now than for the last two years.

The Federal Bureau of Markets reported yesterday that trading in meats, both on the wholesale and retail markets, last week had been very dull. Trading was almost at a standstill Friday. The price of steers declined 1 cent a pound during the week, selling around 16 and 17 cents a pound. Veal was 2 cents lower on Friday than Monday; lamb declined 1 cent a pound; mutton held steady, and pork dropped 2 to 3 cents a pound, the 8-10 average loins selling Friday for 23 to 24 cents a pound.

FIND NEW REVENUE SOURCE.

Attorney General Holds Butter From Rancid Cream Is Taxable.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 22.—Another source of revenue has been opened to the Government through an opinion by Attorney General Palmer that butter produced from decomposed or rancid cream, which has been neutralized with chemicals before churning, is taxable as adulterated butter at the rate of 10 cents a pound.

In making public the decision the Bureau of Internal Revenue said today that Treasury officials were unable now to estimate the amount of revenue to be derived from this source.

FOR INDEPENDENT NITROGEN

Meredith Says War Showed Need for Nation to Produce Nitrates.

The European war emphasized the fact that no effort should be spared to establish national independence in the production of fertilizer materials, the Secretary of Agriculture points out in his annual report. "This is especially true," he says, "in the case of nitrogen, which is not only a valuable fertilizer ingredient, but also an essential element in the manufacture of munitions. Of all the nations involved in the war Germany alone had a sufficient nitrate supply within her borders, but England, France and Italy are now rapidly perfecting plans to make themselves equally secure in this respect.

"Increased interest has been manifested in this country also in the study of methods of fixing atmospheric nitrogen, and the department, through the Bureau of Soils, has actively co-operated with the War Department in this important field. The production of ammonium sulphate from by-product coke ovens and gas plants has greatly increased, but not sufficiently to meet the demand for fixed nitrogen.

"The completion, shortly before the armistice, of the nitrogen fixation plant at Muscle Shoals, Ala., offered a hope for an independent source of nitrogen for fertilizer use in time of peace. This plant is prepared to make calcium cyanamid or, by some additions, to manufacture ammonium sulphate. With modifications, also, it may be equipped for the preparation of highly concentrated fertilizer materials which will be free from filler, and therefore result in a considerable saving in freight charges. The plant is still idle, awaiting the necessary authority from Congress for its operation. It is hoped that the matter will receive consideration at the next session of Congress and that the requisite authorization will be granted without further delay, in order that the nation may escape once for all from its dependence upon foreign nitrate fields, and that an adequate supply of nitrogen may be developed, both as a protection in times of national stress and to meet the growing demand for this valuable product for fertilizer purposes.

"The experimental kelp plant at Summerland, Cal., the purpose of which is to demonstrate the practicability of extracting potash and useful by-products from the giant kelps, is in active operation and valuable results are being secured.

"Unquestionably it will be possible when the best methods have been worked out to develop a potash industry on the Pacific Coast capable of supplying a considerable part of the nation's need.

"Two processes for the recovery of potash from certain rocks have recently been developed by the Bureau of Soils, and both are being utilized in commercial practice. The 87,000 tons of potash annually lost from flues and stacks of cement plants are still, in the main, going to waste. Only about 1 per cent. was recovered in 1919. A similar situation exists with reference to the collection of potash from blast furnaces. The department is now making a survey of this situation and preliminary results show that the dust from blast furnaces is higher in potash content than the cement dust and that it can probably be recovered more economically.

"The potash that escapes from these two sources would, if collected in marketable form, go a long way toward meeting the normal potash requirements of the country. There is ample justification, therefore, for the appropriation of sufficient funds adequately to study those phases of the problem which properly come within the scope of this department's activities."

BOARDING HOUSE FOR BLIND.

New York Association's Annual Report Asks for Funds.

A boarding house for blind men has been proved such a success by the New York Association for the Blind that the organization appealed yesterday in its annual report for contributions to expand the facilities. The boarding house was opened at 672 Second Avenue "for a group of men, some of them handicapped in other ways than blindness, and almost all without family or friendly ties."

The boarding house is primarily for the men of the workshop opened for the association by Miss Emily Howland Bourne, but the association now desires to widen the work. In telling of the success of the boarding house, the report says that the men in the Bourne Workshop last year made brooms valued at $135,536 and earned $30,797 in wages.

Miss Winifred Holt in her section of the report on the year's work among the blind in the association's "Lighthouses," says:

"The most recent of our officers to pass on is that great philanthropist and financier, Jacob H. Schiff. He said once to the Lighthouse Keeper, 'I will join your Happiness Trust. Each cent which I invest with you yields 100 per cent.' Remember this! It was said by one of the greatest business men of our community, who knew our work so profoundly that he saw its value and gave us the first money to build the Lighthouse.

"Mr. Schiff also left us a bequest in his will. Never was a work more fitted than ours for memorials. Is there not some dear friend who has gone before whose memory you would like to perpetuate by each day turning despair into hope and darkness into light?"

SAVINGS BANKS SHOW A GAIN

Savings in fifty-eight banks in this city totaled $1,832,132,834.02 last year, according to a report issued yesterday by the Savings Banks Association, and 45 out of each 100 persons have savings accounts.

"The figures show that the average deposit per inhabitant, based on the 1920 census population of 5,621,151, is $325.93, while the average deposit of the 2,559,840 depositors is $715.72," says the report. "With 58 of the 59 savings banks in the greater city reporting for the entire year of 1920, and one for the half year ended July 1, the total amount due depositors, including dividends credited, is $1,832,132,834.02.

"While the percentage of increase in depositors in the banks of Manhattan is far below the increases in the other four boroughs, the average deposit in Manhattan is higher than elsewhere, being $771.36 as against $653.09 in Kings, $578.88 in Queens, $457.95 in the Bronx and $449.54 in Richmond.

"The people of the Bronx, however, registered the biggest percentage of gains in depositors during 1920, having increased from 82,464 to 98,241, or 19.1 per cent. Increases in number of depositors in the other boroughs were: Queens 6,803, or 11.5 per cent.; Richmond 2,529, or 9.3 per cent.; Kings 59,623, or 8.5 per cent., and Manhattan 23,960, or 1.5 per cent."

Bronx Borough Sales.

The three-story frame house at 1,871 Morris Avenue, southeast corner of Mount Hope Place, on a plot 32 by 95 feet, has been sold by H. B. Holmes to the Debt Corporation. It was held at $12,000.

Patrick Holland sold for Katheryn R. Brown 2,181 Ryer Avenue, a three-family house, to Harry Watson; also, the dwelling 172 Alexander Avenue to John J. Johnson.

Michael J. Connaughton of Flynn & Connaughton sold for the Popek Realty Company, Inc., to an investor, the twenty-five-family apartment house, on plot 63 by 121, at 2,615 Jerome Avenue, held at $90,000. The property faces St. James Park, between 192d Street and Kingsbridge Road.

The former Niblo's Gardens, at 170th Street and Third Avenue, have been purchased by the W. C. Reeves Real Estate Company, headed by George D. Grundy. It will be conducted, under the management of Charles Smith, as a dancing resort similar to the St. Nicholas Rink, at Sixty-sixth Street and Broadway, including roller skating. The Reeves Real Estate Company has leased the property to Mr. Smith for a term of years.

SAYS GERMANS WANT TO PAY INDEMNITY

PEOPLE POOR, UNDERFED

Admires Hoover Relief in Austria, but Says Work for Men Is Better Plan.

That Germany has no money to pay the indemnity with but is willing to go to work and earn it if the Allies give credit for the purchase of raw materials, is the opinion of Sir Ernest Oppenheimer, the South African diamond mine owner, who is at the Ritz-Carlton.

"I spent the month of December in Germany," said Sir Ernest yesterday, "traveling all over the country. Everywhere I went I found the people poor and undernourished. Even in the houses of the wealthy, the dinner to which I was invited was a poor meal compared to what one may obtain in an ordinary New York restaurant.

"There is a strong desire on the part of the German people to go to work, which was expressed everywhere. They know that they are beaten and admit it. Bankers said to me in Frankfort: 'We want the amount of the indemnity fixed and then a chance to go ahead with our industries and pay it off gradually.'

"I think the French people have been led to believe that the Germans would pay an immense sum of money down, and that every man, woman and child in France would get a share of it. There is no reason to doubt that if Germany is able to start her industries again she will pay it off at so much a year.

"One of the peculiarities of the new German Government now in force is that, although it has a President, some States, including Bavaria, Saxony, Saxe-Coburg-Gothat, Mecklenburg and Baden, are without heads. They have ministers and are ruled by cabinets, in a general way, the officials of these States recognize the German Republic, but they do not consider their countries parts of it or amenable to laws made in Berlin.

In Munich, as well as Nuremberg and other cities in Bavaria, I noticed far too many soldiers. That is the newly raised force called Reichswehr, half police and half military, and they patrol the streets in addition to the civilian police who appeared to me to be quite capable of handling the crowds of half starved people or the traffic. At a rough guess I should think there were fully 200,000 men of the Reichswehr in Bavaria. The French military authorities have objected to such a large force, and I think their complaint is quite justified. The question arises what is the German Government in Berlin going to do about it. Requests have been sent repeatedly, I was informed, to the Cabinet in Munich to reduce this force within reasonable limits, but no notice has been taken and the Reichswehr retain their strength of 200,000 men. The other States have also their force of this type of soldier, and the local governments in some cases say they have to be maintained because of the menace of Bolshevism.

Austria is in a far worse condition than Germany, because her people have no work to do. A banker of Vienna said to me: "We do not want charity. Let the Allies give us credit to purchase raw materials and start our factories going again." I saw the splendid work that is being done by Mr. Hoover's relief committees in those countries in feeding the starving women and children, but the better plan is to let the men get to work. That will restore normal peace conditions in Europe more quickly than any other methods that could be adopted. Belgium has realized this, and is picking up faster than any other of the allied countries. Her people have stopped spending money idly and are bent upon replenishing their exhausted bank accounts."

Sir Ernest and Lady Oppenheimer will make a tour of the United States before returning to South Africa via England.

FARM BY-PRODUCTS SAVED.

Uses for Surplus Fruits and Other Waste Products Developed.

Converting perishable farm products into commodities sufficiently stable that they can be carried from a season of excess when they are not needed is characterized as an essential service of the United States Department of Agriculture in the annual report of the Secretary of Agriculture. Industries founded on the utilization of surplus waste products, he says, would be of tremendous value in meeting this problem.

The Bureau of Chemistry has accomplished some important results along this line in recent years. On the basis of its investigations, for example, there has been developed a citrus by-products industry for the utilization of cull and surplus oranges and lemons, and a feasible method of utilizing corncobs, which always have been a waste product, has also been discovered. Department specialists have produced from it a large yield of adhesive suitable for pasting container box board.

"After this is removed," says the Secretary, "a considerable quantity of a lower grade product can be made, and the residue is practically pure cellulose, which can be used in the manufacture of a number of commodities, including a good quality of paper when mixed with a suitable quantity of wood pulp. After the processes for recovering all these articles had been worked out, it was discovered that a considerable quantity of a very valuable chemical—furfural—was formed, and methods of recovering it have been developed. Furfural is a basic intermediary in dye manufacture and, in addition, has great possibilities as a solvent and as a substitute for formaldehyde in the manufacture of plastics. Many other similar lines of investigation are actively under way, but these two illustrations clearly indicate what can be done toward opening up new industrial outlets for agricultural products.

"It has been found, however, that the benefits of the important discoveries made by the scientists of the Bureau of Chemistry are not always fully realized. The difficulty is that of bringing about their commercial development. In order to meet this situation there has been established in the bureau an office of development work, the function of which is to aid in bringing the discoveries to the attention of business men and others. When new processes have passed the experimental laboratory stage it becomes the duty of this new office, which is conducted by engineers rather than chemists, to investigate their commercial value and the cost and method of placing them on a commercial production basis. Efforts then will be made to inform manufacturers and business men regarding the opportunities for them to develop facilities for the utilization of the discoveries so that the people of the country may secure full benefit of them."

FIXES FREIGHT EXCHANGE.

Canadian Board Decrees 13¾ Per Cent. on American Shipments.

OTTAWA, Jan. 22.—The rate of exchange on freight charges on shipments between the United States and Canada was fixed today by the Board of Railway Commissioners at 13¾ per cent. and a surcharge of 8 per cent. These rates will be put into operation between Jan. 22 and Jan. 31.

The board also announced that a rate will be fixed periodically on shipments to and from the United States, regulating the exchange from time to time as conditions demand.

PREPARING B. R. T. REPORT.

Rumor of Further Curtailment of Service by Garrison Not Verified.

Statements yesterday that Lindley M. Garrison, receiver of the Brooklyn Rapid Transit Company, was preparing a report for Federal Judge Mayer which would recommend closing several additional lines that were not paying expenses, could not be verified as to curtailment of service, but Mr. Garrison is preparing a report for the information of the court.

Senators Burlingame, Harris and Simpson, who are seeking to learn the situation of the B. R. T. system and why the receivership has not been ended, got no nearer to their object yesterday. Tomorrow Senator Simpson will talk with Deputy Public Service Commissioner Morgan T. Donnelly and try to confer with Receiver Garrison. United States Senator William M. Calder is also taking an active interest in the receivership, and it was suggested that he might ask Congress to appoint a committee to investigate it.

WON'T LACK FOR FOOD.

Army Balloonists Take Week's Supply for One-Day Flight.

OMAHA, Neb., Jan. 22.—When four army officers make the first long distance balloon flight of the year from Fort Omaha tomorrow they will carry a week's supply of rations, it was announced today.

This step was decided upon because of the recent experience of three naval officers from Rockaway, N. Y., who were lost in Ontario with scanty rations. The Omaha men plan to spend the entire day in the air.

REFUSE WAGE CUT.

In a prepared statement made public yesterday by the Chicago Building Trades Council, reasons are set forth why the thirty-two unions affiliated with the council voted not to accept any reductions in their present wage scales within the next three years. It was decided at a meeting of their business agents to insist on continuation of the present $1.25 an hour wage for union building workers.

President Thomas S. Kearney of the council said that prior to the war 80,000 workmen in Chicago were members of unions affiliated with the council. Now the number has been reduced to 50,000, with only 40 per cent. of them employed, and a large number have entered other lines of work more remunerative.

"It is contended by some that in the readjustment labor should participate by offering its services at a lower wage in order to bring about production—that labor should suffer with all lines of business," said he. "Labor has suffered and is suffering now, because wages have not kept pace with the increased cost of living. A full, honest day's work should be furnished by labor. We all know there have been abuses on the part of tradesmen, manufacturers and financial people, who have taken advantage of conditions. The building trades have thrashed out this subject and agreed that any workman who does not do a full, honest day's work will be disciplined by his organization."

RATPROOFING BUILDINGS.

Amendment Applies Only to New Structures.

Health Commissioner Copeland last week submitted to the Board of Standards and Appeals a substitute rule amplifying the section of the sanitary code relating to ratproofing buildings. At a former hearing a rule was submitted requiring the ratproofing of every building within 600 feet of the waterfront. The amendment will change this requirement so that it will refer only to new buildings.

The Health Commissioner says the Board of Health last Summer sent word to the Board of Standards and Appeals that a means of preventing bubonic plague was to ratproof all buildings to be constructed near the waterfront. He said yesterday the regulations of the sanitary code enabled the Board of Health to act in any cases where buildings were inhabited by rats.

Dr. Copeland said that 98 out of 100 persons affected with bubonic plague die.

The Commissioner said the plague is not a passing thing, and there will be danger from plague-infected rats for years. He said that for economic reasons rats should be kept from infesting the city on account of the amount of property they destroy.

Bill to Curb Profiteering.

Assemblyman Lyman has introduced at Albany a bill to add new Sections 20-a, 20-b and 20-c to the Tax law, and to amend Section 21, requiring the owners or agents of dwellings occupied by more than three families to file annually with the Board of Taxes and Assessments a sworn statement describing the property, the amount of monthly rentals received, encumbrances and rate of interest paid thereon and expenditures in detail chargeable to the property. Where the Assessors find that net annual renals exceed 10 per cent. of assessed valuation they must add thereto $1,000 for each 10 per cent. in excess of the original 10 per cent. Failure or refusal to file such statement is made a misdemeanor.

Vincent Astor Sells Tenements.

Vincent Astor sold to a client of Domenico Spina the five four-story tenements, with stores, at 260 to 268 Elizabeth Street, on a plot 120 by 87.7, adjoining the southeast corner of East Houston Street, which had been in the possession of the selling family for many years. Samuel Stein, dealer in store fixtures and the tenant, is the purchaser of the five-story building at 189 Bowery, sold by Mr. Astor Friday.

Salvatore Soraci has bought from Goldstone & Meyer a six-story new-law tenement house, on a plot 50 by 100, at 334-6-8 East 114th Street; also bought from Lackwood & Lackwood a new-law six-story building, on a lot 25 by 100, at 351 East 114th Street.

Commercial Leases.

The Duross Company has leased the store at 255 West Twenty-ninth Street to W. A. Brosnan and the store at 217 West Fourteenth Street to Pacquin, Inc.

J. Arthur Fischer has leased to G. Polymeris the store at 108 West Thirty-ninth Street.

William D. Bloodgood & Co., Inc., in conjunction with Cross & Brown, have leased to J. Sichler & Co. the ground floor, containing over 21,000 square feet, in the building at Webster, Second and Third Avenues, Long Island City, for use as an automobile repair shop.

William A. White & Co., in conjunction with George R. Read & Co., leased the basement, ground and second floors at 50 Beaver Street to the Royal Holland Lloyd.

George W. Mercer & Son leased for G. Metzger the store 263 Sixth Avenue for a term of years.

BRITISH-HUNGARIAN OIL DEAL REPORTED

Anglo-Persian Subsidiary Said to Have Exclusive Right of Prospecting.

SOVIET EXILES MENSHEVIKI

Seventeen Labor Leaders Driven From the Ukraine to Georgia—Bank Liquidation Finished.

Details of a deal between the Hungarian Government and the D'Arcy Exploration Company, Ltd., of London, a subsidiary of the Anglo-Persian Oil Company, whereby the British concern receives exclusive rights to prospect for petroleum and natural gas in two-thirds of the territory of Hungary in return for furnishing the capital necessary to discover and exploit the gas and oil believed to lie under the surface of the Magyar near-monarchy, are given in a report from Budapest found in the Kölnische Zeitung of Dec. 28. It is asserted that the contract was signed in London on Oct. 20 by Dr. Teleszky, former Hungarian Minister of Finance, and guaranteed by the Anglo-Persian Oil Company, and was subsequently ratified by the Hungarian National Assembly.

The Budapest writer points out that, although the Treaty of Trianon deprived Hungary of its most productive gas and petroleum fields, i. e., those of Transylvania and the adjoining districts, it has been demonstrated by geologists, using the testing instrument perfected by Dr. Böckhy, a member of the Ministry of Finance, that there are rich sources of oil and gas still untapped and awaiting the application of labor and capital to make them profitable to the State and the world in general.

As the Hungarian Government was too poor to undertake anything requiring the investment of capital, it had to get into touch with foreign interests, and the deal with the British company was effected. The syndicate is to furnish £100,000 at once for purposes of exploration over at least 500 square kilometers a year, and, in case the results are favorable, is to organize within three years a British-Hungarian oil and natural gas company with a stock capital of £1,000,000 to begin with. The Hungarian Government is to turn over to the company the testing instrument and the technical men necessary for its use. All machinery imported by the British company is to be free of duty.

The terms of the alleged contract provide that if gas or oil is found in a so-called geological unit, this unit is to be divided into three parts, one of which is to go to the syndicate for exploitation, while another third is to be held undeveloped for two years awaiting the confirming of the conditions of delivery, and the third part is to be turned back at once to the Hungarian State free of charge. The output of petroleum from the productive units is to be increased until the entire domestic supply is assured and twice that amount available for export, although the annual exportation need not exceed 400,000 tons. The price of the oil, both for domestic use and for export, is to be fixed by the Hungarian Minister of Finance, in agreement with the British-Hungarian Company.

If enough gas is discovered to supply Budapest and other cities, the company undertakes to construct the pipe lines necessary for distribution. The gas must be supplied to the cities at a low rate, but so that the capital invested by the company receives interest at from 12 to 15 per cent., according to the value of the British banknotes. When the syndicate takes over a geological unit for exploitation a company with a stock capital of £100,000 is to be organized, but if there are more than five units the capital need not exceed £1,000,000, but this amount must be reached within three years. The shares are to be of £1 each, and 10 per cent. of the stock is to be offered to the Hungarian Government to be taken over. Ten per cent. of the oil and gas production is to be turned over to the Hungarian State, either "in natura" or in cash, as the Government wishes. If the company invests £4,000,000 during the first twenty years of its fifty-year contract, it can have it extended twenty-five years more.

Of the 120 leaders of the Mensheviki (Russian Social Democrats) arrested by the Soviet police in a raid upon a Menshevist meeting being held in Kharkof, in the Ukraine, last August, and held on charges of "counter-revolutionary activities," all but twenty-seven have finally been released, according to Russian newspaper reports quoted in an article in the Leipziger Volkszeitung of Dec. 24. Of those found guilty by the Bolshevist courts ten were condemned to forced labor in concentration camps until "the end of the civil war," while the other seventeen were expelled from the Ukraine and sent to Georgia. Among the latter is a prominent Socialist agitator named Behr, who is said to have worked with Leon Trotzky on the revolutionary Russian paper published in Paris in the early days of the World War. Several others among the prisoners and exiles are well known in the Russian and Ukrainian revolutionary labor movements, and there is much bitter comment by Mensheviki who have supported the Soviet Government against outside aggression at the lack of gratitude displayed by the Moscow rulers.

A report on the work of liquidating Russian banks by the Soviet Government printed in the Petrograd Isvestia is quoted as follows in the Leipziger Volszeitung of Dec. 24: "The special office for the liquidation of banks which forms part of the Department of Trade and Finance began its work on Feb. 1, 1920. This office had the task of dissolving as soon as possible all the banks which had been nationalized through the edict of Dec. 17, 1917. This task is now finished. At the same time the accounts of private persons, companies and organizations have been liquidated. The liquidation office has taken possession of assets of about 23,000,000,000 rubles and of liabilities of over 23,000,000,000. The securities have been sent to the administration in Moscow, together with the banks' books. All accounts of foreigners and Russian subjects who have left Soviet Russia have been posted in a special account and turned over to the Department of International Settlements. The debts of individuals to the former People's Bank, or to private persons, have been, so far as they were (not?) guaranteed by securities, written off as losses and the collection of debts owed by private persons or companies to the former banks has been stopped altogether. Personal current balances exceeding 10,000 rubles have been confiscated as a special revolutionary tax."

During November 550 carloads of various goods entered Soviet Russia from abroad, according to a Moscow wireless quoted in a dispatch sent from Reval to the German press on Dec. 27. Of these America was said to have sent three carloads of soap, three of shoes and one of rubber boots. The first shipment from France was reported as including several carloads of rubber boots, shoes and paper. England sent chemicals and Germany drugs, agricultural machinery and movie films.

Stockholm reports of Dec. 20 found in the German press say that the Russian publisher Grshelin, who is said to have received the monopoly of supplying books for the schools in Soviet Russia, has placed an order amounting to 6,000,000 crowns with "Progress," a Swedish printing company. A big share of the total of 20,000,000 crowns to be spent for school books is expected to go to German publishers.

Exclusive use of the metric system in Russian Government institutions will begin next year and will become obligatory for private persons and institutions in 1924, according to a Soviet decree reported in the German papers.

Details of the convention of the Social Democratic Party of Latvia held in Riga Dec. 18-20, found in the Berlin Freiheit, show that only thirteen of the 150 delegates voted in favor of accepting the twenty-one points of affiliation laid down by the Third (Communist) International. The Latvian Socialists will send delegates to the meeting in Vienna next month, where a fourth international is to be organized.

VITAL QUESTIONS AWAIT ACTION BY PREMIERS TODAY

But Matter of Fixing or Not Fixing German Indemnity Overshadows All Others.

BRIAND PLAN IS OBSTACLE

Calls for Five Annual Payments Before Total of Reparations Is Agreed Upon.

BRITAIN FOR DECISION NOW

With Other Allies, She Fears the Political and Economic Effects of Continued Uncertainty.

By EDWIN L. JAMES.

The first session of this very important meeting will open at 11 o'clock. The subjects on the program will be dealt with in the following order: First, the fixing of the total of Germany's reparations bill; second, reparations; third, the Orient; fourth, Austria; fifth, Russia.

The reparations question overshadows all others. It is remarkable that on the eve of the conference which is set out to try and reach a definite settlement of this problem the utmost confusion reigns as to what plan will be put forward by Aristide Briand, the French Premier, as the way of a definite settlement of the amount due by Germany. It is understood, Friday in the Chamber of Deputies, it was proposed to fixing the total sum now. Still, it is by no means certain that he will maintain that stand.

President Millerand summoned the French Ministers to the Elysee this morning, and it is understood he told them that the sum total of the indemnity could be fixed between now and May 1. Mr. Briand knows the stand that the British Government's attitude may be in a few days or twenty years from now. However, England, while wishing to follow French desires as far as possible, believes the general interests of the whole world would be served by letting Germany and the world know what Germany owes. Belgium supports this view. As for Germany, her statesmen demand that the bill be fixed.

French View of British Attitude.

For several days French newspapers favorable to Premier Briand have stated that the British Cabinet would agree to a system of five annuities of 3,000,000,000 marks gold each. It is Briand's plan to exact these payments now and fix the total at the end of five years or today reveal that, while the British Cabinet favors these annuities if the French want them, they favor them merely as initial payments on a total to be fixed prior to May 1. This is an entirely different plan from that of Briand.

There is a good deal of criticism in today's press of Briand's plan, it being pointed out that Belgium has a claim of almost all of the first annuity under her priority rights and that what France would get for the first five years would not pay what she has already expended for reparations, leaving nothing coming from Germany for reparations for the next five years. And the French tentative budget for 1921 carries 17,000,000,000 francs paper for reconstruction work, without any plans to meet this expenditure except the prospect of the German payment. Those who favor fixing the total now argue that without the prospective payments, backed up by a solid allied guarantee to collect, France would be unable to borrow money to meet her reconstruction payments in the next five or six years.

It is not to be expected that this week's conference in any case will name the total of the German debt. The English negotiators take the stand that whether or not the plebiscite gives Upper Silesia, with its mineral wealth, to Germany will have a bearing on what Germany can pay. The plebiscite takes place in March. However, the conference may be expected to settle the principle whether the indemnity total should be fixed between now and May 1 or be postponed for a long time.

Boulogne Scheme the Most Definite.

The most definite scheme for German reparation that has ever been drafted was drawn at Boulogne last July. This provided for payments of 3,000,000,000 gold marks annually for the first five years, payment of 6,000,000,000 annually the next five years, and payments of 7,000,000,000 annually the next thirty-two years, a total of 269,000,000,000 marks in forty-two years, it being calculated that, with 5 per cent. interest, with 1 per cent. amortizement, this would be equivalent to 85,000,000,000 marks gold, current value. France, receiving 55 per cent. of the indemnity, would thus get about 47,000,000,000 marks gold, about 60,000,000,000 gold francs at present value, or 148,000,000,000 gold marks, if she waited forty-two years to get it all. It was the plan at that time that France could borrow in England and America on her share by means of Reparation Commission bonds guaranteed by Germany, England, France and Belgium, bearing 5 or 6 per cent. interest, and that thus she would be in position to meet her current reconstruction expenditures. There is always a strong chance that this Boulogne plan will be finally adopted.

Anyhow, as the matter stands tonight, there is the greatest confusion about the reparation plans. The other Allies stand willing to see France get all she can,

Catholics to Offer Prayers For Support of New President

WASHINGTON, Jan. 23.—Vigil lights, symbolizing patriotic prayers for the guidance and support of President-elect Harding when he takes office as President, will be burned from March 3 to March 8 in the National Shrine of the Immaculate Conception at Brookland, D. C., according to announcement of the Right Rev. Thomas J. Shahan, rector of the Catholic University.

A special appeal has been issued to all Catholics of the United States to participate in the acts of national devotion.

"Never were wisdom and courage more needed by the head of our great American democracy," said Bishop Shahan's appeal. "Every Catholic ought to offer on that day (March 4) the earnest prayer that God will guide our Chief Executive wisely and well, that the evils of the late war may be abolished and our nation enter again upon the way of progress through justice and charity."

JAPANESE PREMIER FORECASTS ACCORD

CONCILIATION IS SOUGHT

WASHINGTON, Jan. 23 (Associated Press).—Negotiations between the Japanese and United States Governments for an adjustment of issues arising from anti-alien land legislation by the State of California were viewed as satisfactory and hopeful by Premier Hara and Foreign Minister Uchida in addresses yesterday at the reopening of the Japanese Diet.

Premier Hara declared that the exchange of views, now in progress through Baron Shidehara, the Japanese Ambassador here, and Roland S. Morris, the American Ambassador to Japan, were proceeding "in a most friendly spirit for an amicable adjustment of the question." He added that the Japanese Government "was confidently looking forward to a satisfactory settlement."

Foreign Minister Uchida, who devoted more attention to the negotiations than did the Premier, told the Diet that "a frank and free exchange of views has been proceeding on various points involved in the question." Regret was expressed by the Foreign Minister that as yet it was impossible to make public the result of the discussions in Washington, but he added "that we confidently trust that an adjustment compatible with the honor and interests of both countries may be finally arrived at."

The addresses of the two Japanese officials, who first spoke in the House of Peers and later in the House of Representatives, were received and made public tonight by the Japanese Embassy. Both officials referred to the sending of Japanese troops to the Chientao district of China following the burning of the Japanese Consulate and the killing of several Japanese at Hunchun, and announced that the troops would be withdrawn as soon as the maintenance of order was assured.

Disarmament Hopes Welcomed.

Viscount Uchida also gave to the Diet an account of the recent meeting of the League of Nations Assembly at Geneva and stated that it was the intention of the Japanese Government "invariably to make endeavors in hearty co-operation with other powers for the attainment of the lofty aim of the League." He expressed satisfaction that the Geneva meeting had resulted in a composition of the differences between Japan and Great Britain relative to mandates. After announcing to the Diet that the League had appointed a Disarmament Commission, he said:

"As a matter of principle, disarmament is to be welcomed for the general welfare of the human race and the Japanese Government is paying special attention to the question. The matter, however, has very important and complex bearings upon the interests of each nation, and it is to be apprehended that realization of this end may be found impossible unless all nations act in harmony and in good faith."

"The historic good relationship between Japan and the United States needs no reiteration," said Minister Uchida in taking up what his colleague had termed the California question. "The relations between the two nations have steadily grown in importance from political, economic, social and various other points of view. It is true that this friendly relationship is not without an occasional mingling of incidents; that is almost inevitable in any international relations. But I am firmly of the opinion that fundamentally the relationship between Japan and America is as cordial as ever, and that there are no such insurmountable obstacles as might disturb the basic factors which govern that relationship.

"Moreover, I am happy to notice that in recent years the popular opinion between the two peoples has been greatly helped by the close and frequent contact of influential men of both countries. I desire to express my appreciation of the valuable efforts of these people, which I hope will not be allowed to slacken in future.

Working for California Solution.

"I have to dwell here on the unfortunate event which has occurred in our relations with the United States. Last November at the general election of the United States, the State of California passed through initiative the alien land law. The contents of the law are now generally known and may need no ex-

DR. CARSTENSEN ASSAILS 3 RECTORS FROM THE PULPIT

HE PRAISES DR. MANNING

Trinity Rector as Bishop, He Declares, Would "Not Hesitate to Use a Curb Bit."

A PLEA FOR OLD STANDARDS

The Rev. Dr. William T. Manning, Rector of Trinity Church, was advocated for Bishop of New York in a sermon preached yesterday morning in Holyrood Episcopal Church, Fort Washington Avenue and 179th Street, by the Rev. Dr. Gustav N. Carstensen, the Rector. Dr. Manning was urged by Dr. Carstensen as the man who would "use a curb bit" in dealing with certain clergymen and certain ecclesiastical practices in the diocese.

Dr. Carstensen severely criticised "the Rector of the Church of the Ascension" for his sermon of a week ago yesterday, although he did not call his brother clergyman by name. The Rector of the Church of the Ascension is the Rev. Dr. Percy Stickney Grant.

Other clergymen who referred to the Grant sermon and expressed their views on the new Bishop were the Rev. Dr. Herbert Shipman, Rector of the Church of the Heavenly Rest, Fifth Avenue, above Forty-fifth Street, and the Rev. Dr. Nathan A. Seagle, Rector of St. Stephen's Church, West Sixty-ninth Street.

In practically every church of the Episcopal diocese yesterday prayers were offered for divine guidance in choosing a Bishop.

"Whichever of the distinguished priests nominated may be elected Bishop of New York will bring to the office personal godliness, scholarly attainments and administrative ability" declared Dr. Carstensen. "In addition to these essential qualifications, Dr. Manning, if elected, will exercise his prerogative as a disciplinarian with a firmer hand than we may surely expect from any of the others," continued Dr. Carstensen.

Criticises Dr. Grant.

"Toleration of error and lawlessness has already gone too far. To the scandal of our Church men have too long been permitted to minister at her altars who openly deny the faith which they are sworn to defend and flout the laws which they are pledged to obey.

"When one would discard the Apostles' Creed, relegating it to the limbo of dead superstitions, affirming with the air of a pompous Pantaloon that men more learned than he and just as honest can accept it only with stultifying reservations, it is time to call a halt."

Dr. Carstensen told a TIMES reporter after the service that in the above criticisms he referred to Dr. Grant.

"When another debases his priesthood with weekly shows at which an unfrocked priest plays Harlequin with 'the little Lady of the Dew' as Columbine, and an array of 'talent' unparalled since the days of Artemus Ward's 'wax figgers,' we may cry out, 'O Lord, how long'?" Dr Carstensen said later in his sermon.

Dr. Carstensen acknowledged after the service that the clergyman referred to in the preceding paragraph is the Rev. Dr. William Norman Guthrie, rector of St. Mark's Church, Second Avenue and Tenth Street, and that the "unfrocked priest" referred to is Dr. Algernon S. Crapsey, who has spoken on the last two Sundays in St. Mark's Church.

"And when a shallow declaimer avers that Bishops are useless except as 'decorations,' we can only thank the Congregational minister who rebuked him," said Dr. Carstensen. "But his vaporings are not to be taken too seri-

Night Riders Again Warn Growers To Haul No More Tobacco to Market

LEXINGTON, Ky., Jan. 23.—Night riders visited farmers in Bath and Fleming counties last night and warned them not to haul any more tobacco to market until prices were higher, according to reports received here tonight. The reports, received from Mount Sterling, Carlisle and Flemingsburg, said the growers were warned that their barns would be burned and that they would be dealt with severely unless they complied.

The band, consisting of twenty-five or thirty masked men, visited farmers near Sherbourne, in Fleming County, twelve miles from Flemingsburg, and Bethel, in Bath County, twelve miles from Carlisle. About fifteen farmers were visited, although the names of only a few were disclosed by the authorities.

T. S. Robertson, a wealthy farmer near Bethel, was called to his door at 12:30 o'clock last night, according to a report from Carlisle. Four men standing with their backs to him warned him that he was not to haul away any more tobacco nor to rent any of his farms for tobacco raising, nor to raise any himself. The warning was accompanied by threats of violence to himself and his property if he failed to obey.

Thomas Croath, Jake Boyd and a farmer named Stevens were then visited and the warning repeated.

The band next appeared near Sherbourne and warned two farmers named Shields and Tomlin. They are known to have visited three other farmers, but when the occupants came to the door they laughed and said they were "looking for a doctor."

James N. Kehoe, President of the Burley Tobacco Growers' Cut Out Organization, severely condemned the action of the night riders. When advised at his home of the resumption of night riding he said:

"I strongly disapprove such action. It is a great mistake, and no possible good can come from it. I could not possibly say more."

STIMSON TO FIGHT BUILDING GRAFTERS

WILL TRY HETTRICK CASE

500 Indictments Expected as Result of Lockwood Committee Evidence.

As a result of the exposure of corrupt conditions in the building industry by the Lockwood committee's investigation, it was learned yesterday that at least 500 indictments, and possibly more, may be expected before the inquiry concludes. If the plans of Samuel Untermyer, chief counsel to the committee, are carried out, the indictments will probably be returned within a month or two. Up to the present time 150 indictments have been handed down by the State and Federal Grand Juries. Trials are expected to begin in the State courts shortly, with as many cases on trial at the same time as the available Judges and court accommodations will permit.

The latest acquisition to the legal talent engaged in the prosecution of offenses revealed by the Lockwood committee is Colonel Henry L. Stimson, former Secretary of War and former United States District Attorney at New York. Mr. Untermyer succeeded in inducing Colonel Stimson on Saturday to accept the offer as a public duty. Colonel Stimson will act as senior counsel with Kenneth M. Spence and Messrs. Pfeiffer and Duer in the trial of the cases against John T. Hettrick, originator of the "Codes of Practice" for building contractors, and two labor leaders, whose trials will take place at the conclusion of the trial of Robert P. Brindell, now on before Judge McAvoy.

Mr. Untermyer had hoped to try the Hettrick case himself, but will be unable to do so because of the probable early resumption of the Lockwood Committee hearings.

Stimson Heads Senior Counsel.

In addition to the large number of junior counsel now engaged on the staff organized by Mr. Untermyer, the list of senior counsel, besides Mr. Untermyer, is as follows: Henry L. Stimson, Emery R. Buckner, William A. De Ford, Kenneth M. Spence, Deputy Attorney General Samuel A. Berger, Charles A. Perkins, Robert E. Johnstone, Stanley L. Richter, Albert B. Unger and Arthur C. Train, and Messrs. Pfeiffer, Morton and Duer. In addition, working in the Federal courts are Colonel William Rand and Isidor J. Kresel, as special assistants to Attorney General Palmer. They also have a corps of assistants.

In connection with the resolutions adopted by the Real Estate Board of New York City protesting against the recent rent laws and demanding their repeal and calling upon the Legislature to defeat the pending resolution to continue the life of the Lockwood Committee, it was recalled yesterday that only a few days ago the New York State Real Estate Board, in session at Albany, unanimously commended the work

FOUND STARVING IN CHURCH TOWER

SAYS HE WENT THERE TO DIE

Ill and Without Work, He Had Been Secreted in Room a Week, He Tells Police.

Just as the organ pealed a prelude to services in the Eighteenth Street Methodist Episcopal Church, 305 West Eighteenth Street, yesterday morning, the pastor, the Rev. Dr. Benjamin C. Warren heard stumbling footsteps in a deserted tower which once had housed his study but now contains only a storeroom.

Sexton Crawford was sent to investigate. He found a young man, weak, ill and incoherent, who murmured that he needed water. Crawford gave him a glass and he drank it as though his throat was parched.

He was taken downstairs, where he told a rambling story, which gave his hearers the impression that he was delirious. His name, he said, was Timothy Jones; he was twenty-four years old, and came to New York City a few days ago after spending two weeks in Binghamton. He gave the impression that that city was not his home.

Talking with Crawford and the clergyman, Jones was uncertain when, why or how he secreted himself in the tower. As far as they could fit together his disconnected statements, he had been there about two days. According to Crawford, he did not say he was hungry, but produced a $20 bill when asked if he were destitute. He wore a watch and chain which seemed to be valuable.

Patrolman Hackett was called and took the young man to the West Twentieth Street station. There he said, according to the police, that he had wandered into the church a week ago because he was sick and out of work and did not know where to turn. Chancing upon the stairs to the tower he made his way there. When he came upon the little room which the pastor had used several years ago, its seclusion appealed to him and he decided he would shut himself in there and die.

To the police Jones insisted he had been in the tower a whole week. He said he was hungry, and proved it to the extent of gulping eagerly a bowl of hot soup brought from a lunchroom. The police said that when they questioned Jones as to his motive in hiding himself, he replied that he felt so hopeless he decided to die, and concluded he could have a peaceful death by remaining in the little room until the end. The craving for water drove him to disclose his presence just as the congregation was gathering, he said.

Dr. Durfee was called from New York Hospital. He found the patient suffering from chills, and the ambulance surgeon took him to Bellevue. There Jones said he came to New York a week ago from Philadelphia in a sealed box car. He said he looked without success for a job of some sort, and a week ago yesterday went into the church to get out of the cold. Then he wandered to the tower.

Physicians at the hospital at first believed his condition was serious, but last night they said he was responding to treatment and was sleeping well after taking ample nourishment. They believed he would be in condition today to give a more coherent account of himself.

It was learned that when Jones first came to New York he rented a room in the home of Dr. Herbert L. Gray at 238 West Twentieth Street. No additional information about him could be obtained there, however.

Early reports that the man had hidden in the belfry and was discovered when the bell refused to toll were found to be incorrect, the church, in fact, having no bell.

Lured Here From Brooklyn, Broker Says; Slugged and Robbed in a Dark Hallway

One of the most daringly planned and executed crimes of violence of the recent orgy of lawlessness was disclosed last night by its victim, Eugene G. Neimark of 656 Lafayette Avenue, Brooklyn, an insurance broker. Mr. Neimark said he was deliberately lured from Brooklyn to Manhattan last Saturday night, assaulted and robbed. He reported to the police of the Charles Street Station. Detectives there, placing their own interpretation upon Commissioner Enright's recent declaration that all crime news was open to the public, concealed the robbery until the insurance broker himself saw fit to tell about it.

In detailing the plot, Mr. Neimark said one of the detectives to whom he reported the circumstances said he would call him up "some day" and let him know when he could come to Police Headquarters in an effort to locate the criminals through a scrutiny of the Rogues' Gallery photographs. Mr. Neimark added that thus far he had not received the invitation.

The broker, according to his account, was called to the telephone in his office, at 212 Broadway, Brooklyn, last Saturday by a man who said he was Mr. Hurley, who wanted insurance on a newly purchased automobile. "Mr. Hurley" was "too busy to come to Brooklyn," but Mr. Neimark had been "recommended to him by a friend," and he would like to have him write the policy.

It was settled that Mr. Neimark should meet the caller at 25 Cornelia Street. In keeping the appointment, the broker motored there at 7:30 in the evening, but could find no trace of "Hurley" until a well-dressed young man asked him if he were seeking that person. Told that he was, the young man informed Neimark that "Hurley" was visiting a cousin in a house in the rear of that at No. 25.

Guided by the youth, Neimark started through a dark passageway toward the rear structure. Half way they were met by a man who appeared suddenly, pressed a pistol against the broker's head and commanded him to throw up his hands and keep quiet. The robber took from him, Neimark said, $285, a diamond ring worth $850 and a diamond scarf pin worth $450.

Neimark said the man then struck him on the head with a pistol, inflicting a scalp wound, and fled. The broker said he staggered and fell, but managed to get up and follow, blowing a police whistle. He ran to Fourth Street and then to Sixth Avenue, where he collapsed. By the time a policeman had reached him the robber and his accomplice had disappeared. Neimark, suffering from a scalp wound, was taken to the Charles Street station to report the affair.

FIRE WRECKS HARDING'S MARION HEADQUARTERS

Campaign Documents and Desk at Which "Best Minds" Conferred Are Saved.

Special to The New York Times.

MARION, Ohio, Jan. 23.—The residence of George R. Christian Jr., next door to the home of President-elect Harding, and used by the President-elect as his headquarters, was destroyed by fire this morning.

All the campaign documents stored in the building, although somewhat damaged by water, are thought to have been saved. The desk at which the President-elect met in conference with the "best minds" of the country was removed from the burning building but was slightly marred by the flames.

The fire started from an overheated furnace at a time when the house was unoccupied, no members of the headquarters staff having arrived for the day. As soon as it was discovered, firemen and headquarters employes carried out correspondence and records, but a strong wind scattered the papers in different directions. All of them are thought to have been recovered.

No decision has been reached here as to whether other headquarters will be established, the probability being that word from Mr. Christian, who is Mr. Harding's secretary, will be awaited.

The damage, estimated at $3,000, is said to be covered by insurance.

ANOTHER CAPTAIN FACING INDICTMENT IN WHITMAN INQUIRY

Bill May Be Returned Today Charging Graft in Automobile Thefts.

STATE ACTION UNDECIDED

Republican Leaders in Doubt as to Political Effect of Legislative Investigation.

OPPOSITION TO WHITMAN

Untermyer Also Not In Favor as Counsel—Fear of Making Smith Nominee for Mayor.

Additional indictments of policemen today or tomorrow for the extortion of rewards or "gratuities" are expected to result from the Whitman investigation. A third police Captain may be indicted today or later in the week in connection with the so-called "automobile graft," or the exaction of substantial payments from owners for the return of stolen machines.

The developments in the Whitman investigation this week probably will determine whether a legislative investigation of the city and District Attorney's offices is to be held. Influential Republican leaders were reported yesterday to be opposed to a legislative investigation and especially opposed to the employment of ex-Governor Charles S. Whitman as counsel. But it was admitted that any sensational exposures of the Hylan régime would result in an irresistible public sentiment in favor of such an investigation and that Mr. Whitman might, if he produces big results, force his acceptance as counsel.

Ex-State Senator Elon R. Brown of Watertown, who conducted an investigation, or rather a "study," of New York City's affairs under the Mitchel Administration, was the choice of leaders who talked yesterday for such a legislative investigation, if one is unavoidable. Ex-Senator Brown is described as the leader of a "constructive" type of investigation, as a basis for remedial legislation, rather than a slashing attack on the Hylan Administration.

Many Republican leaders would like to see Mayor Hylan slightly daubed, but not tarred all over. Cautious men in the Republican organization are anxious that the Mayor be not too badly discredited to prevent his renomination, but that he be sufficiently injured to enable a Republican candidate for Mayor to beat him.

Fear Smith's Nomination.

"We don't want a situation to arise which would force 'Al' Smith to accept the Tammany nomination for Mayor," is the statement repeatedly made by Republican strategists.

Some of the Tammany leaders are wishing more success to the Whitman investigation than are Republican politicians. They want to see Mayor Hylan so badly damaged as to prevent his renomination, without having his administration "torn to pieces" in such a way as to cause a Fusion or Republican landslide. Mayor Hylan is regarded by Tammany as a doubtful asset for organization purposes and the thought of four more years of him is not popular.

Senator Schuyler M. Meyer, author of one of the two bills introduced at Albany for a legislative investigation, said yesterday that every one he talked with favored such an investigation and believed that the situation called loudly for it, but that it was not safe to make a prediction whether one would be held or not.

"Two or three days from now the situation will be clearer," he said. "I think the matter depends now on whether Whitman is able to do the work.

"My theory of the kind of investigation needed is not simply a corruption investigation, but one that will produce constructive results. My idea is to have an investigation that will show weakness in the structure of the City Charter, if the fault is there. Corruption or a poor quality of personnel in the city offices, if they exist, should be shown, too. I think a legislative committee is needed to take the lead in the reorganization of the city Government, as the Mayor is taking the lead in the reorganization of the State Government."

May Broaden Lockwood Inquiry.

Senator Meyer said that it was a possibility that the Lockwood committee, with Samuel Untermyer as counsel, might obtain such powers as would enable it to go ahead with a sweeping investigation into all phases of the city Government, undertaking the same work as was contemplated by the Meyer bill and the Robinson-Steinberg measure.

From talks with Republican leaders it was learned that the idea of having Mr. Untermyer as counsel for such an investigation was even more unpalatable than that the opening the way to Mr. Whitman to be the big figure of a sensational investigation. Mr. Whitman, it was felt, might force himself on the Legislature, but Mr. Untermyer, a Democrat, could not get such a position if he wanted it.

"Every one seems to agree," Senator Meyer continued, "that there is much that needs investigation in the Hylan government. But there is no agreement on the way of proceeding. The Grand Jury method is inadequate. It does not educate the people to the faults in the system of government. I do not believe that investigation by Moreland Commissioners appointed by the Government would accomplish great things. The trouble with them is that the information they bring to the surface is usually mastered by only one man, the

Declares Prohibition Saved $1,000,000,000 in First Year

WASHINGTON, Jan. 23.—Whisky consumption in the United States decreased from 89,641,985 gallons in 1917 to 5,581,553 gallons in 1920, the first year of prohibition under the constitutional amendment, according to figures announced today by the Anti-Saloon League of America. Consumption of alcohol in the same years decreased from 71,081,121 gallons to 22,639,355 gallons, the figures showed, while beer consumption dropped from 60,817,379 barrels to 9,231,280 barrels.

"Granting that many million gallons of alcohol and whisky withdrawn for non-beverage use have been diverted to beverage use," said an accompanying statement by the league, "and granting that many million gallons of beer have been made and consumed illegally, a conservative estimate shows that the people of the United States have saved more than one billion dollars previously spent for beverage intoxicants."

LYNCH TWO NEGROES AFTER A RACE RIOT

CLASH STARTED OVER TRADE

Eight Wounded in Fight, Including Five White Men—Mob Riddles Victims With Bullets.

NORLINA, N. C., Jan. 24.—Alfred Williams and Plummer Bullock, two negroes, were taken from the Warren County jail at Warrenton, by a masked mob early this morning and shot to death.

No effort was made to molest the other eleven negroes who were confined in the jail in connection with the race clash here early Sunday. Bullock was said to have been the instigator, and Williams one of the leaders of the negroes in the clash. About 150 men were in the mob that entered the jail. The two negroes were taken into the woods about a mile outside of town, and their bodies were riddled with bullets.

Efforts to communicate with Warrenton by telephone were fruitless, but persons who reached here from the scene of the lynching said the town was quiet, and that a military company ordered out by Governor Morrison had taken charge. It was said that only the jailer, John Green, a negro, was on duty at the jail when the mob surrounded it, and that he was quickly subdued.

The rioting that started yesterday was the result of increasing ill feeling between members of the two races, having had its origin in a quarrel over a trade involving some apples.

The wounded, most of whom were taken to a Henderson hospital, are: W. G. Upchurch, white, railroad engineer; A. J. Rainey, white, railroad inspector; Raby Trailor, white; Leroy Trailor, white; H. A. Inscoe, white; Henry Jones, negro; Robert Moss, negro, and Jerome Hunter, negro.

Thirteen negroes, charged with participation in the shooting, are held in the county jail at Warrenton in default of bonds ranging from $200 to $1,000.

The trouble started last Tuesday, according to a statement tonight by Chief of Police Fleming of Norlina. Plummer Bullock, negro, the Police Chief said, went into a grocery store Tuesday to buy 10 cents' worth of apples from Brady Trailor, a clerk. The negro professed dissatisfaction with this purchase and wanted his money back. The exchange was effected, after some words, whereupon the negro cursed and threatened Trailor, it is said.

The Trailers, Chief Fleming said, received word last night that the negroes were organizing to make good Plummer Bullock's threat. About a score of blacks, the Chief added, gathered at the railroad station early today with shotguns. Raby Trailor, brother of Brady, approached Matthew Bullock, apparently the leader of the negroes, and asked him what the trouble was about. While they were talking, according to evidence brought out at a preliminary hearing late today, Jerome Hunter, negro, fired at Trailor from close range. The white man fell, and Hunter, it was testified, shot him twice as he lay on his back. The shooting then became general, and Upchurch, Rainey and Inscoe, all railroad men at work near the station, were shot.

TWO KILLED BY AUTOS, LITTLE GIRL A VICTIM

Two persons were killed and two children injured by automobiles yesterday. Ellen Hilt, seven, of 525 Court Street, Brooklyn, was run over by an automobile in front of her home last night. It was driven by Frank Dello, 700 Fifty-seventh Street.

William J. Campbell, 60, of 25 Third Street, Englewood, N. J., died in Knickerbocker Hospital yesterday of a fractured skull suffered when he was knocked down by a taxicab at 127th Street and Convent Avenue early yesterday morning. The taxicab was driven by Joseph Sable of 1,858 Intervale Avenue, who aided Campbell until the arrival of Dr. Stone and an ambulance.

David Scherer, 6, of 26 East 126th Street, was struck by an automobile at 120th Street and Madison Avenue and injured slightly. George Colluro, 6, of 2,244 First Avenue, was struck by an automobile at 106th Street and First Avenue and slightly injured.

A jitney, driven by Joseph Kelley, of 19 Old Bergen Road, Jersey City, ran into a loose trolley wire at Ash Street and Pacific Avenue, Jersey City, last night and overturned, nine passengers being injured. They were taken to the City Hospital.

AUTO BANDITS RAID WESTCHESTER ROADS NEAR ROCKEFELLER'S

Automobile Parties Held Up in Fog, Shots Fired, Woman and Two Men Are Beaten.

ONE VICTIM FEIGNS DEATH

Resists When Robbers Appear Near Gould-Shepard Estate and Is Knocked Down.

LICENSE NUMBERS KNOWN

But State Troopers, Police of Yonkers, Mt. Vernon and Ossining Find No Trace of Robbers.

Highwaymen in a fast automobile raided at their leisure along the Albany Post Road, between Tarrytown and Ossining early yesterday morning. They escaped with more than $1,000 in cash, jewelry and costly furs belonging to the women companions of belated motorists whom they robbed at lonely spots near the Sleepy Hollow Country Club and the estates of Mrs. Finley J. Shepard (formerly Miss Helen Gould) and William Rockefeller.

Shots fired by the marauders missed their victims in the darkness, but two men who made feeble signs of resistance and a woman who screamed in fright were assaulted with fists and pistol butts, one of them escaping worse treatment by feigning death as he lay in the roadway.

State troopers last night scoured the vicinity in the hope of coming upon the robbers—there were three of them—or at least of preventing further depredations. The police of Yonkers, Mount Vernon, Tarrytown, Irvington and Ossining joined in the search, but though two New York license numbers were reported on the touring car the raiders used, they had not been traced at a late hour.

The police of Westchester believe the highwaymen, who were said by their victims to have spoken with foreign accents, were the same who held up a Port Chester woman in Purchase last week and robbed several stores in Mount Kisco and Katonah.

First Hold-up in Drifting Fog.

A party of eight New Yorkers who had been visiting Mrs. Jacob Hopkins in Ossining started back early in the morning, traveling southward at a snail's pace because a drifting fog made driving difficult. They were near the country club when the robbers' car burst recklessly out of the gloom behind them, grazed by and slewed across the road in front, while those within shouted to them to halt.

David Cohen, the chauffeur, jammed on his brakes just in time to avoid a collision. Two men got out of the car and asked if Cohen had any tire chains. Cohen said no, and the two, for the first time displaying their pistols, called:

"Give us everything you've got, then."

Benjamin Sovel of 501 West 142d Street, Albert Ferrister of 137 Riverside Drive, Miss Edna Ureless of 558 West 164th Street, Edna Greenburgh of 80 St. Nicholas Avenue and Edna Kimler of 2 West 120th Street were forced to leave their car and line up at the roadside. The robbers went through them with swift, skilled fingers, taking money, watches and rings from the men and stripping the women of their jewelry, including a pearl necklace, and of their furs.

While the two who had alighted kept the party covered, they were ordered to get back into their automobile and head tack for Ossining. The third man kept the engine of the raiding car running and a moment after the victims had started northward they heard the highwaymen speeding in the opposite direction.

Milk Driver Next Held Up.

Long before Sovel and his friends had reached the Ossining police to recount their adventure the robbers had found a second victim when they came upon William Campbell, a driver for Borden's Farm Products Company, whose wagon stood before the estate of William Rockefeller. Campbell, confronted by the levelled pistols of the two who again descended from their car, readily surrendered $1 and his watch and chain. But with this the highwaymen were not satisfied. They compelled Campbell to hand over a leather lined vest he wore against the cold of country roads.

The robbers once more started toward New York. They got as far as the Gould-Shepard place, when they came upon a stalled car. In it were Kenneth Peck, son of a Mount Vernon banker; Vaughan Connell, a bank clerk of Clay Avenue, Pelham Manor; Russell Dean, and George Watts, son of Robert Watts of Mount Vernon. With the young men were four young women, whose names were not disclosed. They were returning from a party at Pelham Manor.

The marauders' car made a third quick stop, and the two men, with their pistols, faced the young people, some of whom stood in the road tinkering with a balky engine.

Connell and Dean tried to resist the command to hand over their valuables and the robbers opened fire. None of their four shots took effect and they closed with the young fellows. One struck Watts in the stomach with his fist and Watts fell.

"I heard them quarreling as to which one shot me," he told the police later. "They thought I had been killed and I lay still for fear they would attack me again."

With Watts disposed of, the men turned to Connell. One struck him with his fist, the other with a pistol butt, cutting his lip, knocking out several teeth and almost breaking his jaw. One of the women leaned from the car and screamed and a robber's blow sent her toppling back into the tonneau. Two of the women fainted.

The highwaymen collected cash, jewelry and furs and put on all speed toward New York. A few minutes later Peck and his companions reached Irvington, where they reported their losses and got medical attention for Connell.

Auction Room Murder Baffling.

Attempts to trace the four boy robbers who attempted to hold up the auction shop of Henry Young, 237 East Forty-second Street, Saturday, shooting the proprietor five times and killing his friend, Emanuel Shields, of 76 Audubon Avenue, produced only one more witness to the bandits' flight. Like the survivors of the fight in the auction store, he was able to give merely a meagre description of the gunmen and their auto.

According to this witness, whose name was withheld, the bandit car was "brown and white," and appeared to be a taxicab. Individual owners have used taxicabs of this description, and cars of that color also are operated by a taxicab corporation. With the aid of that company the police began a systematic checking of the corporation's cabs and chauffeurs in active service that night.

"I was passing the store, but heard no shots," the police informant said. "I saw four boys run across the street toward Second Avenue. Then some one blew a police whistle. Two of the youths got into an auto, waiting at Forty-second Street and Second Avenue, and not on Forty-second Street as first reported. Two others ran south on Second Avenue, the auto following, and all disappeared into Forty-first Street, going west. I was unable to get the number of the car."

Young, following an operation, was surviving late last night. Although one of the first of the seven in the store to resist the hold-up, he told a detective the battle was so swift that he could not obtain a description of the assailants, except that they "were young men, about 18 to 20 years old."

Because the murderers failed to take a diamond from Shields's tie as he lay dead, the police asked Young if he had had trouble with any one recently which might account for a grudge attack, but he could recall none. The theory then was advanced that at least one member of the gang resided in the locality and knew of the private card game in the shop each week. Under this theory the hold-up was planned to get the money of the players.

Crowd Scattered by Murder.

Throngs of men, women and children were startled by revolver shots on Elizabeth Street yesterday afternoon. They fled. When the police arrived they found a man dead on the sidewalk in front of 245 Elizabeth, between Prince and East Houston Streets. Four bullets had been fired into his back. Papers in his clothing bore the name of Angelo Parpricole, grocer, 324 East Thirty-ninth Street.

Reserves and detectives could find no one to admit he had seen the murderer or had heard the shots. A revolver was found in the rear yard of 245 Elizabeth Street. The police decided the grocer had been ambushed from the hall of this house, and that the weapon had been thrown away or lost when the murderer got over a fence to a Mott Street tenement. Parpricole had had a pistol permit dated 1920, but no weapon was found on his body.

Magistrate Levine, in the Washington Heights Court, held William Braun, 33, a shipping clerk of 210 West 148th Street, in bail of $3,000 on a charge of felonious assault, pending examination tomorrow. The police charged that Braun had shot a fellow boarder, Herman Waldmar, who is in the Harlem Hospital with a wound in his shoulder. Braun had a permit to carry a revolver.

On charges of suspicion of attempted robbery Peter Ruddy, 23, and Michael McLaughlin, 21, of 82 Third Avenue, were held in bail of $10,000 each in the Yorkville Court, for examination tomorrow. An accidental discharge of a revolver led detectives to the men's room. It was said, where a bag of clothing and jewelry was found.

CHAUFFEUR IS HELD AS EXPRESS THIEF

After a wait of several hours for a gang that has been looting an American Railway Express depot at 123d Street and St. Nicholas Avenue, detectives at midnight arrested a chauffeur who drove away at breakneck pace with three cases of eggs in his taxicab. He was arrested after a zigzag chase of about ten blocks through Harlem.

The chauffeur denied that he had stolen the eggs from the depot, although detectives took up the chase as he emerged from the building, and asserted that he had never before been near the place. Despite these denials he was held on a charge of grand larceny. He described himself as James McGann of 2,464 Eighth Avenue.

Deciding to stop thefts of silks, shoes and other valuable packages from the depot while the greater part of the working force was away on Sunday, the express company yesterday sent three detectives to the buildings. They chartered an automobile and awaited developments. They were accompanied by two detectives from the West 123d Street Station.

Seeing that he was pursued, McGann abandoned his taxicab at 121st Street and Eighth Avenue and ran toward the Sixth Avenue elevated station at 125th Street. The detectives drew their pistols, but did not shoot because they were able to outrun the chauffeur. He said he owned the taxicab, but couldn't give a satisfactory explanation of the eggs.

MYSTERY IN DEATH OF BOY CHOIR SINGER

MURDERED, FATHER SAYS

Believes Richmond Hill Youth Was Victim of Hold-Up Men—Burns Found in Mouth.

The body of Kermit Engelhart, 18 years old, choir singer in the Richmond Hill Baptist Church, was found early yesterday morning between the tracks of the Long Island Railroad beneath a bridge in Forest Park, and the boy's father and the police disagree regarding the manner in which he met his death. The father, Julius Engelhart, told Assistant District Attorney Frank E. Phillips of Queens that he was sure his son had been blackjacked and murdered. The police expressed belief that the youth committed suicide.

The body was discovered by Edwin Baldwin, engineer of a freight train bound for Jamaica, at 1 o'clock. Baldwin stopped his engine within a few feet of it. He said his train did not touch the body and expressed the opinion that it had not been struck by a train. There were fractures of the skull, spine, right arm and three ribs, the right lung was punctured, and there were bruises and cuts about the head, face and hands.

Engelhart, who lived with his parents at 11,207 Ninety-first Street, Richmond Hill, was a mechanic in the Cadillac Motor Company's Brooklyn shop. On Saturday he worked on repairs to a car in the garage of Albert Corby in Diamond Avenue, Richmond Hill, but at dusk had not succeeded in making the machine go. The police advanced the theory that, becoming discouraged at his failure to complete his task as soon as he expected, he drank some acid and threw himself from the bridge, falling about twenty feet. They found burns in his mouth, they said, and in this they were corroborated by Dr. Calicchio of St. Mary's Hospital, Jamaica, who examined the body.

Dr. Howard W. Neail, Medical Examiner for Queens, performed an autopsy and sent the stomach and other organs to a chemist for examination.

Julius Engelhart, the father, scouted the suicide theory. He said his son had not the slightest reason for wishing to take his life and that he was as cheerful as usual Saturday evening when he left to take his accustomed evening walk in Forest Park. Mr. Corby said that the boy did not seem vexed because of his failure to make the machine work, and left with the promise to return and "get her going" on Monday.

Mr. Engelhart admitted that when his son left home in the evening he made a remark about getting something to clean stains from his clothing, but no bottle was found near the body, nor was any druggist found who had sold any kind of poison to the boy.

Kermit was rather shy, his father said, usually preferring to take long walks by himself at night to mixing much with other persons. He was especially interested in the Sunday school and the choir.

"I had warned him repeatedly," Mr. Engelhart told Assistant District Attorney Phillips, "that wandering in Forest Park at night was dangerous and that he might meet with hold-up men, but he always laughed. He was to have gone with us to a church dinner Saturday evening, but did not appear because he was detained at work, and when we returned early we found him preparing his own supper.

"I warned him again on Saturday night as he was going out that he must look out for thugs. He laughed and said he could take care of himself."

It was at first believed the boy had been robbed when only 21 cents was found in his pockets, but later it was discovered that he had left his pocketbook at home. The father said the youth was in no sort of trouble, had no love affair, and no worries to cause depression.

WOMAN MURDER COUNSEL.

Mrs. Maley Will Defend Prisoner in Policeman Ritter Case.

HACKENSACK, N. J., Jan. 23.—A woman will represent a man charged with murder tomorrow when William Gleason, 25 years of age, of 109 East 127th Street, Manhattan, is brought before Supreme Court Justice Black here to stand trial for the murder of Policeman John Ritter of Ridgefield Park, on Sept. 7, 1920. At the same time it is planned to try Cy Oberson of Ridgefield Park for the same crime. Both men were indicted for the murder of the officer. George Duncan of 507 Tenth Avenue, Manhattan, is a material witness in the case.

Mrs. Maley, who is the wife of United States Commissioner Maley, was formerly Miss Augusta E. Arnheim of New York City, and studied law in her husband's office here. She was admitted to the bar in 1917.

MONTREAL FOOD RIOTS END.

Arrested Men Freed and Groceries Distributed to Destitute.

MONTREAL, Jan. 23.—Sunday passed here without a recurrence of the food riots by former soldiers and the unemployed. Three ex-soldiers arrested as the alleged leaders in the raids on restaurants, have been freed on bail or suspended sentences.

Announcement by the Director of Public Safety that the former Service Men's Association would be closed was met with appeals from the men for leniency. In the meantime, groceries are being distributed among destitute married men.

DRY ARREST AT BEAUX ARTS.

Prohibition Agents Hold Head Waiter for Volstead Violation.

Wearing garments which they had purchased especially for their work in exclusive restaurants, Isadore Einstein, Moe Smith and Herman Writtenberg, who compose Federal Supervising Prohibition Agent Daniel J. Chapin's "Flying Squadron," dined last evening at the Beaux Arts Cabaret and Restaurant at Sixth Avenue and Fortieth Street. Scores of fashionably dressed men and women were having dinner at the same hour.

During the meal, according to the prohibition agents, they gained the confidence of the head waiter, Alfred Baranzelli of 257 West Thirty-sixth Street. Through constant practice during the last few weeks the agents had become accustomed to their "fine clothes," said Einstein, and were so much at ease while dining that no one suspected their identity.

Just before leaving the table, the agents say they ordered and were served with a half pint of whisky in a bottle labeled "White Rock Water," for which they paid $5. As soon as the "water" was delivered and the transaction completed, the head waiter was placed under arrest on a charge of violating the Volstead act. Everything was done so quietly that the other diners had no knowledge of what had happened.

Baranzelli was taken to the West Thirtieth Street Police Station. This was said to be the first arrest of any one connected with the Beaux Arts Restaurant on a charge of this kind.

CAN CLEAN UP LIQUOR CASES

Wheeler Says Volstead Act Provides Remedy for Present Congestion.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 23.—Wayne B. Wheeler, general counsel for the Anti-Saloon League, asserted today that there was a way provided in the Volstead act to relieve the congestion of liquor cases in the Federal Courts, which is causing comment at this time. This relief is found in the liquor abatement and equity proceedings in Sections 21 to 24 of the law.

"These sections," said Mr. Wheeler, "provide for a temporary injuction on presentation of an affidavit to the court that liquor is illegally sold or made. A temporary injunction is granted and the liquor dealer restrained from continuing or interfering with the liquor or property unlawfully used. On final decree the place may be closed for one year.

"The violation of the order, temporary or permanent," said Mr. Wheeler, "subjects the liquor dealer to a fine of $500 to $1,000 and from three months to twelve months in jail. The Attorney General of Illinois has recently brought more than 200 of these cases in the Federal Courts in Chicago. For temporary injunctions more than fifty have been granted by a Judge in one day. These are disposed of quickly without an indictment, injunction or jury.

"If the United States District Attorneys and Judges whose court dockets are crowded will use this effective provision, the congestion of liquor cases on the docket will soon disappear. Judge Landis recently gave one liquor dealer $1,000 and one year in jail for violating his court order under a temporary injunction for selling liquor. A little more backbone on the bench and the United States District Attorneys' offices in some quarters will clear up the crowded dockets."

SEIZE $59,000 IN WHISKY.

Dry Agents Find 35 Barrels Hidden in Oxford, Mass.

OXFORD, Mass., Jan. 23.—One of the biggest whisky hauls in this State since the Volstead act was put into effect was made here at 10 o'clock tonight, when Federal officers, assisted by local constables, raided the old "Peter Kidder place," owned and occupied by John Malkowoski, a farmer, and seized thirty-five barrels of liquor valued at $59,000.

The cache for the whisky was a shed in the rear of the farmhouse. The officers found the door of the shed unlocked. Up to a late hour the officers were making a vigorous search of the premises to find five more barrels that were said to have belonged to the consignment.

Malkowoski, who was arrested, was taken to Boston tonight by the Federal officers. He denied ownership of the whisky, declaring a stranger came to his house Friday night and, saying his truck had broken down, asked him if he could leave his cargo in the farmer's shed, to which Malkowoski said he gave assent. The owner of the whisky, according to the farmer, said he would return for it in a couple of days.

The raiding Federal officers were John L. O'Donnell, Joseph Gaughen, George L. Cameron and Herbert W. Bemis.

HOME BREWERS SAFE.

Prohibition Forces Lack Agents Sufficient to Suppress Them.

CHICAGO, Jan. 23.—Home brewers will not be disturbed for the present, despite recent Government announcements that they would be prosecuted vigorously, Frank D. Richardson, Prohibition Director for the Central States, said tonight on his return from Washington, where he conferred with Frank Kramer, Federal Prohibition Director, and other officials.

"No sanction has been given home brewing," said Mr. Richardson, "but it is evident that to suppress the home stills a force many times as large as that available would be necessary, not only here, but all over the country. So the officials here decided to pass up the home brewers for the time being, and go after the bigger law violators."

Mr. Richardson predicted a wholesale shake-up in the prohibition department of the central division States, Illinois, Indiana, Wisconsin and Michigan, and announced that a special detail from Washington, under command of Colonel L. G. Nutt, would reach here tomorrow prepared to begin an intensive prohibition enforcement campaign.

DETROIT RUM RUNNER SHOT.

Fatally Wounded as He Flees From Police Officers.

DETROIT, Jan. 23.—The first fatality in the Detroit Police Department's war on rum runners occurred today when Harry Sleizinger of this city died in hospital from wounds sustained early this morning, when he is said to have been fired upon by John R. McDonald, an officer of the State Food and Drug Department.

Sleizinger jumped from an automobile that McDonald and police officers had halted and was shot in the head as he ran from the scene, according to police reports. A quantity of liquor is said to have been found by the police in the automobile.

COLORED HAIR AS DISGUISE.

Woman Used Various Shades in Pawning Stolen Articles.

BALTIMORE, Jan. 23.—Mrs. Helen L. Wilder tinted her hair a different color each time she visited pawnshops to dispose of stolen articles valued at thousands of dollars, according to information obtained by the police today. Mrs. Wilder and her husband, Carl L. Wilder, and William Braid of London are charged with many robberies.

Wilder has confessed, implicating his wife, and her makeup outfit has been found. In the kit was a jar of reddish brown powder. In their visits to the pawnshops the police received various descriptions of the woman who pawned the jewelry. She was described as black-haired, dark brown haired, light brown haired and red-haired.

UNION BACKS 24 MEN ACCUSED OF MURDER

United Miners Announce They Will Come to Defense of Workers in Mingo County.

GREEN ASSAILS OPERATORS

Says Strikers Are Trying to Rid Themselves of Peonage System That Has No Place in America.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 23. — William Green, National Secretary and Treasurer of the United Mine Workers of America, issued a statement tonight in which he asserted that his organization will give its complete support, moral and material, to the 24 mountaineers who are to be placed on trial at Williamson, W. Va., Wednesday on charges of first degree murder.

Among the defendants will be Sid Hatfield, a descendant of one of the families involved in the Hatfield-McCoy feuds in West Virginia. Other defendants include some of the special police deputies of Matewan, W. Va., and members of the miners union. The trial grows out of the mine war in Mingo County, W. Va., which resulted in a gun battle in the main street of Matewan, on May 19, 1920, involving ten deaths, including those of the Mayor of the town and of seven Baldwin Felts detectives. The fight is declared to have resulted in an attempt by the guards to arrest Sid Hatfield, who was then serving as Chief of Police of Matewan.

"The United Mine Workers of America," Mr. Green declared, "are prepared to afford full support, both moral and material, to the twenty-four defendants in the murder trial at Williamson, W. Va., this week. This trial is a direct result of the barbarous warfare waged on members of the United Mine Workers by the coal operators of Mingo County. And, so long as lives of members of our organization are at stake, we intend to put at their disposal every means for establishing their innocence of the charge. The court, of course, will determine their fate. But we will offer the defense every facility in our power.

"The United Mine Workers are determined to see justice done to locked-out miners of Mingo County. These men and their families were evicted from their homes for the 'crime' of joining the union. The operators employed professional gunmen to hasten the eviction. We are insistent that the use of gunmen in West Virginia mining areas shall cease. It is time that a republican form of government, as ordained by the Constitution, should be restored in Mingo County and the arbitrary rule of the coal barons be brought to an end.

"Today there are many of these evicted miners and their families living in tents on the bare ridges of Mingo. They are enduring hardships unparalleled in the history of American industrial warfare. But they will not return until the operators recognize the Government-proclaimed principle of collective bargaining. The organization is supplying them with food and clothing, but is helpless to abate in any great degree the rigors of Winter in the tent colonies.

"Aggressive action against the rule of coal operators of Mingo County, W. Va., and the Birmingham district of Alabama is now contemplated. The time has come for a showdown, and we intend to force it. The situation in both areas has nothing in common with the average industrial dispute elsewhere in this country. In both districts it is a case of workers endeavoring to free themselves from a system of peonage that has no place under our form of Government."

SAYS MEN ARE ARMED IN MINGO COAL MINE

Union Leader Protests Against Alleged Carrying of Weapons by Unauthorized Persons.

WILLIAMSON, W. Va., Jan. 23.—Protest was made today against the alleged possession of arms by others than regularly constituted authorities about the plant of the Williamson Fuel Company to Judge Robert D. Bailey of the Mingo Circuit Court and to Colonel Herman Hall, commanding Federal troops in the Tug River strike district by David Robb, union leader.

Colonel Hall and Judge Bailey declared the matter was under advisement and Sheriff A. C. Pinson declined to make a statement.

Explaining his action, Mr. Robb, active head of the United Mine Workers, said that he had protested about the presence of men at the plant being armed. At the office of the Williamson Coal Operators' Association it was said that Superintendent T. A. Hutty of the mine had assured the authorities that he had no knowledge of any of the men under him being armed.

The Williamson mine resumed operations soon after the Federal troops came into the field last November. Shots were fired into the power house Jan. 14 and again on Jan. 19, despite the fact that the mine was guarded by a detail of soldiers. There were no casualties in either instance.

BERATES MISS MORGAN.

Minister Says She Degraded Womanhood in Aiding Charity Fight.

Special to The New York Times.

PITTSBURGH, Jan. 23.—Dr. Daniel L. Marsh in a question box talk in the Smithfield Street Methodist Episcopal Church tonight assailed Miss Anne Morgan for promoting the recent Leonard-Mitchell fight to raise funds for devastated France. The minister called her a "big, coarse, mannish woman, possessed of a lot of money." The fight he called a "national degradation."

"It is a degradation of a worthy cause," he continued. "America has been and is still responsive to every noble appeal in the name of charity, and to say that this thing in New York was done for charity's sake is a lie as vicious as the act itself.

"That fight was a national degradation. It was revolting and disgusting in the extreme to read accounts of it in the newspapers. It was a degradation of physical prowess to have two men pummel each other until they looked like sick cats that had been put through some automatic potato peeler in the workhouse. It was a degradation to the womanhood of America to think that Anne Morgan would degrade herself into auctioning off seats for a prizefight."

MICHIGAN STUDENT IS SHOT.

He Is Seriously Wounded When Police Try to Arrest Five Youths.

ANN ARBOR, Mich., Jan. 23.—August C. Meuhlhauser of Sandusky, Ohio, sophomore student at the University of Michigan, was shot and seriously wounded here early today during an altercation with two local policemen.

The policemen were sent to arrest five university students, one of whom was Meuhlhauser, who were alleged to have been disorderly. Three of the students ran and Robert Clark, one of the policemen, fired several shots, it is alleged. Meuhlhauser fell with a bullet in his back.

Clark, who was suspended from the police force following the shooting, stated he intended to shoot into the air.

Officials of the University Hospital, where Meuhlhauser was taken, stated he had a chance to recover.

RAID CHINESE LAUNDRY, GET OPIUM, SAY AGENTS

Customs Men Arrest Four and Seize Four Smoking Outfits in Brooklyn.

After investigating numerous complaints, Customs Agents Michael Collins and Casimo Ravalli raided a Chinese laundry at 3,931 New Utrecht Avenue last night, in the Borough Park section of Brooklyn, and arrested four Chinese, including the alleged proprietor. They also confiscated four opium "layouts," they say, in addition to a quantity of opium and some pipes which they found hidden under washtubs and in closets. They believe many Chinese in Brooklyn had been able to get supplies of opium from the store where the raid occurred.

The place had been under surveillance for several days and last night the detectives broke into the store, after stationing some men in front of the building. They say they had to use revolvers in making the arrests.

The Chinese were taken to the Fourth Avenue Police Station, with the paraphernalia, and will be arraigned in court this morning to answer a charge of having opium in their possession.

KILLS WOMAN AND HIMSELF.

Carpenter Deserts Wife, Cuts Companion's Throat, Dies by Gas.

Edward Johnson, 47 years old, a carpenter, and Josephine Murphy, 35 years old, of 431 East 122d Street, were found dead yesterday in a room in Mrs. Anna Boehm's lodging house at 231 East 126th Street. Johnson had cut his companion's throat and then turned on a gas jet in the room. An empty bottle, labelled "medicated alcohol," was on a table.

Mrs. Johnson, wife of the carpenter, told the police that her husband became infatuated with Miss Murphy recently and squandered his wages, and the wife had been going out to work to support her two children. On Nov. 9, 1920, he was taken to the Harlem Hospital after he attempted to cut his throat. Mrs. Johnson called at his lodgings, which were then at 162 East 128th Street, and paid his rent. She met Miss Murphy on that occasion, and so was able to identify her yesterday.

In Johnson's hand was found the shoemaker's knife with which he failed to take his life two months ago and which he used successfully yesterday in murdering his companion. The couple were found by Patrolman McGowan of the East 126th Street station, who broke down the door when Mrs. Boehm traced the smell of gas to the room occupied by the pair.

HEIR FACES TWO CHARGES.

Is Accused of Sullivan Law Violation and Perjury.

Because of the memory of a Queens detective, George Henry Loeffler, 19 years old, of 8,664 108th Street, Richmond Hill, heir to $500,000, is facing a charge of perjury and of Sullivan law violation.

Loeffler was defeated two weeks ago in an annulment suit he brought against his wife. At the trial he gave his age as 19 and said the marriage took place in December, 1916, when he was 15 years old, according to Detective Charles Krummel of the Richmond Hill Station.

Applying for a pistol permit at the Richmond Hill Station, Loeffler gave his age at 21. Krummel said Loeffler admitted that he was but 19.

Loeffler was admitted to bail pending his arraignment in the Jamaica Police Court on Tuesday.

CLEAR UP CHICAGO CRIMES.

Residents Identify Murderers and Bandits in Many Hold-Ups.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Jan. 23.—One murder, the shooting of a policeman, four store holdups, and nearly forty street holdups were cleared up today by the police. All day victims of criminals passed through the Detective Bureau and outlying stations making identifications among the 200 men held as suspicious persons.

John Deuben and August Benson were positively identified by four persons as the men who murdered Paul J. Loberg in his jewelry store on Dec. 22, after unsuccessfully attempting to rob him. Deuben was also identified as an automobile thief and as one of three bandits who robbed a fur shop on Jan. 14 and escaped with $8,000 in furs.

Nick Perre and George Chimenti were identified as the men who shot policeman Andrew Creagh Saturday when he defeated their attempt to rob a messenger of the $5,500 payroll of the Henry Shepard Printing Company.

A gang of six was identified by victims of twenty-two recent outrages. They confessed to seventeen of the crimes.

SEEK HAND OF KYLE IN OLD MAIL THEFT

STOLE $17,000 A YEAR AGO

Daughter Pleads With Prisoner in Jail to Tell "Everything" for Family's Sake.

Special to The New York Times.

MOUNT VERNON, Ill., Jan. 23.—Postal Inspector Hitchcock and his investigators centred their efforts today in attempting to prove that Guy Kyle, ex-Free Methodist preacher and mail robber, has been concerned in other mail thefts besides the $212,000 robbery here in which he has confessed complicity. They took the tools found in Kyles's garage to their office and began another check which may connect Kyle with the theft a year ago of $17,000 in cash and securities from a mail sack. Inspector Rider, one of the officers who helped discover this plunder, knows the tools well. He put marks on them after they had been taken from a gang convicted of bank and post office robberies throughout Southern Illinois. He sent them through the mails from St. Louis to Inspector Hitchcock in Mount Vernon to be used as evidence in the trial of the band. They were stolen before they reached Hitchcock and have now appeared in Kyle's possession.

"Kyle says he bought them," said Inspector Hitchcock, "but investigation may bring out a curious phase. It is too early now to commit ourselves on the new lead."

"I can't help much in this new investigation," said Lorin Williamson, the partner who reported discovery of the stolen money a week ago, and is now accused by Kyle, "except that he seemed to have money. He led me to believe last October, when I entered partnership with him in the automobile business, that he had plenty of money, and since his arrest I find he has ordered huge shipments of goods in the last few months. He asked me many times about the movements of mail at the Post Office, and used to get up about 4:30 every morning. No one knew what he did in those early hours. You may remember that last December, about the time the payroll money for the mines was due to come through, a mail sack disappeared from the mail wagon. It contained only letters, however, and has never been traced."

Officers are now working on the theory that Kyle had a hand in the disappearance of that sack and may have been concerned in payroll lifting for the last few years.

It is understood that the Inspectors are planning to recall Kyle for examination in the presence of his wife. It was only after his wife pleaded with him to tell the whole truth that he made his first confession.

"Nothing must be withheld," she said this morning. "A wrong can never be righted by concealing it. My man knows that his family loves him and will wait for him to pay the penalty of his act."

A church bell breaking the absolute calm that ruled Mount Vernon on a Sunday morning seemed to shatter today for the first time the calmness of Guy Kyle, minister and mail robber. The bell roused him in his cell and he pleaded with Sheriff Irvin to allow his daughter May to visit him.

"Brothers," he said, while waiting for the girl to come to the jail, "the laws of man can now punish me for my guilt in trying to hide this stolen fortune. I hope to settle my guilt with the Lord when this is all over."

"Leave religion out of this," advised the Sheriff. "Your duty is now simple. All you have to do is to tell us the entire truth about the mail robbery and who else is guilty. You can't shoulder guilt either on your partner or your maker."

Kyle protested again that he had told the truth in his confession yesterday.

His daughter May broke down when she reached the jail.

"Daddy," she sobbed, "they are all talking about me and mother in this town. They always will talk about us and, oh, we couldn't help your taking the money. We didn't want it. Tell them everything and then maybe we can stand it to have all these people talk about us."

$50,000 CLEVELAND THEFT.

J. L. Severance Is Robbed of Jewels as He Leaves for California.

CLEVELAND, Jan. 23.—Police tonight are searching for jewels valued at upward of $50,000 belonging to John L. Severance of this city, which were lost or stolen last night. The jewels disappeared in a bag at the Union Station here or on a New York Central train between here and Sandusky.

Mr. Severance, after telegraphing Warren J. Brodie, his private secretary here, of his loss, continued with Mrs. Severance to their winter home at Pasadena, Cal. No description of the jewels was given in the telegram.

of the committee and urged that it be continued and additional powers be granted to it.

As the membership of the State board included many of the members of the Real Estate Board of New York City, an effort was made to learn of the possible reason for the local body's action. It was learned that recently a questionnaire was sent out by the Lockwood Committee to the owners of the principal office and loft buildings in this city requiring them to furnish the committee copies of their balance sheets and statements that will show the extent to which they have been increasing rents. This request is said to be feared by the real estate interests as a forerunner of a recommendation by the committee to include offices and loft buildings in the existing laws against rent profiteering which now apply only to residential properties.

A reference to the 1921 manual issued by the Real Estate Board of this city discloses that among its present Board of Governors are many men connected with great financial institutions who would be directly affected by an inquiry into rent profiteering in office and loft property.

Lockwood to Fight for More Power.

The resolution broadening the powers of the Lockwood Committee will be taken up by the Joint Finance Committee of the Legislature tomorrow night and the earliest it may be reported to the members of the two houses will be Wednesday. Senator C. C. Lockwood will fight to the last ditch to have the resolution go through without emasculation.

The Brooklyn Real Estate Board is in favor of giving the Lockwood committee additional powers. William Raymond Burling, its President, issued a statement yesterday in which he said in part:

"It is the judgment of this board that the investigation of labor and the building trades which the Lockwood committee has been doing has resulted in much good and is of the utmost value to the city and particularly to the owners of real property.

"Any objection to the committee continuing their investigation along similar lines can only be opposed on the theory that the light of publicity might cause embarrassment and possibly show up conditions which the public have little, if any, idea exist. Perhaps results will be obtained which will be of greater value in helping to relieve the present situation.

"It would be as unfair to presume at this time that all sources of mortgage money were not doing their best to help the present situation as it would be to presume that all builders and leaders of labor were guilty because some few have been indicted.

"If those institutions which are the major source of mortgage money in this State are all playing fair with the people then there should be no reasonable objection on their part to having this condition shown to the public and possibly greater faith in them restored.

"The Brooklyn Real Estate Board, in view of these facts and giving the utmost consideration to all points thereon, are in favor of the Legislature granting additional powers to the Lockwood committee to permit a continuance of their investigation."

ANOTHER CAPTAIN FACING INDICTMENT

Commissioner himself. This was so with the Strong investigation into charities in this city under the Mitchel Administration. In spite of the work and ability spent on it, the report practically went into the waste basket.

"The legislative committee makes a number of legislators thoroughly familiar with the structure of the Government, with the charter weaknesses and with mismanagement or wrongdoing by individuals. They are able later to put the motive power behind constructive legislation.

"But I don't think the time is quite ripe yet to determine whether the Legislature ought to go ahead, with the question of the Lockwood committee still undecided and the Whitman investigation in its early stages.

Doesn't Favor Muckraking.

"Personally, I think there is ample evidence of corruption in some city departments, but I am not in favor of a mere muckraking expedition. Sending a few men to jail doesn't answer the purpose.

"There is overwhelming evidence of inefficiency and waste in the Street Cleaning Department, for instance in the handling of snow removal last Winter. The same condition exists in some of the other departments. I am not ready to go into details as yet, however."

Senator Meyer said that his bill called for an investigation of District Attorney Swann's office, but that he did not care to express his opinion about the work of that official at present.

Mr. Whitman hinted at the possibility of "sensational" developments this week in an address yesterday afternoon before the West Side Y. M. C. A., but he said also:

"We have not the worst government in the world. It isn't true that human life isn't safe on our streets.

"A man from up the State told me the other day that he hesitated to come to New York, from what he had read, because he was afraid he would be shot in the streets. I have heard those things a great many times."

The ex-Governor spoke, however, of the tendency of the city to fall backward at high speed after a reform wave.

"In order to accomplish any real good," he said, "we must first let the public, if we can, know what the trouble is. That is about all you can do. Sometimes it has been done in New York and splendid reforms have resulted. Sometimes it has been done and followed only by the application of temporary panaceas.

Says the People Forget.

"After two or three or four years the good work may be largely undone. Oh, how quickly people forget and let the conditions return which people of times gone by have spent their lives to remove!"

The city Government, he said, was the people's creature and reflected the quality of public spirit and eagerness or indifference to good government which prevailed among the people themselves. He compared the public which is satisfied with bad government to the audiences which buy the tickets and cause immoral plays to flourish.

"I do know this," he added, "that if the administration of various offices and departments in this city is such as to cause great concern—if that condition continues indefinitely—it is not the fault of any one man, or any group of men, or any political organization, but the fault of the people themselves, who get just what they want in the end."

His only reference to his own investigation was the following:

"But, whatever may result in this city in the next few weeks, or whether anything startling is developed, it will amount to little, if the people do not take hold. Conditions in this city are going to be what you make them."

Arguing that the improvement of conditions was steady, though it followed a zigzag course, Mr. Whitman produced a report on moral conditions in New York City in 1806 which followed a survey conducted at that time by an organization of churches. The report described the wildest of wide-open towns.

"Whole neighborhoods," said one section, "are reduced by intemperance to beggarly wretchedness."

New York then had a population of 120,000, but had more than 600 saloons, or one for every 200 persons. There would thus be more than 30,000 saloons here today if conditions of 115 years ago could be restored.

"Houses are crowded with from four to twelve families," said the report on one section of the city, "and often two or three or sometimes four families in one room, and those of all colors, with all the evidence of immorality which such overcrowding tends to produce."

There was more dissatisfaction among church people with the Sunday observance then than now, judging from the 1806 report, which said:

"The Sabbath is a day of idleness, recreation and drunkenness."

The investigators of 1806 found twenty dives in a space "between twenty and thirty rods," and the grated window of each had "The Way to Hell" inscribed on it in glaring letters.

CALL PERLEY MORSE IN SHIPPING INQUIRY

Auditor, Not a Voluntary Witness, Will Be Asked About $260,000 Schwab Voucher.

REFUSES TO DISCUSS CASE

Says Several Trunks Full of Records Will Be Available If They Are Needed.

Perley Morse will be a witness this morning before the Congressional Committee on United States Shipping Board operations. He is head of Perley Morse & Co., whose audit of the Bethlehem Shipbuilding Corporation's books disclosed, according to Colonel Eugene H. Abadie, a voucher for $260,000 for Charles M. Schwab's personal expenses for October, 1918.

Mr. Morse told a NEW YORK TIMES reporter last night he would not be a voluntary witness.

"The committee," he said, "has requested me to appear. I have not been served with a subpoena, but to save unnecessary trouble I agreed to be present. I shall insist, however, that a subpoena be served before I take the stand."

Mr. Morse declined to discuss any specific phases of the transactions covered by his audit, or to indicate in a general way the scope or results of the audit.

"It would be discourteous for me to make any statement or to answer any questions at this time," he said. "I will be prepared tomorrow to submit figures and facts regarding any points connected with the audit. I have notified the accountants in charge of the audit to be at the Hotel Pennsylvania tomorrow, and I have arranged to have brought there all the records I believe will be needed. This audit has already taken about a year, and there are several trunks full of records, although I do not believe all of them will be of interest to the committee. Nevertheless, they are available."

Mr. Morse said he could not talk about the alleged Schwab voucher until he had appeared before the committee, but he would be willing, after having testified, to clear up any points not elucidated during his examination. Mr. Schwab, testifying on Friday, emphatically denied that such a voucher had been charged against the Government, or that he had received any pay for his services as Director General of the Emergency Fleet Corporation.

Asked about his statement in a telegram to John Barton Payne, former Chairman of the Shipping Board, that his investigation had developed "startling disclosures," and Colonel Abadie's testimony that "more interesting revelations have arisen since April 1, the date of my resignation," Mr. Morse said:

"If the committee wants to go into other things besides the voucher, I shall be perfectly willing to talk about them. I will not talk generally, however. My answers will be figures and facts."

Mr. Morse was asked exactly what organizations his audit covered.

"I can't go into that," he said, "without getting into matters that, I feel, it would be discourteous to the committee for me to discuss."

Mr. Morse added that his only knowledge of what had developed at the hearing was obtained from newspapers. He had been out of the city since Friday, when he went to his country home in Suffern. He had returned last night to The National Republican Club, 54 West Fortieth Street, his home when in the city.

Congressman Joseph Walsh, Chairman of the Congressional Committee, and the other members returned from Washington last night. The committee went to Washington Friday to take the testimony of Charles E. Piez, former Chairman of the Shipping Board.

LISTENER CALLS HOWE 'LIAR'

Ex-Commissioner of Immigration Heckled During Speech on Ireland.

Frederic C. Howe, ex-Commissioner of Immigration at this port, a member of the Villard Committee of One Hundred on Ireland, discussed the Irish question at the Community Church Forum in the High School of Commerce last night on the basis of testimony given before the committee at Washington. Mr. Howe had high hopes for Irish freedom, asserting that, if Ireland did not win today, she would gain her liberty another day.

A statement by the speaker that Jews and Quakers had fled from England to the south and west of Ireland because of religious oppression was challenged by a man in the audience who caused a disturbance when he called Mr. Howe a liar. He repeated the epithet several times, as if it needed force. Mr. Howe said he resented the man's manner of declaring himself, and for a moment it looked as if the audience might adopt the suggestion of one man and "drive the impolite one from the hall."

"Ireland is a nation—economically, politically, judicially and essentially a nation," the speaker declared, after he had sketched briefly Ireland's history and the causes of the existence of the Irish question today. "She is developing a new culture, which under oppression is becoming something very fine. Her courts are operative and her de facto Government functions."

Touching on the religious side of the Irish question, Mr. Howe declared that this issue in Ireland was "manufactured by the interests." Some Irish clergymen, the Bishop of Cork in particular, he thought, were against Sinn Feinism because its keen desire for freedom speels something of a menace to the old kind of church.

CARNEGIE SCHOOLS FIND INCOME INADEQUATE

Survey Ordered to Devise Means For Meeting Deficit of Pittsburg Institutions.

Special to The New York Times.

PITTSBURGH, Jan. 23.—Experts tomorrow will begin a survey to devise means of meeting the financial emergency which faces the great institutions founded here by Andrew Carnegie, including the Carnegie Institute of Technology and the Carnegie Institute, with its fine arts department, museum, music hall and library school. In spite of the huge endowments bestowed upon these institutions by the steelmaster, a deficit has been piling up since the outbreak of the war.

For the last ten years Colonel Samuel H. Church, President of the Board of Trustees, said today, $1,000,000 has been expended annually in operating the Institute of Technology, and $400,000 in operating the other Carnegie activities combined in the Carnegie Institute. The institutions no longer can be conducted on this income from the funds established by Andrew Carnegie.

The Carnegie Corporation in New York, which has been making up deficits thus far, will co-operate with the Trustees in having the survey made. One member of the commission, J. C. Christensen of the University of Michigan has been making a preliminary investigation of the situation during the last week.

The four other members who will join him tomorrow are Harold H. Swift of Swift & Co., Chicago, Bank Director and Trustee of the University of Chicago; Dr. Frederick Ayer, Dean of the School of Engineering in the University of Akron and teacher of engineering in the University of Cincinnati, who will give advice in the technical departments; Dr. Samuel P. Capen, head of the United States Bureau of Education, and Dr. M. A. Bigelow, professor of biology and Director of the School of Practical Arts in Columbia University, who will review the plans for the education of women.

TO FIGHT REAPPORTIONMENT

Senators From States Losing Representatives Plan to Increase Number.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 23.—Senators from States which lose representatives in Congress under the Reapportionment bill passed by the House have combined with other Senators either to increase the representation or prevent action on the bill. Inasmuch as three-fourths of the State Legislatures are in session this Winter, it is probable that the Senate will not place itself in the position of defeating the bill by inaction, but will increase the number of members.

The reapportionment of legislative districts must be done by the State Legislatures, and unless such legislation is enacted this Winter the States cannot be re-districted in time for the Congressional elections in 1922.

The measure which passed the House, so amended as to keep the House membership in future at 435, the same as at present, is not acceptable to many States whose delegations are reduced by the increased ratio. Such large States as New York and Pennsylvania do not obtain an increased representation under the amended House bill, which fixes the ratio at 242,415 inhabitants, while California obtains an increase of three, Michigan and Ohio two each, while Connecticut, New Jersey, North Carolina, Texas and Washington gain one each. Under the same measure Missouri loses two members, and these ten States each lose a member: Indiana, Iowa, Kansas, Kentucky, Louisiana, Maine, Mississipi, Nebraska, Rhode Island and Vermont.

ARMOURS MAKE PROTEST.

Loss of New Zealand Business Charged to Federal Trade Report.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 23.—Charges that Armour & Co. were debarred from conducting an export business in New Zealand as a direct result of dissemination abroad through the State Department of the Federal Trade Commission's report on its investigation of the packing industry, were made in a statement issued here tonight by the Institute of American Meat Packers.

After erecting a large packing plant in New Zealand, the statement said, Armour & Co. were suddenly informed by the New Zealand Government that, as a result of its study of the official summary of the Federal Trade Commission's report, it could not permit the company to conduct an export business from that country. The statement quoted the following reply from the New Zealand Ministry of Agriculture, W. D. S. MacDonald, in response to an application from the company for a license to export meats:

"I regret to inform you that I cannot grant this license. This decision has been arrived at after the perusal of the official summary of the report of the Federal Trade Commission on the meat packing industry, appointed by the United States Government."

While it was true that the New Zealand Government had begun an investigation of American packing companies before the application for export license was made, the statement said, it is "equally true that the investigation was started about the time the Federal Trade Commission began its ex-parte investigation in this country, seeing to it that proper publicity appeared here and abroad even before it had started preparation of its report."

DENIES BRITAIN CONTROLS OUR SHIPS

President Franklin of I. M. M. Produces Evidence on Agreements Made.

100 PER CENT. AMERICAN

Quotes Letter Showing That Chairman Payne and Admiral Benson Knew of Terms.

On his return from Washington yesterday P. A. S. Franklin, President of the International Mercantile Marine Company, issued a statement on the company's agreements with the British Government, on which the company is to have a special hearing before the United States Shipping Board on Jan. 27.

After stating that ships under the American flag are not subject to the agreements nor affected by them in any particular, as charged by Senator Wesley Jones of Washington, Mr. Franklin proceeded to show, by documentary evidence, that Judge Payne knew of the agreements when chairman of the Shipping Board; that he afterward endorsed the Americanization of the company, and that the attention of Admiral Benson had also been called by the company to the agreement. The statement by Mr. Franklin follows:

"I am very much surprised at the contents of the letter from Secretary John Barton Payne to Senator Jones, as published in the press, conveying the impression to the public that he had not seen the agreements between the company and the British Government, that were referred to in an attack of Senator Jones at the meeting of the National Merchant Marine Association on Jan. 20.

"The substance of these agreements was discussed by me with members of the Shipping Board at a meeting held on Nov. 13, 1919, and at the request of Judge Payne, the then Chairman of the board, I submitted copies of them to him in a leter dated Nov. 21, 1919, which reads as follows:

Nov. 21, 1919.

Hon. John Barton Payne, Chairman,
United States Shipping Board,
Washington, D. C.

Dear Sir—Referring to our recent conversation with regard to the status of the International Mercantile Marine Company and its various properties, at which I handed you a copy of the annual report of the company for 1918 that contains a chart showing its relations to the various subsidiary companies, I now enclose to you copies of the agreements with the British Government, dated Aug. 1, 1903; Oct. 1, 1910, and Sept. 2, 1919.

The last agreement was entered into for the purpose of bringing the subsidiary British companies into line with certain recent British regulations, which require that the management and control of the operations of a "foreign controlled" British company (that is, a company whose stock ownership is not in British subjects) shall be (except as regards the disposal of the profits of the company) in hands of British directors; and with the further object of securing treatment for them on a footing of equality with British steamship companies which are free from foreign control. This agreement, we consider, is very much to the company's advantage.

The International Mercantile Marine Company, so far as its British interests are concerned, is simply a holder of stocks in the British companies.

It was organized originally in 1893 under the laws of New Jersey, to own and operate American flag vessels, and continuously since that time has owned and operated such tonnage.

The purchase of the stocks of the large British companies was not made until 1902.

The company now operates and controls six American passenger steamers, which it owns, and five passenger and freight steamers of the Atlantic Transport Company of West Virginia, whose stock it owns, making a total aggregate American tonnage of 128,661 tons; also the steamers of the Red Star Line to Antwerp, owned by a subsidiary Belgian company, and a number of chartered and allocated American steamers.

Neither the British Government nor any other interest in England has any control over the International Mercantile Marine Company. The company is owned by American stockholders and managed and controlled by Directors selected by them. Our most recent stock list, made up within the last six months, shows more than 99 per cent. of the stock standing in the names of American stockholders. The company is, therefore, in the strictest sense, an American company, and anybody who may state anything to the contrary must be misinformed as to the facts. Yours very truly,

P. A. S. FRANKLIN.

"Judge Payne replied to that letter over his personal signature as follows:

United States Shipping Board,
Washington, Nov. 25, 1919.

Dear Mr. Franklin:

Thank you for yours of the 21st inst., enclosing copies of your agreements with the British Government dated Aug. 1, 1903, Oct. 1, 1910, and Sept. 2, 1919. Am glad to have these papers in our files. Yours very truly,

JOHN BARTON PAYNE,
Chairman.

P. A. S. Franklin, Esq., President, International Mercantile Marine Corporation.

"On Feb. 18, 1920, three months after the agreements had been submitted to him, Judge Payne testified before the Senate committee as follows:

"'Mr. Payne—Yes. Several months ago that charge was bruited about, and we wrote a letter to the International Mercantile Marine and stated that that charge had been made and that we insisted that they should come before the board and submit their documents and let the board decide whether that was in effect a 100 per cent. American company.

"'Mr. Franklin came in and brought and filed with the board—I do not remember the list of documents—but documents covering the subject, and this is the fact which developed: The International Mercantile Marine is an American corporation, is officered by Americans—I am not sure but what there is one Englishman on the board; it is listed on the Stock Exchange at New York, and is entirely controlled by Americans. It owns at least two British companies, which are subsidiary to the International.

"'Those companies are officered—at least the Directors are English—but they operate wholly from the English side. Our conclusion, therefore, was that there was no harm in an American company owning subsidiaries in Great Britain, and that the International Mercantile Marine Company was a 100 per cent. American company, and entitled to be regarded by the Shipping Board as such.'

"I was surprised when Admiral Benson stated that he had not heard of these documents, as on March 22, 1920, I wrote him as follows:

"'First—If you have any doubt about the Americanism of our company we respectfully request you to look over the documents which we filed with the Shipping Board in November, 1919, and if you wish any further explanation or information we will be glad to furnish same. Your predecessor after perusal of these documents stated officially and publicly that the International Mercantile Marine Company is 100 per cent. American.

"'We state, without fear of contradiction, that anybody who will go into the trouble to familiarize himself with our ramifications could confirm this, and we further state that anybody who says we are British-controlled is making an absolutely incorrect statement.

"'Second—We are very desirous of developing our business under the American flag, and particularly between the United States and Germany, and we are prepared to buy a sufficient number of ex-German combined passenger and freight steamers to adequately cover the services between the United States North Atlantic ports and Hamburg, as soon as the Shipping Board is in position to sell them, on the basis of 25 per cent. cash, we to recondition the steamers at our expense.'

"The unfairness of the accusations against the company lies in the assertion that the company was under undisclosed agreements to operate its tonnage in the interest of British trade, and at the same time sought and accepted the allocation of American flag ships belonging to the Shipping Board, whose operations were subject to the terms of the agreement; while the real truth of the matter is that the agreements were not undisclosed. They had been under any obligation to operate published by the Department of Commerce and Labor in July, 1903; had been fully disclosed and copies of them filed with the Shipping Board on two occasions in 1919, and the Shipping Board tonnage which has been allocated to us for management and operation from time to time is not subject to these agreements nor affected by them in any particular.

"The company has not at any time been under any obligation to operate American flag ships otherwise than in the best interests of the ships themselves, and it never has operated Shipping Board ships allocated to it except for the benefit of the American Government in trades designated and approved by the board."

WILL HEAR MILLER ON TRANSIT TONIGHT

LOCKWOOD EXPECTS ACTION

Week's Session Also Expected to Determine Fate of Jager and Other Socialists.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, Jan. 23.—Remedies for New York City's traction and housing ills are to be proposed this week to the Legislature.

An answer to the traction problem will be presented tomorrow night in a special message from Governor Miller, who will recommend immediate consideration of the transit situation, and is expected, in accordance with plans already outlined, to urge regulation of the entire situation by a single-headed commission and the reorganization of both down and up-State Public Service Commissions.

Up-State transit conditions begin to assume a changing aspect, in view of the suggestions the Governor is expected to make and by reason of the decision of the Second District Public Service Commission in the Albany fare case. The utilities board declined to approve an application for a 10-cent fiat fare rate because, it said, "the future trend of wages and traction operation seems to be downward."

The Legislature will dispose of the request of the Lockwood Housing Committee for extended life and additional power to permit a sweeping and thorough inquiry into the conduct of banks and insurance companies, probably on Tuesday.

A measure designed to give to the committee authority to grant immunity to witnesses who have appeared at times in the New York City investigation to be reluctant to testify fully of their knowledge, is slated to be introduced tomorrow night.

Governor Miller's recommendation, made in his initial message to the Legislature, that his own powers of investigation be broadened so that he might inquire into county and city administrations at will, will also be brought to the attention of the lawmakers this week. Senator Ward V. Tolbert, who sponsored the Governor's suggestion in legislation he introduced in the upper house, is expected to move for consideration of his measure.

Through this legislation, Governor Miller is believed, in some quarters, to be not only seeking authority to investigate county and city administrations but also to place himself practically in an all-powerful capacity over the entire State in compelling strict enforcement of prohibition when and if his enforcement bills are enacted.

The week may also bring determination as to whether the Socialists in the Legislature are to be permitted to retain their seats. The Assembly Judiciary Committee, to which has been referred resolutions challenging the rights of the Socialists to membership, meets Tuesday.

DR. CARSTENSEN ASSAILS 3 RECTORS

Dr. Relland Also Attacked.

In this criticism Dr. Carstensen said after the service to the reporter that he had in mind the Rev. Dr. Karl Relland, rector of St. George's Church, Stuyvesant Square and East Sixteenth Street, who at a recent luncheon of the New York Lutheran Association said that Bishops were good as "decorations," and they were also good to "go around and say grace at banquets."

Continuing his sermon, Dr. Carstensen said that these men "would not be in the limelight except for the anomaly of tearing down what they had promised to build up."

"They are in the same position as paid agents of a free trade league would be if they should preach high tariff," Dr. Carstensen further said in his sermon.

"To eat the Church's bread, to accept her emoluments, and wear her livery while defaming and ridiculing her doctrines and formularies, to attenuate the Gospel, to denature Truth, to peptonize ethics, seems to be the end and aim of these sol disant prophets of the new day.

"The main difference between these men and policemen who accept 'graft' for 'protection' is that the policemen try to cover up their guilt, and these 'broadminded' gentlemen glory in their shame.

"In Dr. Manning we are sure to have a leader who will not hesitate to use a curb bit. That is why these men do not want him. And it is the reason why we do want him."

Dr. Carstensen took for his text "And all your days ye shall dwell in tents." He said the world today was filled with nomads. "Jeremiah warned us of the inevitable ruin which was approaching," said Dr. Carstensen.

A Plea for "Ancient Landmarks."

The rector quoted the Rev. Dr. H. Percy Silver as having said last Tuesday at a meeting: "We may all have come from anthropoids, but the mischief of it is we seem to be traveling on return tickets."

"We are not going to give up the ancient landmarks," Dr. Carstensen continued, "some superficial creatures and loud-speaking preachers notwithstanding. We are not going to put the creeds into the back page of the Prayer Book.

"We are not going to make the marriage laws of Nevada the criterion for our Church on holy matrimony. We are not going to change the baptismal vows.

"These 'dwellers in tents' were not fools. They knew where the sweetest grass and daintiest waters were to be found." Dr. Carstensen said there were certain truths that "neither men, devils nor angels can gainsay," and that "the hands that were pierced" were the only ones to point the way of life.

"The rector of the Church of the Ascension," he added, "says this is a day of science. Well, it is so. But the rector of the Church of the Ascension has no monopoly on these advances toward enlightenment.

"We are going to face these questions next week when we meet to elect a new bishop. Next week is the most important week in the history of the Diocese of New York. We are blessed with a richness of material from which to choose."

"Boring from Within" Denounced.

Dr. Shipman in his sermon recommended a period of military service "for those who are boring from within the church, finding fault with its historic tenets." He argued that "the training and discipline thus acquired would make a man more careful in his speech. If he knew he was to subject to a court-martial, he would naturally be more guarded in his criticism," Dr. Shipman said.

Dr. Shipman then severely criticised the ritualistic element in the church, which is seeking to change the name of the church eliminating the word "Protestant." Dr. Shipman declared that on the part of both the radicals and the ritualists within her fold the Episcopal Church is "the subject of attack on the part of those who should be her defenders."

"On the one side, I say, the church is Protestant and on the other side the church is Episcopal," said the rector.

"It is a church of history, with an historic form of government which it maintains without sanction of any narrowing theory. It has in it an historic creed which it maintains.

"On one side there's the attack which has for its motive the elimination from the name and character the whole idea of Protestantism, to link her with a church from which she has long separated and with which she is at variance to introduce practices which she abandoned and to install a plan of hierarchical government which she rejected.

"Every parish, school, order, or individual engaged in this is engaged in the lawless and disloyal attempt to weaken the Church.

"On the other side there is an attempt to make the Church a replica of the Young Men's Christian Association, for which I have the highest regard, or some other welfare organization. In other words, there is an attempt to throw her creed into discord, to make her highest officers simply ornamental and to treat her orders as though optional, which are to be obeyed or disobeyed at will.

"Against this I say I protest, and in regard to this situation let me say this—I believe in breadth and that we have it, a breadth that means comprehensiveness and not shallowness or evaporation.

"I do not believe that a man should remain in the Church, receiving his authority, speaking in its name, and then teach or practice that which it disavows and denies."

Deplores "Petty Politics" in Church.

Dr. Seagle in his morning sermon deplored "petty politics" in the Church. He took exception to those who he said had been "house canvassing" in connection with the approaching election of a Bishop. He said he did not like the "whisperings" or comments on the fact that Dr. Manning was born in England and that Dr. Stires was born below the Mason and Dixon line.

"We are now past a great political convention built upon negative principles in which applause was gained by attacking the politics of President Wilson and those of persons opposed to him.

"We should not go about the election of one to be consecrated Bishop by any such negative process," declared Dr. Seagle. "It makes no difference whether or not a man was born in England or south of the Mason and Dixon line. We need to choose one who will measure up to the highest standard of qualifications spiritually, and who will be every inch a man, a leader, and one of judicial, well-balanced temperament."

Dr. Seagle said that the new Bishop "should be able to do more than gather money to put more bricks into the Cathedral pile."

BIG ISSUES BEFORE ALLIED CONFERENCE

but they fear the political and economic effects of leaving the reparation matter unsettled for years to come. France less than other Allies appears to fear the effect of keeping the Germans in the dark as to their complete obligations.

Doumer Discusses Finances.

PARIS, Jan. 28 (Associated Press).—The condition of the French Treasury continues "delicate," despite the recent big internal loan raised in France, M. Doumer, the new Finance Minister, said in an interview today with Le Journal, in answer to the query why the Government should be forced to borrow abroad immediately after raising the big loan.

"The money raised by the loan had a definite purpose," he said, "and was immediately absorbed, none being left free. The situation of our Treasury remains thus delicate, and sometimes fortuitous methods must be adopted. Financiers who participate in the direction of the Bank of France know something about that and will understand me."

M. Doumer was asked about the possibility of reaching an understanding with England and the United States on France's debts to them and of raising a vast consolidating loan. He also was asked his view of the suggestion that France's debts to the Allies be canceled.

"I think America is far more sympathetic to us than is believed," he said. "Time must be permitted to do its work, and as a new Administration is to be installed, let us await March with confidence."

The Minister agreed that there was justification for the charge of American and British bankers that French taxpayers are seeking to avoid payment of the war profits and income taxes. He said he was opposed to the policy of increasing Government advances from the Bank of France, which increased paper circulation and depreciated exchange. He adued that he had already repaid 400,000,000 francs to the Bank of France and diminished the circulation of paper by 309,000,000 francs.

WANT DISARMAMENT OF GERMAN SOCIETIES

French Demand Short Time Limit and Supervision by Allied Commission.

By WALTER DURANTY.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Jan. 23.—Disarmament—which includes dissolution—of German "auto-protection" organizations like the Bavarian Einwohnerwehr is the first item on the program of the Allied Conference tomorrow. Curiously enough, there is a general tendency here to consider the question as pretty much cut and dried already. "The British are in agreement with us" is the common French statement, "so there won't be any difficulty about disarmament."

While it is understood that Field Marshal Sir Henry Wilson shares the French view that the said German organizations are really camouflaged military units which could rapidly be linked up with the army proper for purposes of offensive action if occasion offered, or in support of a reactionary movement, there is reason to suppose that a divergence exists between the French and British views of how they are to be disarmed and how soon.

The British are understood to favor a disarmament scheme extending over several months and handled by the German Government itself, whose authority they wish to strengthen by every available means. The French on the other hand consider that as the Spa time limit has already been exceeded by Germany only quite a short period should now be allowed for disarmament, and that it be supervised by an allied commission so as to ensure that it is genuine.

The point the French make is that in view of the extremely unsettled conditions of Eastern Europe and the general uncertainty as to the real plans of the Bolsheviki—and the real relations between Soviet Russia and Germany—it is unsafe to give Germany any more rope.

"Obviously Germany doesn't intend to disarm unless she is forced to," they say. "At Spa it was decided to leave it to them, and the result was that at Christmas the disarmament was not only incomplete, but the German Government sent us an impudent note explaining that the Bavarians would not disarm and that it couldn't make them. We know that revanche and hatred of France is being preached all over Germany. The press and public speeches are full of defiance. We have been caught by Germany once before, but won't be caught again."

To try to persuade any French soldier, or any member of the Nationalist Party—which be it remembered holds the reins of power in the Chamber—that harshness toward Germany only encourage resistance, or that support of the Republican Administration is the best way of eliminating the residue of the militant spirit, is simply a waste of breath. They are certain they know better.

They have two unvarying arguments: First, what von Stein did to Napoleon after Jena, and, second, that they are looking at the future as well as the present.

"Bismarck thought he had built on a rock in 1871," they say, "and see what happened. We have a duty to coming generations, as well as to this one."

With that sentiment in French minds, the fact that this conference is being held in Paris is an important factor. It will be quickly known in the press and Parliament if Briand shows any sign of weakening. There will be no possibility of concealing unpalatable truths for a time, as was the case, for instance, at Spa. It is a moral certainty that the atmosphere of the French Parliament, which has shown pretty clearly that it is looking to M. Briand for results, will react upon the council chamber. What is more, M. Briand knows that M. Poincaré is waiting to pounce like a wolf on his first slip.

It is a delicate situation, and from a dispassionate viewpoint one that hardly seems to warrant the optimistic expectations generally expressed by the French press.

180,000 ARE IDLE IN PITTSBURGH AREA

Iron, Steel and Coal Industries Hardest Hit, but All Are Suffering.

DAILY WAGE LOSS $967,460

Special to The New York Times.

PITTSBURGH, Jan. 23.—One hundred and eighty thousand men are out of employment in the Pittsburgh district, embracing Western Pennsylvania, Eastern Ohio and Northern West Virginia, and the number is increasing almost daily, according to a survey of the industrial situation just completed here.

The iron, steel and coal industries have been hardest hit, but in virtually all other lines the effect of the nation-wide "buying strike" has been paralysing. Incidentally, industrial leaders of the district see a three-months period of similar paralysis, at least, before anything like a back-to-normal movement begins.

At present the tendency toward suspension is having its effect in large offices, with the result that thousands of clerks, stenographers and bookkeepers are out of employment.

Daily wage losses, mounting steadily since the first real break in industrial activities began in the Fall, have now reached approximately $1,000,000. Sharing in this wage loss are the workers in skilled lines, railroad employes and men in the building trades, who for the last four years have been listed as the highest paid, aside from executives, in the country. The heaviest losses are being sustained by the skilled men, who are entirely out of employment in most instances. Laborers, generally, are finding part-time employment in mills and factories, cleaning up and assisting in necessary repairs preparatory for a resumption as soon as the tension breaks.

Virtually all the "war brides"—the industries which came to life during the war—have suspended operations, many of them never resume. Likewise, the "boom coal operators" have gone.

Wherever complete suspensions are not in effect, plant managers are endeavoring to distribute what employment they have evenly. Men are being employed for one or two days a week in these cases. Many of the small independent mills have posted notices that they will resume operations April 1, and in the building trades it is expected that from the dropping building materials market will spring one of the biggest building booms in history.

The Connellsville coke region has suffered a severe setback. The 10,000 coke workers of the district are employed only on part time—two, sometimes three days a week—and thousands of railroad men employed by the Baltimore & Ohio and Pittsburgh & Lake Erie roads have been "furloughed" temporarily. The big Lake Erie yard at Dickerson Run, which is the concentrating point for the coke fields, is idle. A few weeks ago the first lay-off order put 33 per cent. of the men out of work, and ten days later a second order made another 50 per cent. temporarily unemployed, leaving only 17 per cent. of the usual force at work.

Ordinarily 70,000 men are employed in industrial lines in Blair, Cambria, Clearfield, Jefferson, Bedford, Huntingdon and Fulton Counties of Pennsylvania, but at present more than one-fourth of these are idle, suffering a daily wage loss of $85,000.

In Greater Pittsburgh, which includes the big steel centres of Homestead, Braddock, Duquesne and East Pittsburgh, there are approximately 30,000 idle, with a daily wage loss of $121,000. Eighty-one thousand are idle in Western Pennsylvania outside of Greater Pittsburgh, and the daily wage loss is estimated at $530,000. The Youngstown and Mahoning Valley district, in Ohio, is in a state of almost complete paralysis, with 25,000 idle. In Northern West Virginia, including Wheeling, 40,000 are out of work.

From almost every district come reports that industries are shut down or on the verge of suspension, with nearly normal operation only in oil well supply shops, pipe and tube mills and United States Steel Corporation plants, which, lately, have begun to feel the effects of the general disinclination to buy. The manufacturing interests still holding on are doing so in face of cancellations and other discouragements of the times, but are predicting that unless the striking buyer relents within a few weeks further reductions in personnel will be necessary.

"Snowbird" coal operators—those who spring up with boom prices—are gradually dying out, but the larger operators, working on contract, are maintaining fairly good schedules, giving their men an average of five short days per week.

Exact figures on unemployment, based on the survey, show 179,435 persons idle in the Pittsburgh district. The survey puts the wage loss daily at $967,460.

The unemployment figures for Greater Pittsburgh, which includes McKeesport, Braddock, Homestead, &c., are: Coal miners, 700; iron and steel, 20,750; building trades, 2,945; miscellaneous, 4,750; estimated daily wage loss, $121,430.

Other Western Pennsylvania towns: Coal miners, 21,875; steel and iron, 40,495; building trades, 3,330; miscellaneous, 18,400; estimated daily wage loss, $529,900.

Wheeling and Northern West Virginia—Coal miners, 23,250; iron and steel, 12,500; building trades, 3,850; miscellaneous, 3,100; estimated daily wage loss, $157,700.

Youngstown, Warren, Steubenville and Martins Ferry, Ohio—Coal miners, 1,500; iron and steel, 18,050; building trades, 2,250; miscellaneous, 6,250; estimated daily wage loss, $158,410.

SAYS HIS HELICOPTER CAN RISE AND HOVER

Argentine Inventor's Machine, Said to Solve Many Problems, Will Have Test by French Army.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Jan. 23.—Peteras Pescara, an Argentine inventor, who says he has invented a helitcopter capable not only of lifting itself, but also of planing, is to give a demonstration next week at Barcelona before a French military commission which will have authority to buy the machine for the French Government if the tests are fulfilled.

At the first test several weeks ago Pescara's machine succeeded in rising vertically from the ground for a short distance, according to reports published here, and the inventor claims for it that he is on the way to solve the great problem of hovering in the air, rising and descending vertically and flying horizontally.

Two systems of wings, revolving in opposite directions around a central mast placed in a carriage like a small torpedo automobile, is the way his invention is described. In French army circles the greatest interest is taken in next week's tests.

RAILROADS DEFEND OUTSIDE REPAIR WORK

WASHINGTON, Jan. 23.—Action of the railroads in sending rolling stock to outside shops for repairs was defended by the Association of Railway Executives tonight in a statement issued through its Chairman, Thomas DeWitt Cuyler, as in keeping "with good business and sound management."

Representatives of railroad labor recently attacked the action of the railroads in failing to do their own repair work, charging that the sending of such work to outside plants brought increased transportation costs which the public ultimately had to pay. The Interstate Commerce Commission has the practice of the roads in respect to repair work under investigation.

Mr. Cuyler, in his statement, declared that "the effect of the rules and working conditions still controlling the repair of equipment in railway shops has been disastrous to efficiency and output, and is in itself one of the causes of the abnormal number of cars and locomotives out of repair." He added that the organizations of railway repair employes "have only themselves to blame."

The association Chairman quoted from reports made by officials of several railroads to show an increase in disabled equipment during Federal control, and also to explain why much of the repair work was sent to outside shops.

W. H. Finley, President of the Chicago and North Western, said that that road had 386 engines "out of service" at the end of Federal control, as compared with 175 at the beginning of that period. Disabled locomotives were sent to outside shops by the Railroad Administration, he said, and the company has simply continued this practice on resuming supervision of its property.

H. E. Byram, President of the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul Railroad, explained that the "rebuilding" of twenty engines by the Baldwin Works for that line was necessary because the locomotives in question were obsolete types, originally constructed by the Baldwin Company and "comprised a class of work that could not be done as economically in our own shops."

The Chicago, Burlington & Quincy, President Hale Holden said, found its facilities were inadequate to handle the great amount of repair work necessary after Federal supervision, and therefore sent much of it to outside shops. This action was influenced also, Mr. Holden said, by the "limitations as to employing machinists, provided by schedules with labor organizations."

CLAIMS 38,000 LIVES SAVED.

Safety Council Gives This Total for Work on Railroads in 13 Years.

CHICAGO, Jan. 23.—More than 38,000 lives have been saved on the railroads of the United States as a result of the organized safety work carried on during thirteen years, according to an analysis made at the headquarters of the National Safety Council here of railway statistics from 1906 to 1919, compiled by Slason Thompson of the Bureau of Railway News and Statistics, the council announced today.

The National Safety Council estimated the number of lives saved on the basis of the ratio of the number of persons killed each year to the freight tonnage carried during each year.

Some other striking revelations of the railroad accident statistics are brought out in the council's study, namely:

That the number of persons killed in railway accidents during 1919, 6,975, is the lowest on record in the twenty years since 1899.

That 125,021 miles of railroad lines, nearly half the mileage of the country, were operated without a single passenger being killed in a train accident on these lines during 1919.

That a mileage greater than the combined railroad mileage of Great Britain, Germany, France and Austria-Hungary was operated during 1919 without a single fatality to a passenger in the 447,128,738 journeys recorded, the average journey being forty-four miles.

That the number of injured in railway accidents in 1919—147,018—was the lowest on record since 1910.

A noteworthy decrease in the number of railroad employes killed was made in 1919 as compared with the preceding year. In 1918, with 1,807,741 men employed, 2,750 were killed, an average of 1.45 per 1,000 employed. In 1919, with 1,960,569 men employed, 1,693 were killed, an average of 0.86 per 1,000 employed.

PLAN NATION-WIDE UNION.

Leaders in Chicago Denounce Present Heads of Labor Movement.

CHICAGO, Jan. 23.—Several hundred union men at a meeting today made plans for a nation-wide organization to be known as the American League of Union Men, with the announced object of eliminating what was termed the "malign influence which heretorore has been exerted on the minds of American working men" by those "official oligarchs who have for years misled the union forces."

The meeting was called by George Hodge, local labor leader.

Resolutions adopted declared that chaos and confusion now are dangerously manifest in the policies dominating the labor movement in the United States and that "this intolerable situation has come about primarily from incompetent piloting by discredited steersmen who for years have directed the toilers' industrial ship into the whirlpool of fallacy and corrupt politics."

One resolution says that the sponsors of the new movement wish "to convey to President-elect Harding that the genuine heart-throb of labor will be with him in the grave responsibility which he will assume in a few weeks."

Mr. Hodge was elected Chairman of the organization and authorized to make plans for branches in all parts of the country.

ABANDONS SUNDAY WORK.

Pennsylvania Retrenches at Northumberland—Erie Cuts Hornell Force

NORTHUMBERLAND, Pa., Jan. 23.—As a part of its retrenchment policy, not a wheel turned today in the huge Northumberland classification yards of the Pennsylvania Railroad Company here, except for necessary passenger work. Crews on both East and West classification "humps" were laid off and in the roundhouse and repair shops only absolutely essential help was held over the Sabbath.

Orders were issued closing everything in the yards and shops on Sundays beginning today. More than 1,000 men are affected.

ELMIRA, N. Y., Jan. 23.—Twenty-five per cent. of the working force of the Erie Railroad shops in Hornell will be laid off during the coming week, it was announced tonight. The reduction means holding up wages amounting approximately to $12,000 a week.

ALTOONA, Pa., Jan. 23.—Pennsylvania Railroad officials here announced tonight that 325 employes in the local shops will tomorrow morning be given five days' notice of furloughs, due to a lack of work. This will bring the total of Pennsylvania men in this city and county either discharged or furloughed to slightly more than 2,500.

SICK WOMAN FALLS 11 STORIES TO DEATH

HAD BEEN ILL FOR WEEKS

Accident Came Just After She Left Husband in Library of West End Avenue Apartment.

Mrs. Bessie Adams, wife of E. E. Adams, a member of E. F. Hutton & Co., bond brokers of 61 Broadway, fell from the window of their apartment on the eleventh floor of 680 West End Avenue last night and was killed instantly.

Mrs. Adams, who was 44 years old, had been ill for several weeks. She was alone with her husband in their library, their maid having gone out, when she went into the bathroom. Mr. Adams paid no particular attention to her absence, and it was not until he was notified by a railboy that he knew of his wife's death.

Mrs. Adams's body struck on the pavement on the corner of West Ninety-third Street. Policeman Foran of the West 100th Street Station called Dr. Spain of Knickerbocker Hospital, who said she had been killed instantly.

A friend of the husband said that Mrs. Adams, since her illness, had been in the habit of going to an open window and inhaling deep breaths of cool air, which seemed to give her relief. He expressed belief that she had an attack of giddiness, which caused her to fall.

PURSE TO INDIGENT VETERAN

Canadian, Held for Begging, Tells Story—Court Subscribes $10.

When Donald F. Sullivan, 40 years old, who said he had no home, was arraigned before Magistrate George W. Simpson in Night Court last night on a charge of begging at Broadway and Fulton Street, he was asked whether he had anything to say to the court about the charge.

"No. I am guilty of the charge," he replied in a whisper so low that Magistrate Simpson told him to come nearer. He told the Magistrate that he had been a soldier in the Canadian Army and had been gassed. He came to New York recently, hoping to find some outdoor work, and had been assured of a job on Staten Island this week, he said. When he faced the alternative of begging or sleeping in the streets, he said, he had asked for money for his night's lodging.

ITALIAN MILL MEN ATTACKED IN HALL

Invaders Break Up Meeting Held to Protest Against Agitators in Lawrence.

LAWRENCE, Mass., Jan. 23.—While Italian employes of the American Woolen Company's mills were holding a meeting today to protest against misrepresentation by agitators, 200 men, said to be members of the Amalgamated Textile Workers, singing the Internationale, entered the hall. A general fight followed. Police reserves were called and used their clubs freely to stop the disturbance.

Some of the Italians fled from the hall by windows and doors when the Amalgamated forces rushed in, but those who stood their ground offered a stout resistance. The three policemen on duty at the meeting were beaten back and sent a call for aid. When the reserves arrived the Italians and their uninvited visitors left in struggling groups.

The Italian workers declared that agitators from outside the city had used the name of their nationality to cause labor disturbances in which they had no part. This, they asserted, worked a hardship on them and prevented them from obtaining employment.

Kansas League Drops Miss Gaston After Coffin Nails Dispute.

TOPEKA, Kan., Jan. 23.—The Kansas Anti-Cigarette League has refused to pay Miss Lucy Page Gaston, its organizer, any more salary, or to be responsible for bills incurred in her campaign against the cigarette, Miss Gaston announced tonight, adding that she will leave for Iowa immediately to begin the organization of a State league there.

The controversy resulting in Miss Gaston's dismissal from the Kansas league began when she announced that Coffin Nails, a magazine devoted to the Anti-Cigarette League interests, would be published in Topeka. The national headquarters of the league in Chicago refused to approve the proposed publication.

Miss Gaston said the national headquarters also refused to incur any more expenses in connection with her work in Kansas.

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 23.—The West blended with the Far East today in paying honors to Hong Chow Lee, son of a Chinese merchant and the first Chinese here to enlist for the World War. Hong was killed in the Argonne. His body was returned to this city, his birthplace, last week. He was 22 years old.

The American Legion and the Chinese Six Companies were in charge of the funeral service and a detachment of troops from the Presidio rendered military honors.

JAPANESE ACCORD ON ALIEN LAND LAW

planation here. In a word the new land law is a cognate law of 1913 made more drastic and severe. That it aims at Japanese and is unjust and discriminatory cannot be denied. Regret which the Japanese Government expressed at the legislation of 1913 is, therefore, still more keenly felt by them at this new legislation.

"This question of land law has a long history and complex and delicate bearing and is not susceptible of solution from the standpoint of one side alone. The difficulty arising between Japan and America from the legislation of 1913 has unfortunately remained unsettled to this day.

"The present question has, therefore, been engaging the most careful attention of the Japanese Government. They have approached the problem from the higher standpoint of Japanese-American friendship and with full regard to the close and important relations of common interests between the two nations, and they have placed supreme importance upon a prompt and satisfactory solution of the difficulty caused by the unfortunate movements in California.

"They have authorized their representatives at Washington to discuss the whole situation with the State Department, and a frank and free exchange of views has been proceeding on various points involved in the question. It is regretted that we are not yet in a position to publish the results of these discussions, but we confidently trust that an adjustment compatible with the honor and interests of both countries may be firmly arrived at."

Considering Anglo-Japanese Terms.

The Japanese Government, Minister Uchida said, was giving careful consideration as to the revision and renewal of the Anglo-Japanese agreement of alliance with a view especially to its relation to the covenant of the League of Nations.

"A principle to guide the Japanese Government in revising the agreement," the Foreign Minister said, "is at present the subject of serious study, regarding had to articles of the League covenant, as declared in the joint notification filed with the League of Nations secretariat, and to many important changes which have taken place in the aspect of affairs since the conclusion of the present agreement."

Operations of Japanese troops in Siberia were discussed by Viscount Uchida, who, however, made no mention of any immediate intention of his Government to withdraw the troops from the Vladivostok area.

The political stability of Russia in general," he continued, "is earnestly hoped for by Japan as her good neighbor, while as for Siberia in particular, it is the keenest desire of the Japanese Government that this troubled area should be unified on a sound basis and be restored to complete order."

The Foreign Minister "openly deplored that complete and peaceful unification of China is not yet in sight."

The situation in China," he told the Diet, "is now at the turning point, and the awakening of the people is indeed worthy of note. That the path of China is beset with difficulties should command the deep sympathy of the people and Government of Japan, while China's development is a thing very eagerly hoped for by Japan, which stands in such close relationship with her. Not only for China's sake alone, but for the general welfare and peace of the world, it is ardently to be desired that China should speedily recover peace and unity."

The proposed international court of justice was praised by Viscount Uchida as "highly desirable" and "most welcome." In asserting that "a spirit of concerted harmony" was manifested by the members of the League of Nations at the Geneva and earlier meetings, he said that it was because of that spirit "that a fair promise of success is now assured to the League."

Premier Hara in addition to referring briefly to the Californian and Chichtao questions, declared that he was happy "to note the ever growing cordiality in our relations with all foreign countries."

"The Government," the Premier added, "is sincerely anxious to promote international friendship and is firmly resolved to see to just and fair treatment of all questions with which it may be confronted."

Langdon Pageys Satisfactory.

TOKIO, Jan. 22.—Negotiations between the Japanese and United States Governments resulting from the recent shooting by a sentry at Vladivostok of the American naval Lieutenant Langdon are progressing "satisfactorily," according to a semi-official note issued here. The latest information from official sources concerning the matter is that Lieutenant Langdon was not, as had been reported, married to a Russian, although he was engaged. It is stated that he spent the hours immediately preceding the shooting at the home of Russian friends celebrating the Russian Christmas. Among the guests was his Russian fiancée, who committed suicide after learning of his death and left a letter saying that she did not wish to live without him.

Advices from Vladivostok say that the Foreign Office of the Chita Government has addressed a note to the Japanese Government protesting against the recent Japanese military policy, which is declared to be contrary to recent declarations of the Government that Japan would not interfere in Ruselan internal affairs, and would not violate Russia's sovereignty. The note specifically complains against the seizure of Russian fisheries on Saghalin.

At the reopening of the Diet today, Premier Hara and Viscount Uchida, the Foreign Minister, addressed the House of Peers and later the House of Representatives.

Numerous notices given of an intention to interpellate the Government aroused interest, especially an announcement by Viscount Kato, former Foreign Minister, in his capacity as leader of the Opposition, that he would for the first time formally attack the Cabinet from the floor of the Diet. This statement is regarded in political circles as strengthening the system of party politics in Japan.

Naval Holiday Favored in Diet.

The resolution by United States Senator Borah for a "naval holiday" and its favorable reception in the newspapers of Japan served today as the basis of the principal interpellation in the House of Representatives. U. Hamaguchi of the opposition party said that he neither was a peace advocate nor an advocate of war between Japan and America, but that the naval expenditures of both nations should be of the same proportions, as far as possible.

America, he added, appeared to be planning the greatest navy in the world, but the natural resources of Japan would not permit competition with America. Thus, he declared, there would be a wide gulf in the naval strength of the two nations. Great Britain, said the speaker, also was planning a complete naval program, and if Japan were thrown into the whirl of naval competition the nation would suffer a heavy burden. An agreement for naval curtailment, said M. Hamaguchi, would benefit Japan more than the other powers.

Asked if the recent statements of Ambassador Hayashi in London concerning disarmament had been made on instructions from the Government, Premier Hara replied that the Ambassador had not been instructed and that he gave voice to his own opinions. The Government, continued the Premier, was not prepared to say anything on the subject of disarmament, because it had not yet become a practical international question.

Supplementing the statement of the Premier, Viscount Uchida, the Foreign Minister, declared that the question of restrictions in armament was a very important one and that the Government was studying it carefully. He added that no communication concerning the question had been received from any Government.

Economy Urged on Japan.

Minister of Finance Takahashi, in an address before the Diet concerning the budget for the fiscal year of 1921, said that it would exceed 1,562,000,000 yen.

"There have been many disturbing elements since last year," said Mr. Takahashi, "but owing to the combined efforts of the Government and the people we are enabled to enter 1921 in comparative calm. The world-wide depression doubtless has been caused by the sudden abnormal fluctuations in exchange after the war and the failure of currency to circulate smoothly between countries. One nation needing commodities might lack purchasing power, while another with commodities to sell could not export them because of the state of exchange.

"Consequently the economic situation of the world will not recover its stability until the international money market regains its equilibrium and the exchange rate returns to its usual basis."

To meet the situation Mr. Takahashi recommended regulation of the supply of certain commodities as a measure of self-defense. Japan, he said, should endeavor to develop her markets, especially in Europe and America, by seeking overseas trade. In preparation for the struggle ahead, he urged, business leaders should combine and form associations to increase credits and avoid useless competition. In other words, the Minister declared, the machinery of production and of distribution should be overhauled and strengthened.

In conclusion Mr. Takahashi urged the people of Japan to abandon extravagant habits, and to set their hearts to the task of building up national prosperity.

Dispatches received here from London quote Ambassador Hayashi as saying that Japan is waiting for Great Britain and the United States to take the lead on the question of disarmament. Unofficial Japanese opinion here is that any restriction by Japan in armaments necessarily would have to follow similar action by the United States and Great Britain, which are recognized as the most powerful nations on the seas.

PRAISE ROOSEVELT AS MAN AND PATRIOT

Coolidge Says Late Colonel Served Country Highly in Peace and in War.

SURBED PERIL OF MONOPOLY

ed Crusade Which Restored Democratic Institutions, Says Gov. Miller Before Memorial Association.

Tributes to Theodore Roosevelt, the man and public official, were paid last night by Vice President-elect Calvin Coolidge and Governor Nathan L. Miller, speakers at the second annual meeting of the Woman's Roosevelt Memorial Association, held in the Town Hall, West Forty-third Street. Mrs. John Henry Hammond, President of the association, presided and a report, disclosing wide progress in the campaign to restore the former President's West Twentieth Street birthplace, was read by Mrs. Henry A. Wise Wood.

Following the speech of the Vice President-elect, he was presented with the gold medal of the Institute of Social Sciences. The presentation was by Dr. Emory R. Johnston, President of the Institute, who declared that it was given because of Governor Coolidge's stand for law and order in the strike of the Boston policemen.

"Great men," declared ex-Governor Coolidge, "are the ambassadors of Providence sent to reveal to their fellow men their unknown selves. To them is granted the power to call forth the best there is in those who come under their influence. They leave no successor. The heritage of their greatness descends to the people.

Roosevelt's Patriotism Undoubted.

"If the ministration of your association is to represent truly the spirit of Theodore Roosevelt it will be thorough and patriotic. In all the criticisms that is said for the right, whatever the consequences, brought him, no one ever questioned his patriotism, no one ever doubted his love for his country. That country he loved above all else, and on her altar he laid not merely his own life, but the greater sacrifice of those whose lives were dearer to him than his own. Yet it was not in the time of military peril but in the time of civil peril that he performed his most valuable services for America."

Going into detail on this phase of civil service, the Vice President-elect recounted the growth of wealth through business activity in this country and told of the benefits that had resulted to the communities, such as libraries and other public institutions, the gifts of business men. With this era of benefaction, however, the speaker said there had come to some of the captains of industry a conviction that business was superior even to Government.

"The greatest peril," he said, "to our institutions does not lie in a direct assault upon them, nor will it come from those who with evil intent strive for their destruction. Disaster will come from those who probably with good intentions seek the private control of public action. It is an old story, known to all of us, but in the exercise of that eternal vigilance which they tell is the price of liberty it requires constant reiteration, and no estimate of the services and the character of Theodore Roosevelt can be made without the recalling of it.

"The man who finally brought the business men of the nation to see that their course was economically unsound and therefore to be abandoned, and who roused the American people to the assertion again of their right to control their Government for the public welfare, was Theodore Roosevelt. No man did so much to destroy an unsound economic theory and to restore his country to its true form of representative government since the days of Abraham Lincoln. He broke the menace of monopoly; he made the sovereignty of the people again supreme."

Referring to the derision which some men cast at Roosevelt, an allusion to his "discovering the Ten Commandments," Mr. Coolidge added:

Discovered the Ten Commandments.

"What they said derisively, let us state seriously. He had discovered the Ten Commandments, and he applied their doctrine with great vigor in places that had assumed they had the power to discard the Ten Commandments."

The former President's last great service, as the speaker saw it, was his rousing of the nation to the menace and the meaning of the World War.

"He appealed from the things that seemed to be to the soul of the things that are," said ex-Governor Coolidge, "and he roused the national conscience into righteous action. He spoke to the soul of his country, and he saw her response. He saw his fellow countrymen make their sacrifices, and he made his. He knew their suffering, but he knew their courage. He saw their final victory. He saw the beginning of the return to those never conquered banners as they came streaming home. In that triumphant sound of drum beat and bugle he, too, was summoned home, under the brighter banners of truth and righteousness, which, in him, never suffered defeat."

Governor Miller declared that Roosevelt "led the crusade which restored democratic institutions in America," adding that "in these days we have need of Roosevelt Americanism." The Governor introduced Vice President Coolidge and his slip in referring to him as "the President-elect" brought much applause from the audience and an interjection from Governor Miller that "our most certain prophecies are often unanimous."

The meeting was opened with invocation by the Rev. Newell Dwight Hillis, pastor of Plymouth Church, and the benediction was pronounced by Dr. William T. Manning, rector of Trinity.

18 TONGUES SPOKEN ON INCOMING LINER

Various Nationalities Made the Saturnia, From Glasgow, a Floating Babel.

There were eighteen nationalities among the 748 steerage passengers who arrived from Glasgow yesterday on the Anchor-Donaldson liner Saturnia, including people from Persia to Belgium. Purser J. Mahoney said he had never seen so many races gathered together on board one ship. The list included 200 Czechoslavs, 172 Jugoslavs, 202 Italians, 45 Rumanians, 30 Poles, 1 Croat, 2 Cyprians, 21 Americans, 1 Syrian, 1 Egyptian, 1 Persian, 13 Serbians, 7 Albanians, 9 Greeks and others. There were seventeen nationalities among the 161 cabin passengers, which included Hungarian, Armenian, Syrian, Persian, Spanish and Swiss among the other tongues, which made a babel of strange languages from one end of the ship to the other.

Some of the Rumanians told the purser that they had been three months getting from Bucharest to Cherbourg, where they embarked on the Saturnia, and the expense of the journey had eaten up nearly all their money.

Mrs. Suradina Malzman, 45 years old, accompanied by her five children, said that it had taken six months and cost 11,500 for her to reach New York with her family. She was met at the pier by her daughter, who did not recognize her mother, whom she had not seen for eight years, because the war had changed her so. The father, Moshe, had been killed by bandits, who plundered their home, Mrs. Malzman said, and it was only a few months ago that she was able to let her daughter, Leah, in New York know she was alive. The family were held by the Immigration officials to appear before a Board of Special Inquiry at Ellis Island today.

ITALIAN DREADNOUGHT TO BE TURNED OVER

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

ROME, Jan. 23.—All allied naval Attachés, including Captain Joseph Reeves, American Naval Attaché, have left for Taranto to be present at a triumphant setting afloat of the Italian dreadnought Leonardo da Vinci, which was sunk on Aug. 2, 1916 by order of its commander, Sommi Picenardi. Traitors paid by Austria had placed an infernal machine in its powder magazine. The commander, in order to save the city and the other allied ships in port, ordered the opening of the valves, causing the dreadnought to turn on its side and disappear, together with him.

After the war the authorities initiated one of the greatest hydrostatic feats, namely, recovering the ship stuck in the sand below the sea. Once this was accomplished, the Leonardo da Vinci was tugged into a dockyard upside down, the position in which it was found, to repair the damages caused by the explosion. Now the last achievement is to right the ship, which is being done in the presence of the allied naval Attachés.

The dreadnought has been tugged out to sea. A thousand five hundred tons of chains plus 800 tons of water have been placed in its right side, while the last workman who leaves the ship will touch the mechanism which will cause more water to enter its right side. By minute calculations made it is expected the ship will suddenly right itself and dock once again.

ALLIES MAY OCCUPY TURK CAPITAL AGAIN

CONSTANTINOPLE, Jan. 22 (Associated Press).—A renewed military occupation of Constantinople by the Allies is imminent. The inter-allied representatives have notified the Grand Visier of the measures they purpose to take.

Franco-British reinforcements will be quartered in public buildings requisitioned in Stamboul, where already there are several thousand inter-allied forces.

It is considered that the troops are required to guard against threatened disorder, owing to the presence of followers of Mustapha Kemal Pasha, the Nationalist leader, and Bolshevist elements and the failure of the Turks to ratify the peace treaty. The latter situation is deemed a big factor in the allied decision.

There are now upward of 100,000 former Russian and Turkish soldiers sleeping mosques, cellars and ruins of the city. They are lacking in food and clothing, and it is recognized that they are a potential menace to the enormous stores of foodstuffs and clothing in the warehouses.

There seems to be little fear that the Allies will lose control of the situation unless the Kemalists advance, or in the remote contingency of the much-advertised Bolshevist Spring campaign along the Rumanian border, through Bulgaria to Constantinople.

REPORTS GERMAN RED ARMY

Berlin Semi-Official Statement Says It Is Fully Organized.

BERLIN, Jan. 23.—A semi-official statement issued today says that evidence of the existence of a Red army, created by the German Communist Party, has been revealed by house-to-house searches in Essen, Düsseldorf, Elberfeld and Bremen. The military headquarters, says the statement, is Berlin, and there are subsidiary commands in the cities mentioned.

The statement declares that the Red army possesses light and heavy guns in vast quantities and other war material.

Action was scheduled to begin at the conclusion of the recent strike at the smelters at Hamborn, but it was postponed for a fortnight. A report from Düsseldorf says the General of the Red army has been arrested.

A gift of $1,537.20 for the starving children in Europe by the Young Men's Bible Class of the Fifth Avenue Baptist Church, Forty-sixth Street, west of Fifth Avenue, was announced at the close of its session yesterday.

Of this, $1,315 was contributed last Friday evening in the McAlpin Hotel at the close of the annual banquet of the class, at which John D. Rockefeller Jr. presided, and at which Herbert Hoover announced "a personal and individual gift" of $1,000,000 to the fund from young Mr. Rockefeller. The rest was donated yesterday morning. Mr. Rockefeller was present as a pupil, but took no part. He is honorary President of the class.

The infant was found on the sidewalk in front of the Bradford Street house and the mother was accused of throwing her out of the window.

ASK QUICK ACTION ON WAR HOSPITAL

Advocates of New York Plan for Treating Veterans Will Be Heard Today.

DECLARE DELAY DANGEROUS

Insist Federal Treatment in State Institution Is Best for Mentally Deficient Ex-Soldiers.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 23.—A New York delegation will be here tomorrow to urge the House Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds to report favorably the pending joint resolution providing for carrying into effect the offer of the State of New York to build a hospital for ex-service men suffering from mental and nervous troubles, and to lease it to the Government. It is realized by those having the interest of these veterans of the World War at heart that unless something is done soon many of the veterans will never become normal.

The situation is complicated by the fact that a bill advocated by the Public Health Service, which provides for the erection of Federal hospitals without State aid, has the support of several prominent men in Congress, and may be used to displace the resolution favoring the New York plan. Another feature of the situation is that if the erection of Federal hospitals is authorized and the New York plan rejected a long period must elapse before the ex-service men can receive treatment in the new surroundings. Meanwhile a large percentage of these men are suffering from lack of care and environment essential to their recovery, for it is acknowledged that practically all of the mild mental cases cannot be cured under present conditions.

The New York plan has been carried forward to such a degree that in that State at least ex-soldiers, sailors and marines who are mentally deficient on account of their war experiences will be able to get into the proposed new quarters soon enough, it is asserted, to make certain that their minds will be restored to normal.

Representative Langley of Kentucky, Chairman of the Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds, to which the New York plan was referred, has not lost hope of its success. If his committee fails to support the New York plan it will report the bill, appropriating a large sum to build Federal hospitals and place them under the jurisdiction of the Public Health Service. This bill was introduced last year, but did not find much support. It provided for an appropriation of $10,000,000. The Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds has increased this amount to $15,000,000.

Representative Thomas B. Dunn of Rochester offered in the House the joint resolution to carry the New York plan into effect. Senator Wadsworth offered an identical resolution in the Senate, but the committee has failed to report it. A sub-committee of the Senate Committee on Appropriations has rejected the New York plan, and contemplates proposing an appropriation of $10,000,000 or more for Federal hospitals.

The main opposition to the proposal of the State of New York appears to be based on the ground that it would not be economy for the Government to lease hospitals from that and other States. The way those who take this view figure out the proposition is about as follows:

The State of New York offers to build the hospital and rent it to the Government for ten years at a yearly rental equal to 10 per cent. of the cost of construction, the hospital to revert to the State at the end of the lease. The Government, they say, ought not to pay more than 6 per cent. per year on such an investment. Therefore it would lose 4 per cent. a year if it accepted the New York proposal. Therefore, again, the Government should build its own hospitals and save 4 per cent. annually on the people's money.

This argument, according to the other side, fails to take into consideration that if the Government built and owned the hospitals its investment would be subject to a depreciation of, say, 2½ per cent. annually. This would leave 1½ per cent. of difference between the New York lease cost and the amount the Government would have to pay over its interest estimate of 6 per cent.

So, to save the Government this 1½ per cent., if such a saving would actually be made, the New York plan is being opposed and the foundation being laid for long delay in providing proper treatment and environment for the mentally deficient ex-service men.

Advocates of the New York plan point out that the State has provided for sweeping away obstacles to quick construction of its hospital. The joint resolution recites that the State enacted legislation last year authorizing the construction of a hospital "for the care and treatment of 1,000 beneficiaries of the Bureau of War Risk Insurance suffering from mental and nervous disorders," has appropriated $3,000,000 for its construction and has provided a site in the Borough of Queens—the old Creedmoor rifle range.

The joint resolution is general in its character for it provides that agreements may be made by the Secretary of the Treasury with any other State which will build similar hospitals for leases not to exceed ten years. Several States have indicated a willingness to build such hospitals.

About 20,000 disabled veterans of the World War are under treatment in more than 1,000 hospitals throughout the United States. About 2,000 of these are in hospitals in New York State, whom between 800 and 900 are suffering from mental and nervous disorders. They are under treatment in thirty-nine hospitals and sanitariums, private and State.

Figures given to Governor Smith at the time the State legislation was initiated show that it was costing the Federal Government about $400,000 a year for the care of fewer than 450 of these patients in New York State hospitals. It was then stated that if all the New York ex-service men were suffering from mental and nervous disorders the Government would be expending more than $770,000 a year for their care.

The average age of the ex-service men is about 25 years, while that of other patients with whom they are thrown in contact is about 55 years. This association of men with such a wide disparity in their ages is a detriment, it is claimed, to ultimate recovery of the younger men.

The number of ex-service men and women under treatment for mental and nervous troubles in official and private institutions is constantly increasing, because many of the afflicted persons have been cared for by relatives and friends who ultimately find it necessary for one cause or another to ask the Government to take charge of them.

Those who favor the New York proposal believe that the wise course to pursue would be to enact the Wadsworth-Dunn resolution so that New York could begin the construction of the hospital at Creedmoor and supplement this if necessary with general legislation for the construction of additional hospitals by the Federal Government.

Money for Housing

In 1921 it is ready to lend $60,000,000.

It will lend as much of this sum as is called for on home construction, if proper applications are presented to it.

The money comes largely from the small investors.

6,745 of them invested an average of less than $2,000 apiece in this way in 1920. The big lenders are out of the market on account of the heavy surtaxes.

There is no difficulty in getting money from the small investors through this Company, if buildings can be built at a fair price for labor and material and a reasonable loan only is asked for.

Important Sale of Pianos and Player-Pianos

A New Year's Thought Which May Be Worth Careful Reflection

Looking over back years it seems to the writer that the men of good parts and of good conduct invariably gained success in reaching high points of merit and profit in many channels of human effort by steadily following up the particular path to which they were most bent.

Those who are just starting out on their life tasks may worthily study what has been done by others who have met and conquered the conditions that faced them.

Fixed principals, good health, alertness, perseverance, endurance, are the main essentials, humanly speaking.

The February Furniture Sale is the dominating furniture event of the day, greater in its relative savings than any other of our great furniture sales which preceded it.

For more than thirty years we have been holding this seasonal sale, giving to the public each year the best furniture values to be found in the market. The BEST always came to us, because we originated the February Furniture Sale, and demonstrated the broad distributing power of the Wanamaker Stores, which appealed very strongly to furniture manufacturers.

This year we have gone beyond all previous records in value-giving. The furniture market is firm. There is little—if any—surplus. We could not duplicate our present stocks to sell at regular prices. Indeed, at the February Sale prices, some of the furniture is below today's cost of production.

People who require furniture should know this

They should know, also, that nowhere else is there such a large and varied stock of good furniture, every piece at a reduced price. More than $800,000 of furniture for the bedroom, dining room and living room is at reductions of 25 to 35 per cent. Many pieces are at half price. About $150,000 is at ten per cent. reduction.

It is time to invest in furniture

With an ARCOLA Pa barks no more

[DIALOGUED FROM STORIES OF ARCOLA USERS]

"Johnny had chilblains. Mary a sore throat and their Pa most barked his head off with bronchitis.'

"'It's this dreadful weather', I said. 'Everybody's sick. I only hope my rheumatiz don't get no worse.'

"Johnny rubbed his itchy toes on the carpet. 'Why can't we have radiators like they do at school?' he growled. 'This house is freezin' all the time, ain't it, Ma?'

"'Radiators your gran'mother!' said Pa. 'We ain't got no cellar!'

"But one day we seen Jack Sunny's ARCOLA window. Jack was doin' a rushin' business sellin' them ARCOLAS. Pa bought one quick, and Jack hitched it up inside a couple o' days.

"'I'm sick 'n' tired o' Johnny's chilbains and Mary's eternal throat' says Pa; an' it ain't no fun to hear you holler about your rheumatiz.'

"'Thanks says I; 'same to you about your everlastin' bark.'

"We ain't got none o' them things now—and we burn less coal."

The IDEAL-ARCOLA gives low-cost healthful warmth, through hot water radiators, to the small home, store, school or apartment. Places the cottage on the heating plane of the First Mansion of the Land.

The water-jacketed ARCOLA is of itself a radiator. Replaces stoves, wastes no heat up chimneys, leaks no coal gas. Each tenant may have a separate ARCOLA. If used to heat part of building, extra sections and radiators may be added later.

Complete system, installed by your local dealer, costs but little more than a stove for each room; and far less than old expense for a hot-water heating system. No fire risk.

CHESTERTON TALKS ON 'HEALTH PERILS'

Shows Why It's Natural to Think About Disease, Even When There Is None.

HE DISCUSSES PACIFISTS

It was hard to tell whether G. K. Chesterton, who admits that he despises the word "paradox," got more fun out of his lecture on "The Perils of Health" at the Times Square Theatre last night or from the questions on prohibition or the single tax that were asked by the audience after he had concluded. His quick wit was best evidenced in his answers on prohibition, and he smiled in a diplomatic way when some one called angrily from the balcony.

What do you think of a free people not being able to drink if they wish?"

"I would really prefer that the audience answer that question," said Mr. Chesterton.

"Well, what would you think, if you were one of the audience?" continued his interlocutor.

"I think I would say," said Mr. Chesterton, with a beaming smile, "well, what the devil do you come here for?'"

Mr. Chesterton was introduced as the "Prince of Paradoxes," but he said that as a fantastic statement flying in the face of common sense it could not be applied to himself, an ardent defender of common sense. The title of his lecture, while seemingly paradoxical, was not so much so as it seemed, Mr. Chesterton said, and proceeded to prove it. One trouble with his titles, he explained, is that frequently they have only the slightest connection with his subject.

"One is constantly told that it is morbid to think about illness," said Mr. Chesterton. "But to me it seems perfectly healthy to think about disease and morbid to think about health. A man is only wasting his time when he thinks about the absence of disease when it is absent. There is a saying of an old Chinese emperor that "though there are 90 legitimate subjects for conversation there are some people who cannot meet a cripple without saying something about feet. What could be more natural than if you were walking amid beautiful mountain scenery, and had a sore foot, that your attention should be distracted from the scenery. But it would be highly unnatural for a man in good health to walk through beautiful scenery thinking of the calves of his legs."

"G. K. C." referred to the increasing concentration of man in industrial cities, the growth of mechanical science and the "breakdown in belief in liberty which is everywhere accompanied by a breakdown in the belief in religion." He recalled that a short time ago H. G. Wells, in a book entitled "The Great State," showed doctors as not merely treaters of disease, but as the advisers of the community, who had watch over the health of the people even when they were not ill.

Since he has arrived in this country he had received, he said, a number of letters from pugnacious pacifists, the only kind for whom he has any sympathy. He looked on the soldiers in the trenches as he looked on the Christian martyrs, and while there might be some instances in which, had he been present, he would have advised the martyrs to "chuck it," he did not believe he would have meant what he said because reason would have been against him. "No decent man desires that there shall be an instrument of torture too powerful for his courage," he said.

Most of the arguments against war in as good a cause as that of liberty, Mr. Chesterton thought, were due to a lack of humor, a solemnity such as led the English doctor to suggest that cigarettes should not be sent to the soldiers because they were bad for the health. It was the kind of lack of imagination which led in early pictures to the portrayal of St. Lawrence carrying about with him the gridiron on which he was tortured.

"It would be amusing to apply that to modern deaths," he said, "to picture a man as carrying about with him the taxicab which ran him down or the drainpipe by which he was poisoned. That sort of thing is merely ridiculous, absurd. It is curious that liberty and freedom should be so in danger of neglect after a war fought to uphold them," he continued gravely. "It would be a terrible thing if it should be said that after Prussia was destroyed Prussianism became universal."

When Mr. Chesterton announced that he was ready for questions, the first that was asked was what he thought of the single tax.

"It everywhere affords healthful amusement," said Mr. Chesterton, sitting down heavily.

The National Thrift Movement

This is the Second Week of a 52 Week Campaign

In my letter published last Friday I closed by saying:

"If you want to know why we must depend upon creating a new class of investors, and if you want to help in creating better business conditions, you can read a letter that I will publish in the papers on Monday."

However, I have been asked by those interested in the Thrift Movement to devote this letter to further Organization Work—and I am glad to comply.

While at present I am writing these letters over my own signature, this is not because there are not plenty of people other than myself interested in this movement, but because there are in addition to several organized movements a great many other groups in process of organization.

Their plans have not progressed far enough to choose either their spokesman or to formulate definitely their plans, nor even to determine whether they had best work independently, or amalgamate their efforts. Some of these groups are national in character, with members scattered from coast to coast, and therefore will be unable to complete their plans until the date of their annual conventions.

I have therefore been asked to act as spokesman for the present and endeavor not only to sustain but to stimulate public interest.

I have been particularly requested to say what I have said before—that there is no problem that this country faces which would not be solved, or greatly simplified, by making Thrift and Investment a general practice in America. Lack of space does not permit me to go into details, but I have been requested to ask everyone now interested in any organized form of improvement work, whether it may have morality, charity, Americanization or something else as its object, if they have carefully considered the part which Thrift and Investment will contribute to their objective, and, if desirous of adopting, or even of investigating, the matter, to write me and I will see that the letter finds its way to the proper group.

The publishers of the Business Papers are one of the groups now in the process of organization. As you probably know, every separate line of business has one or more publications devoted exclusively to its particular line. Each employer, be he big or little, looks to his particular business paper for guidance. These publishers believe that they can contribute greatly to this movement by getting each employer, in turn, to organize his employees to save and to invest their money.

On Friday, January 21st, a group of these men met and arranged to call a special meeting for this present week to organize, and sent the following telegram to the national headquarters of both the Young Men's Christian Association and the Knights of Columbus so the work would be maintained until they could get into action.

"We strongly urge that the splendid work of the Thrift Campaign be continued by the maintenance of the committees now organized and that they make immediate effort to get employers to start thrift and investment campaigns among their men. We endorse and will support editorially the thrift and investment idea and will recommend similar action by other business publications."

Freight in C.L. & L.C.L.

Forever settled is the question of freight handling—whether in car load or less than car load lots—when shipment is made from this manufacturing center, served by three of the main trunk line railroads with their freight depots and numerous switch-track sidings, making direct connection to and from the East, West and South and within a short truck haul of the docks of the merchant marine.

Other features of interest to every manufacturer are:

LOCATION — Within the world's great 20-mile circle and with trolley and train commutation service every few minutes to the metropolis.

LABOR — A million population to draw from, with special inducements to male employing industries — the present female employing industries causing a surplus of thousands of skilled and unskilled men in all trades with 15,000 men at present available.

FACTORY BUILDINGS — Several modern mills may be leased or purchased on satisfactory terms, but for those desiring special types of construction new buildings will be erected.

POWER — Many self-contained power units are incorporated within the plants, available for immediate occupancy. In addition, however, there is the usual public utility electric service and a chartered hydro-electric power plant.

BANKING — Three National Banks, Five Trust Companies and One Savings Institution with combined resources of almost One Hundred Millions of Dollars, have pledged their support to manufacturers locating in this district, and of course there are the additional banking facilities of nearby New York.

HOUSING — All the advantages of Manhattan Island, with the added facilities of an attractive suburban community, are made possible by the "every minute" train commutation and trolley service.

NOTE — Few manufacturers have been in the fortunate position to establish their plants in so advantageous a location and under such desirable conditions as are offered by the merchants, bankers, manufacturers and workingmen of this wholesome community.

THE bankers, merchants, manufacturers and workers in a large industrial city within the metropolitan district have commissioned us to act for them in presenting to the public what may well be considered one of the largest industrial movements in this country.

Details, including literature, photographs, special plant studies and general information concerning available manufacturing space, will be furnished upon application to

LA SALLE and the City of his Dreams

A rustle of prairie grass—a loud report—the treacherous bullet of a jealous follower, and La Salle, first European to descend the Mississippi to its mouth, lay dead.

He had raised the standards of France, he had named the region Louisiana, he had made it inevitable that the future New Orleans should be French.

As you wander among fascinating gardens or peep into picturesque patios; as you stop awestruck before the Cathedral St. Louis or explore the quaint ways and by-ways of the Rue Royal—as you enjoy all the delights of the old French Quarter in modern New Orleans, you will give thanks that the martyred La Salle achieved his purpose and that the countless beauties of the Sunset Route include the charm of this "Gateway to the Golden Southwest."

The Billboard is issued weekly and covers in its news features every department and avenue of the Show World.

In its many years of serving the actors, actresses, theatre-owners, and producers of this country from ocean to ocean, it has builded a reputation for up-to-the-minute accuracy in matters of vital interest to the people of the Show World that makes it first and foremost in its field with not one near competitor in either news or circulation.

Its influence, its suggestions, its recommendations of things of the Show World and for its people carry the weight of authority and sustain the confidence of the test of time.

Some Facts about the Billboard Magazine for Advertising Men

For many years The Billboard has carried more advertising from and to the people of the Show World than all of its competitors combined.

The Billboard prints and circulates more magazines each week than the other five most pretentious publications that appeal to this field of high salaried people.

It is the only medium of the Show World used for classified advertising. The trained advertising man well knows that classified advertising appears continually only where it pays.

Thousands of the readers of The Billboard receive weekly salaries of $500 and up. They are all big money makers and also liberal spenders.

All advertising contracts in The Billboard are made on a guarantee basis. The circulation books and records of The Billboard are always open to Advertising Agencies and Advertisers.

The Billboard's Readers—Its Place in the Amusement World

If you have anything to sell to actors, actresses, musicians, advance men, managers, theatre-owners or showmen The Billboard offers you a market place to display your wares to all these people in the United States. They all read it.

The national advertiser who manufactures or sells specialties in hats, clothes, shoes, umbrellas, canes, underwear, hosiery, corsets, lingerie, foods, candies, trunks, traveling articles or stationery, perfumes or toilet requisites, can advertise them in The Billboard with great profit.

Prove it to yourself by buying a copy at the nearest newstand and writing to any of its 2,000 advertisers asking them if it pays them and how it would pay you—then go to your advertising agent, ask his opinion—arrange your schedule for 1921—in The Billboard.

THE PRESIDENT ON RUSSIA.

The note which Mr. WILSON directed the State Department to send to the President of the Assembly of the League of Nations starts off with the question of mediation in behalf of Armenia. That work the President had undertaken, at the request of the League, but now points out that it is complicated by the attitude of Soviet Russia. So is the whole matter of pacification from the Caucasus to the Baltic. The border States live in terror of the Bolsheviki. The Bolsheviki profess to fear attack by foreign troops. To clear the situation, the President proposes that the Great Powers unite in a "solemn engagement" not to undertake nor to permit any invasion of Russia.

In everything but joint form, this engagement has already been made. The British Government has officially bound itself not to attack Russia. So has the French. That the United States should begin an offensive against Russia is as incredible as that Italy should. Russia stands today absolutely safe from any foreign aggression.

How about a Russian aggressive? Mr. WILSON does not rule out the possibility of it. He merely desires outside nations to make their position so plain that if any war does break out on the Russian frontier the "responsibility" for it will be "clearly placed." In such an event, the President could not possibly wish Western Europe to bind itself not to resist a Bolshevist irruption that would threaten to overwhelm civilization. It certainly would be resisted by France, probably by Germany, almost surely by England. It is for this reason that the reported concentration of a Red army on the western front is the cause of apprehension and of preparation. If it seeks to overrun Poland and Germany and Rumania, it must be fought and beaten and driven back and pursued into Russian territory, if necessary.

There is nothing in the State Department note to forbid such action. President WILSON is under no illusion respecting Soviet Russia. He speaks of the original Russian Revolution as "beneficent in its main purposes," but is aware that it has been perverted in the hands of a "violent and tyrannical minority," who seized power by a military coup d'état. If the unscrupulous and untrustworthy dictators at Moscow should seek to prolong their bloody reign by a foreign war of conquest, they would have to be met and crushed by arms. The President's plan is not to yield to them, but to leave them without excuse if they attack.

THE LEAGUE AND ITS FUTURE.

Mr. BORAH'S move for limited disarmament and Mr. KNOX'S plan to make peace with Germany by declaration are piecemeal correctives of dangerous conditions that would have been met as a whole by the ratification of the Versailles Treaty. They are symptoms that discldse the presence of disease. That is not the whole problem. It is not simply a question of abating the competition in building warships, or of ending the technical state of war with Germany. Our position before the world and in the world is in jeopardy so long as we resist the profound desire of a very great part of our own people and of all our sister nations that we unite with other Governments and other peoples in the effort to make secure the fruits of the war.

We bespeak of all the friends of the League of Nations and of those who have opposed it a candid reading, more than that, a faithful study, of the series of articles of which the first appears upon this page today; there will be five articles in all, appearing upon successive days. These articles, "Why a League of Nations Is Needed," prepared by "A Pro-League Republican," put before the reader a picture of the League as it stands after the discussions and practical demonstrations of the first meeting at Geneva. It is a picture drawn by a friendly but impartial hand. The five articles will present a clear and informing analysis of the nature and powers of the League, of its virtues and of its defects, of errors in its constitution that are curable or have been cured. They dwell upon the great gain in practical efficiency through the creation of the International Court of Justice, and point out how grounds upon which much of the opposition in this country was based have been removed by clearer understanding reached at Geneva or by rulings in actual cases arising. The aim of the writer is to demonstrate that there is now no obstacle which reason cannot surmount to the union of the United States with the forty-seven other nations that have come together to substitute law and justice for war in the adjustment of differences.

There are premises and postulates in this series of articles from which THE TIMES would withhold assent. We believe the United States, by staying out, has already suffered greater losses than any that would have accrued to it from going in. But all that is of the past. The question now, and it is a question of immeasurable importance, is not of theory, but of the conditions that confront us. We are in a position of visible danger. Business men know and feel this now, great numbers of far-sighted students of international conditions knew it months ago. We may leave out of the account our moral loss, the sacrifice of leadership; we may put in the second place the risk of some cooling in international friendships, even the impairment of our influence in councils of the nations. But we should be very blind, indeed, if we did not see that by holding aloof we foolishly surrender to others a decisive advantage in availing of commercial opportunities that, as a great producing nation, we should have been alert to secure for ourselves. If American business men will attentively read the articles of "A Pro-League Republican," and having read them will see and understand, we shall hope for some effective pressure from that quarter in favor of the desired end. It is no longer a question of politics, and prejudice ought not to be allowed to stand in the way of the prosperity and welfare and the good repute of the American people.

ALREADY A SUPER-SENATE.

In suggesting a body of thirty men to have charge hereafter of foreign affairs, Mr. VANDERLIP says that it might be called a "Super-Senate." But he has been anticipated. The thing we already have. It is to be found in the Senate's Committee on Foreign Relations. This consists of seventeen members. As the Democratic Senators do not count, control lies with the ten Republican Senators. A majority of them would be six. These six—say, LODGE, BORAH, BRANDEGEE, KNOX, JOHNSON, MOSES—really decide everything. They set aside the President. They dictate to the Senate. Naturally, six can do it better than thirty could. And if one were to charge them with setting themselves up as a Super-Senate, they would not deny the soft impeachment. They would smilingly be proud of it.

MR. HARDING TO THE SOUTH.

The Chairman and Vice Chairman of the Georgia Central Republican Committee were asked to resign in a peppery meeting of that body on the day when Mr. HARDING was making his Republican and protective overtures to the "Southland." His friendly and cordial feeling, apart from any political intention, is evident; but what has politics got to do with friendship save among irritable or fanatical partisans? The South and the North are perfectly good friends, and the conversion of the South or much of it to Republicanism wouldn't make them any better friends.

Protection is the road by which the South is asked to come from the wilderness to the Republican fold. The South must be made "as industrially "eminent as the States of the North "and East." There is but one way to industrial eminence, "a national "economic policy, safeguarded in "protective tariffs." The North and East are not fervid with the old "flame of industry," as Mr. HARDING calls it. Won't the farmers and manufacturers of the South and West put their hands to the hoty fire and take the place of these Eastern Laodiceans?

The little flurry of protection in the South is presumably transient, and Mr. HARDING will scarcely stimulate it by using the before-the-war formula:

> I do not see how we can retain our home markets, upon which American good fortune must be founded, and at the same time maintain American standards of production and American standards of living, unless we make other peoples with lower standards of living pay for the privilege of trading in the American markets.

This is antediluvian. It doesn't occur to Mr. HARDING that our debtor nations can't pay interest, to say nothing of principal, save in goods; that our farmers and manufacturers must sell their surplus abroad. The making of a protective tariff of the old style is impossible under the new imperious conditions. Not for South or North has the outworn talisman the magic power so long attributed to it. Facts have knocked down the fetich.

JAPAN'S GRIEVANCE.

Ambassador MORRIS made a useful contribution to the stock of public information when in his remarks at the University Club luncheon on Saturday he clearly set forth the nature of the differences between the United States and Japan which he and the Japanese Ambassador are endeavoring to bring to an adjustment by treaty.

The Japanese Government does not complain of our naturalization laws; it recognizes the right of a sovereign State "to determine the conditions and limits of naturalization." It recognizes our right to make laws regulating "the admission or residence of foreigners among us," and in the agreement of 1908 it voluntarily limits emigration. It does not ask the removal of existing restrictions.

The discrimination of which that Government complains is embodied in the California land laws. By the act of 1913 and in the laws sanctioned by the recent referendum that State deprives aliens ineligible to citizenship of certain property rights, including the right of holding land individually or through a trust. The Japanese, says Ambassador MORRIS, "contend "that it is unjust and unfair to pick "out a particular group of aliens who "are under certain political disabilities and deprive them of rights "which all other aliens are permitted to enjoy." In the Ambassador's view their protest presents this question: "In the larger view "of our relations with the Orient is "it wise thus to classify aliens on "the basis of their eligibility to citizenship?"

California's answer does not meet the question at all. She sees danger to the interests of her people in the coming of Japanese, in the ownership of land by Japanese. But that is no evidence that discrimination based on lack of the right to become a citizen is the wise way or the just way to attain this desired end. It is a one-sided answer; for it takes account only of the wishes of Californians, altogether disregarding the desires and the sensibilities of the Japanese. Any permanent settlement of the issue must regard both sides. We must consider the just demand of the Japanese to equality of treatment; they must take account of the strong feeling that prevails among the people of California. It is upon the basis of mutual concession and understanding that just and enduring treaties are made between nations.

This is not a matter for popular clamor and agitation in either country. The settlement must be reached by the intelligent efforts of responsible statesmen of Japan and the United States, negotiating in the spirit of that firm friendship which has always prevailed between the two peoples.

RELIEVING THE UNEMPLOYED.

As the growing army of the unemployed are the victims of economic conditions for which they are not to blame, temporary relief is the duty of the community and local governments. The condition will pass, but while it is acute no man should go hungry, no family be neglected. In almost every city social service organizations are providing meals for the unemployed who have saved nothing for a rainy day or who have been unfortunate. But what most of the destitute want is work, not benevolence or charity; and work is being found by many municipalities to the limit of their resources. A typical case of municipal aid is the appropriation of $250,000 by the City Council of Detroit, where two weeks ago 160,000 men were out of work. During the war the wage rate was high in Detroit, the standard having been set by HENRY FORD, who was in a position to defy competition and to be a law unto himself in making wage schedules. Detroit today is paying the penalty of his uneconomic policy. It has more than its share of unemployed. The money now appropriated by the city is to be administered by the City Welfare Commission.

It is the duty of employers of labor, especially of those whose profits were large during the war, to strain a point to furnish work for their deserving men. And they are doing it in a great many cases, some of them at a steady loss. In the end they will not be losers by their humanity. One great concern near New York has much stock on hand that it cannot dispose of, but it provides work for its operatives five days each week. Only a company with a surplus or unfailing credit could afford to do this.

Demonstrations by unemployed men to draw attention to their necessities should be permitted so long as they keep within the law. They will be wise if they do so. Lawlessness would only have the effect of aggravating their condition and postponing the resumption of employment for all. Disorder is not a congenial atmosphere for industry. Montreal has witnessed a disquieting incident that stopped just short of lawlessness. A crowd of men, some of whom were out of work and others of whom did not want to work, as the sequel showed, marched into a restaurant and demanded food. They were at first refused, and threats were made. Subsequently they were fed, but the police had to be asked to clear the place for the regular patrons. Some restaurants make it a practice to provide a "bread line" at night for the hungry, but in the Montreal case the proprietor evidently believed that he would escape trouble, at the time or later, by becoming host to his threatening visitors. The demand for food was in its nature a disorderly manifestation, and it was not warranted by the attitude of the local authorities toward the unemployed. Later these demonstrators could all have had city work shoveling snow, but many of them declined it, some of their leaders persuading them not to consider a wage of 32½ cents an hour.

Montreal has arranged to give employment to every man in need of it, provided he shows his good faith by registering. The restaurant invasion was disquieting, because, according to the Chairman of the Administrative Commission, a Bolshevist element is fomenting trouble among the unemployed and has a hand in every demonstration. This official intimates that a resort for the radicals was a place opened by an organization calling itself the Unemployed ex-Service Men's Association. This would be sinister if true. In the United States, where the American Legion sets an example to ex-service men by championing law and order, radicals of Bolshevist tendencies could not claim sympathy in that quarter.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

Of Course He Will Be Envied.

Three men of science connected with the Everhart Museum in Scranton started by steamer from this port, last week, for the Isthmus of Panama, where they are to collect for their institution specimens of plant and animal life in the Canal Zone. With them, whether as a reward of merit or in response to supplication is not stated, went one FORD PETHICK, Boy Scout and senior in the Scranton High School, and of him it is reported with entire plausibility that "he is the envy of the Scranton youth because he gets out of five months' school work, and is in for a heap of adventure, yet will receive a diploma on his return."

Of course, PETHICK is envied by any boy, scout or other, who is worthy of any name better than "mollycoddle" or "fraidy-cat." Also, utter forgetfulness of his own boyhood would be revealed by any commentator who professed astonishment that escape from school for five months should loom large in PETHICK'S mind, and in those of his fellow students and scouts, among the reasons for holding him enviable. Yet it would be very easy to prove that boys should like to go to school and should grieve whenever for a month, a week, or even a day, they are deprived of a chance to add to the store of knowledge and training which will be, as they all perfectly well know, of enormous value to them later in life. After the demonstration had been made, however, the fact would remain that, except in cases rare enough to be more or less pathological, the young of the human species inclines to regard the teacher as a natural enemy, rather than as a friend and benefactor, and holds every holiday as gain, not loss.

Education Gained Out of School.

There may be a hint of present appreciation on the part of teachers that school is not the only place to get "education" in the decision by the school authorities of Scranton that five months of association and work with naturalists in the Canal Zone are an equivalent to attendance for the same period at high school. There have been, and probably are, however, a good many professional educators who would doubt or deny that that equivalence, though now there are not a few, one can believe, who would admit, or even proclaim, that what young PETHICK will get on the Isthmus, if he is the sort of boy to profit by his opportunity, will be, not as much as, but much more than, the high school could have given him.

Perhaps the last words should be changed to "would have given him," but not unless the Scranton High School is a very unusual one. If it is—if to the pupils in it the teachers can and do open paths to as high adventure in letters and science as exist in Panama—then the difference is not so great and might be the other way around and PETHICK would be a proper object of commiseration, not of envy.

His "Way" Was Not Made for Him.

In his speech at the dinner of the Young Men's Bible Class of which he has been so long a member, the younger JOHN D. ROCKEFELLER said that his own life had been such, in comparison with that of his father, that the latter seemed enviable to him for only one thing—"he had to make his own way in the world, and I never have known what that was."

Perhaps if the son were less modest than he is he would realize, whether he said so or not, that he, too, has had to make his own way in the world, and to do it against obstacles and difficulties at least as great as those that confronted his father, and that his success, though different from that of the father, has been, if anything, more notable.

It is not necessary to hold that a rich man's son starts his career under a heavier handicap than does the poor man's son, for early poverty gives no better assurance against failure in life than does early wealth. Both poverty and wealth have their dangers, but while the son of a rich father does not have to make his own way in the sense Mr. ROCKEFELLER had in mind when he used the phrase, he yet is exposed to quite as many temptations as is the son of the poor father, and if he yields to them he may be sure that his defeat will attract vastly more attention and be the subject of vastly more comment than follows a progression from the slum to the prison or the almshouse.

And not less ability is required for the wise handling and utilization of a fortune than for its acquisition. Indeed, so many and so lamentable have been the failures to meet the obligations imposed by prosperity that the man who does it as well as has the junior ROCKEFELLER hardly is justified in expressing regret that he missed in early years the various compulsions to industry and thrift to which the sons of the poor are subjected.

When at the same dinner he made the million-dollar gift for the starving women and children of Europe he could not have had a thrill as keen as would have been his who, in doing the same thing, as the saying is, had "started with nothing." That is a loss which he can charge against fate, but surely he can get, if he will, a compensating thrill from the consciousness that, in spite of never having known what it was to be poor, he has been able to show the qualities, the sense of trusteeship, that are the vindications of great accumulations in any man's hands.

A Yielding Under the Pressure.

In the dispatches of a single day last week there was announced the turning of a great wine cellar into a gymnasium and of a large brewery into a place to raise mushrooms. Previous announcements of the same sort had been numerous in the year during which prohibition had been, according to some authorities, such an utter failure, and, taken together, they give not a little excuse for hoping—or fearing—that the failure has not been quite so nearly complete as some have reported.

That the success of prohibition has not been complete—as yet—is admitted, even by its most zealous friends, but they are not despairing and have no reason to be. Instead, they watch the progress of events with a fair approach to equanimity, knowing, as they do, that accumulated stocks in private and public hands, though large, will not last forever.

The Fingerprint System.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I was greatly surprised to read in your issue of Jan. 19 in a Paris dispatch the phrase "Since Bertillon established the science of fingerprints."

This is a popular and for some reason a deep-rooted fallacy. Let me quote from Bertillon's own work on identification—page 13, 1893 edition, English translation. After argument in favor of his own fine system, he says:

"Thus, the solution of the problem of judicial identification consists less in the search for new characteristic elements of individuality than in the discovery of a method of classification. Certainly I do not deny, to speak only of the Chinese method, that the filigreed arabesques found on the epidermis of the anterior face of the thumb may be at the same time permanent in the same subject and extraordinarily variable from one subject to another; and that every individual may thus possess a species of seal, original and entirely distinctive. Unfortunately, it is quite as undeniable, in spite of the ingenious investigations made by Mr. Francis Galton in England, that these designs taken by themselves do not present elements of variability sufficiently well defined to serve as a basis of classification in a file of several hundred thousand cases."

It is perfectly apparent from this paragraph that Bertillon did not establish the fingerprint system, as he argues against it, and at the same time names the individual who did establish the scientific basis on which the art is practiced throughout the English-speaking world today. That Dr. Bertillon guessed wrongly about the classifying of fingerprints is, of course, common knowledge today.

As I write, the 1920 report of the Bureau of Criminal Identification, Department of Justice, Leavenworth, Kan., is before me, wherein A. J. Rense, special agent in charge, reports 322,063 fingerprint records on file June 30, 1920, and I am informed that our Navy Department has a file of well over a million records.

That Bertillon came to see and acknowledge his error is evident from a circular issued in January, 1894, giving instructions and making provision for the taking and recording of the digital impressions from the right hand on the signaletic card of his department.

Give to Galton the credit for establishing the fingerprint system, and to Bertillon the credit for establishing the anthropometric system that carries his name. Don't mix them.

Mr. Craig as Budget Maker.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The resignation of Controller Charles L. Craig as Chairman of the Budget Committee of the Board of Estimate is to be regretted. As one brought into close relationship with him I may say that I have found him intelligent, straightforward, extremely able in financial estimates and most punctilious in meeting actual obligations. Mr. Craig has shown ability in the preparation and presentation of a budget which is without a rival in the country for clarity and fullness. After this budget is adopted not an alteration can be made in it. It is flexible in the making, inflexible in the application. I may add that the examiners who look into the estimates while the budget is being made are also most able, conscientious and fair-minded. Needless to say, they are overworked. To the present civic administration must be given the credit of making the largest appropriations which have ever been made to the city's free public institutions of learning and education. There are certain inside troubles with the schools which might be disposed of had the School Board a system adequate to deal with $70,000,000 of accounts.

There is much to be said in favor of the present financial administration. Few people ever know that the city has a working budget system. I have thought it right to send you this communication in justice to Mr. Craig and to the department over which he has presided.

Latin Seeds of Culture.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

President-elect Harding's letter to the Sulgrave Institution, in which he says that "destiny has made it a historical fact that the English-speaking peoples have been the instrument through which civilization has been flung to the far corners of the world," and from which one might surmise that the present League of Nations is called "a bungling association," sounds rather undiplomatic as written by a future President.

The Teutonic race had, and probably still has, a similar self-sufficient appreciation of its importance to civilization; and not destiny but actual accomplishment induces the Latins to believe that they have not flung but shattered the seeds of civilization all over the face of our planet.

Bearing in mind that something is better than nothing, the world at large is satisfied that the League of Nations exists and awaits in suspense for that "workable association" which seems still in formation in the mind of the President-elect.

THE UNBORN SONGS.

I was a strolling player, in those years
When all the world was sane, before the war,
And people loved my music, for the notes
Were high and keen and clear, and like the call
Of wild birds homing—or, sometimes, the tones
Would throb and beat and moan, like life itself.
And they were all my songs—my songs—and, God!
I was so happy.

Then war came, and I saw it only as
A high adventure, and a dear, glad service.
The red tumult, and swift murder—all the loathsome
Things around me tore the very fibres of
My heart—and that I could have borne, until
They shot my arm away!

And now this wan, chaotic peace has come,
And I sit huddled here, a deeper blotch
Of dark among the graying shadows, while
Sweet, unborn songs in search of fingers run
All tingling down my arm to where it—stops!
And high, clear notes, or deep and true, that once
Were mine, like plaintive, far-off Pipes of Pan,
Are always calling. . . .

H. WILSON EVANS.

WHY A LEAGUE OF NATIONS IS NEEDED.

Political Differences That Have Stood in the Way of America's Participation Should Now Be Overcome—Promises of the Republican Platform.

By a Pro-League Republican.

First Article.

Something less than sympathy has been meted out, on either hand, to pro-League Republicans. Being Republicans, how can they be for the League—any League? And if they do believe in the principle at stake, how can they be opposed to the Paris covenant? Both questions are asked in the tone of accusation.

To a superficial view of the present political situation, both parties have executed a volte-face. For decades before the war Republican leaders, men of vast experience in foreign affairs, have with scarcely an exception championed the cause of world peace. In this they have truly represented the spirit of the American people, who have traditionally stood for international law and for the friendly adjustment by arbitration of such differences as are purely political. Presidents McKinley, Roosevelt and Taft have all been explicit on the subject and, with their Secretaries of State and Senate Committees on Foreign Relations, have labored unceasingly in the cause. The same cannot be said of the one leader of the Democratic Party who has been our Executive during this period and who is now the chief champion of the covenant. In 1914, on the eve of the war, President WILSON declared:

"America should lead her own life. We cannot form alliances with those who are not going our way. We need not, and we should not, form alliances with any nation in the world. Those who are right, those who hold their honor higher than their advantage, do not need alliances."

During the first two years of the war this was his guiding principle. Our duty was to be neutral even in our thoughts. The war was not our war; with its causes and consequences we had nothing to do.

It is with no wish to open old sores that all this is recalled. The issues to which it relates are past, a matter of history. And if the President changed his mind it must also be acknowledged that not a few of those Republicans who were once most wholé-heartedly in favor of a League of Nations became enemies of the Paris covenant and thus laid themselves open to charges of inconsistency, even of partisan malice. For the present the important point is to establish the historic fact—to envisage it calmly, candidly, in its true proportions. If we could eliminate the strife of the last few years we should, I believe, find that the leaders of both parties are at heart warmly in favor of the basic principles of a League of Nations.

As time passes other facts are emerging. Even in the height of the Senate struggle the calm vision of Lord Grey of Fallodon discerned, what is now generally conceded, that the issue involved much more than a partisan gain. Beneath the question as to the Paris covenant was a grave constitutional question as to the prerogative of the Senate in foreign affairs. Nor is the repute of the covenant among its champions what it once was. The session of the League at Geneva has shown that Senate misgivings as to certain vital provisions in the covenant were prophetic. Generous minded Republicans meanwhile have seen reason for softening their condemnation of President WILSON. This much, at least, is beyond dispute: his advocacy of the covenant was inspired by a white heat of intellectual passion seldom equaled in an American statesman, and in obeying its call he has given himself to the utmost, with a heroism little short of martyrdom.

Yet differences remain that are very great, perhaps irreconcilable. How shall we account for them? A single word gives the answer—politics. The price that republics pay for their freedom is government by party. As long as the cause of world peace remained detached and esoteric it inspired generous minds to harmony and the spirit of co-operation. In politics, it has been said, the noblest issue tends to be fought out on its lowest level. President WILSON'S passion for a world alliance was that of the neophyte in whose blinding vision there is no place for the realities of day to day. He was impatient of doubt, neglectful of our traditional methods in negotiating treaties—and so laid himself open to the charge of autocracy. Mere experienced and inveterate champions of world association perceived that his course threatened the ruin of an age-old aspiration—and their opposition to him was construed as mere partisan spite. Regrettable as is this tendency to the abasement of issues, it has one advantage. If the long run it is not the great leaders who determine the fate of a new idea, a new spirit, but the mass of common men. When an issue has borne the test of a political campaign it is no longer esoteric. For better as for worse, it has become a part of the multitudinous consciousness. Hopes that are too generous and passions that are base alike subside. Reality remains—a reality that is scaled to the normal vision. Truth is brought down from the skies, but it dwells among men.

Something of this sort, I believe, has come to pass with regard to the League plank in the Republican platform. At the time of the Chicago convention it was assailed as a low compromise, a "straddle" between the pro-League and the irreconcilable elements in the party. Even Republican newspapers were lukewarm toward it, or openly satirical. That its precise form had a certain relevancy to the political situation can scarcely be denied. Nor need it be denied. In every party conflict—beneath it and above it—is the fact that the destiny of the people is at stake. Only four years ago the leadership of the nation in the great war had been determined by a factional strife having even less relevance to the dominant issue. Under party government to keep a party united is often a work of statesmanship. The most one can ask is that the means employed shall be candid, sincere. It must be based upon a true and intrinsic, not a factitious, principle of harmony. This, I believe, was the case with the League plank in the Chicago platform, and I believe that the time has already come, thanks to the clearer vision that has resulted from the Geneva meeting of the League, when fair-minded men will admit it.

The genuine differences between the Republicans and President WILSON were only two, but they were vital. Under McKinley in 1899 and under Roosevelt in 1907 the United States had taken a leading part in the Hague conferences. The obstacles to the cause of peace had then proved to be very great; as regards the establishment of any sure check upon warfare they were, at least for the time being, insurmountable. But definite progress had been made toward instituting a permanent court for the arbitration of political issues, and the American representatives had high hopes that at no distant date the opinion of mankind would be prepared to accept a court that should render decisions under international law, and in so doing enlarge its scope and codify it. Desirable as it undoubtedly is to put a direct check upon the belligerence of the nations, it seemed more immediately feasible to nip the causes of war in the bud by procuring the arbitration of political issues and the impartial adjudication of such causes as fall under international law. To gain the maximum of benefit, the jurisdiction of the court should be obligatory over all member nations. While the covenant was taking form at Paris, this view was vigorously urged. President WILSON set his face resolutely against it, preferring to vest the chief authority in a purely political council dominated by the great nations and wielding the powerful weapons of an economic blockade and military force. As a result of Republican criticism of the first draft of the covenant, provision was made in the second and present draft for an international court; but it fell far short of satisfying the critics. Under the covenant resort to law, even to arbitration, remains voluntary, and the basic power in dealing with disputes, including those that are essentially legal, is still vested in a political council.

The feasibility of this plan of a dominant council was always doubtful to those who had intimate experience with the Hague conferences, and their doubts have been, to say the least, heightened by events at the Geneva meeting of the League; but their objection goes far beyond the question of feasibility, important as that is. Between a court of law and the Council of the League there is a difference which is a difference of kind, and which often involves a difference of morality. The representatives in the Council are, strictly speaking, ambassadors responsible to and controlled by the member nations—often, indeed, reponsible to and controlled by a single party. It is in the nature of their office that their decisions shall be dictated by the interests of their nations—or of their political parties—at the time of the crisis in hand. Their controlling principle is, and must be, expediency. But the expediency of any given moment is often a very different thing from permanent principles of right. These are a matter of law, and for their proper interpretation impartial judges are indispensable, whose honor and allegiance are not to any nation, least of all to a party, but to a permanent code as established and interpreted by the free conscience of mankind. To subject such questions to the decision of a political council must often be to mock justice and sow seeds of discord that will disrupt the best efforts of mankind toward peace.

This first objection to the Paris covenant is explicitly stated in the Chicago platform. Though "the Republican Party stands for agreement among the nations to preserve the peace of the world," it believes "that such an international association must be based upon international justice and must provide methods which shall maintain the rule of public right by the development of law and the decision of impartial courts." The Paris covenant "ignored the universal sentiment of America for generations past in favor of international law and arbitration, and it rested the hope of the future upon mere expediency and negotiation." As we shall see, the plank does not exclude a political council—quite the contrary; it only stipulates that the basis of the league or association shall be in law and justice.

The second difference between the Republicans and President WILSON was with regard to the powers of the Council—or, more strictly speaking, with regard to the degree in which the member nations should give pledges as to their future action. To say that the party stood "against all surrender of national sovereignty" is in a measure misleading. In many existing treaties our sovereignty is already distinctly abated, as in the treaty with England agreeing not to fortify the Great Lakes. Many of the Republican leaders, moreover, had already declared in favor of a League of Nations armed with a military and naval force to give its decisions "sanction." President ROOSEVELT was vigorously explicit on this point. Senator LODGE, though he never failed to stress the many difficulties in the undertaking, seems also to have contemplated what, in some degree at least, is a superstate. Ex-President TAFT, though he voted the Republican ticket, is still an ardent advocate of a league to enforce peace. Clearly, the ideal toward which the Republican leaders are tending is a world in which right and justice are strictly enforceable. If the present world were an ideal world, then indeed Article X.—somewhat more clearly drafted—would be the heart of the covenant.

Unfortunately, the present world is not ideal; nations are often jealous and grasping, and thus opposed to any association which subjects them to external control. The late war, and especially the insensate bickering that followed the war, awakened most dreamers of an enforceable peace with a cold douche of reality. A great danger was seen in the attempt to do too much, in the attempt to pledge the people to the enforcement of world peace before they were aware of all it involved and prepared to make the necessary sacrifice. As was clearly manifest at Geneva, the "automatic" exertion of the armed forces of the nations—possibly, also of the economic boycott—are feasible only in a world so advanced in idealism as to be scarcely in need of them. To pledge the nations to "automatic" obedience in such matters is to place them in an attitude which, however unconscionably, is essentially insincere; it is to open the way to charges of bad faith and disloyalty, and thus to multiply and not to extirpate the roots of discord.

> We believe that all this [the development of international law and the organization of a Council for immediate political action] can be done without the compromise of national independence, without depriving the people of the United States in advance of the right to determine for themselves what is just and fair when the occasion arises, and without involving them as participants and not as peacemakers in a multitude of quarrels, the merits of which they are unable to judge.

The covenant signed by the President at Paris failed signally to accomplish this great purpose, and contains stipulations, not only intolerable for an independent people, but certain to produce the injustice, hostility and controversy among nations which it proposed to prevent.

With regard to the Council, the political arm of the League, the Republican platform calls for an abatement rather than for an extension of the functions conferred under the covenant; but the spirit of its criticism is the same. It proposes to build firmly, however slowly, upon the established and familiar practice of the present. "Leg over leg, the dog went to Dover." National policies are often based, not upon any established principle of right, but upon the sovereign will. Of this our Monroe Doctrine is a shining example, and it has many analogues in Europe. When such policies come into conflict, or threaten to come into conflict, the increasing practice has been to call a conference of all the nations involved or in any way interested.

As early as 1849, Richard Cobden, speaking of the Congress of Vienna, exclaimed: "I want to know whether as good men as Lord Castlereagh could not be found to settle these matters before, as after, a twenty years' war?" The idea was expanded by the King of Portugal in opening the Cortes:

> "Congresses which assemble in consequence of war only sanction, as a rule, the advantages secured by the strongest; and the treaties which result from such congresses rest on accomplished fact rather than on right. They create forced situations, ending in general uneasiness, and producing protests and armed demands. A congress before war, and intended to prevent war, is to my mind a generous idea, favoring progress."

In 1905 the Algeciras conference, brought about largely by the influence of President ROOSEVELT, gave time for reflection and an exchange of views which probably prevented war. In 1912, when the Balkan wars threatened to spread among the great powers, Ambassadors from all Europe met in London and managed to avert the crisis. In 1914 Sir Edward GREY endeavored to bring about a similar conference, and it is probable that if he had succeeded the great war would have been averted. The Paris covenant provides for a most natural, comprehensible and efficacious extension of this "generous" idea.

The Council is, in effect, a permanent international conference of Ambassadors. It does not depend upon the chance offices of a distant statesman, as in the case of President ROOSEVELT, nor upon the more difficult intervention of a statesman representing a nation more closely concerned, as in the case of Sir Edward GREY. It exists permanently. It has, furthermore, the important duty of searching out causes of conflict in their infancy and of bringing them into the world's forum, so that all nations may become informed as to the facts of the situation and the rights and wrongs involved. As no pledge for future action is involved, there can be little doubt that this mechanism will be not only "automatic" but instant and almost inevitably successful. A large part of the Paris covenant is devoted to this function of the Council. In his first commentary upon it, in his letter to Will H. Hays, dated March 29, 1919, Elihu ROOT gave it unstinted praise. "I repeat that this scheme for the settlement of political questions such as brought about the present war is of very great practical value, and it would be a sad thing if this opportunity for the establishment of such a safeguard against future wars should be lost."

The Republican platform declares in favor of an international association "which shall secure instant and general international conference whenever peace shall be threatened by political action, so that the nations pledged to do and insist on what is just and fair may exercise their influence and power for the prevention of war." Note the words "insist" and "power." Much can be done in the clear light of a threatened crisis which no nation can safely pledge itself to do in an indefinite crisis of as indeterminate future.

This League plank, obviously, avoids details, confining itself to basic principles. During the campaign the Republicans were reproached for not more clearly outlining their "international association." The President himself had called upon them to "put up or shut up." But there was at that time no body of men authorized to draw up a detailed plan. If there had been, they could scarcely have done so without knowing what Europe was prepared to accept. In such negotiations it is the height of unwisdom to have the appearance of presenting an ultimatum. Almost a year must elapse, moreover, before the party could come into power, and the situation promised to be—as in fact it already is—radically changed. It was manifest, furthermore, that the great strategic weakness of the President's own position lay in the fact that he had produced the covenant complete in all detail and was irrevocably committed to it without having paused to consult the Senate or to enlighten the people of the United States.

Though the declaration in the Chicago platform was necessarily lacking in detail, however, on every vital issue as to the League of Nations it was explicit. During the campaign it held the party with a united front. If certain leaders privately demurred and still hold aloof, the fact is largely attributable, I believe, to an imperfect comprehension of the terms of the platform. The thought contained in that statement was far ahead of its time. But the time is rapidly coming abreast of it, and in such manner that the future seems destined to unite not only a single party, but all Americans who believe profoundly in the possibility of minimising warfare.

In the covenant as it stands there is a vast deal that is of great value, inspired by the highest wisdom. But there is also, as it seems to pro-League Republicans, a vast deal which, at the present stage of world opinion and morality, is impossible—and which the League itself, as it comes into action, is destined to slough off. The outstanding feature of the Geneva convention is that, quite unconsciously and in obedience to the instinctive reactions of human nature, the League is shaping itself to the dimensions of the Republican idea. The force of this statement will develop with a consideration of the transactions of that remarkable convention.

OHIO COLLEGES ASK BIG APPROPRIATION

OHIO STATE OVERCROWDED

With More Than 7,000 Students, It Has Equipment for Only 5,000—Many New Buildings Planned.

Special to The New York Times.

COLUMBUS, Ohio, Jan. 23.—Combining forces, the five State-supported colleges and universities of Ohio are waging a campaign in the State Legislature, which is now in session, to obtain an appropriation of $3,516,191 for operation and maintenance annually for the next two years and $5,839,860 for new buildings or other capital outlay during the [illegible].

These educational institutions are [illegible] competitive scramble for State support in which their jealousies often worked harm to all of them. The State of Ohio supports Ohio State University at Columbus, Ohio University at Athens, Miami University at Oxford, Bowling Green State Normal School at Bowling Green and Kent State Normal School at Kent.

The grant [illegible] in the budget for operation and maintenance exceeds the last biennial grant by nearly $1,200,000. However, the educational institutions state that the decreased purchasing power of the dollar really makes the proposed [illegible] less than the grant of five years ago. Furthermore, enrollment at each of the five institutions has increased greatly during this period and predictions point to an even greater increase.

In anticipation of this almost unprecedented swelling of enrollment, a vast building program is planned which even then will not take care of the needs of the various schools. Ohio State, the largest of the five, will get about four-fifths of the building appropriation and [illegible] new buildings are contemplated. These new structures include a unit [illegible] plant, to cost $384,000, a new home for the College of Education [illegible] and one for the College of Commerce and Journalism at $480,000. Erection of a general hospital for $850,000 [illegible] the largest single item, closely followed by the $450,000 for a new recitation and administration building. An agricultural building to cost $360,000 and a [illegible] building for $275,000, with an [illegible] laboratory, a wireless laboratory, a horse barn, a dairy cattle barn and a beef cattle building at lesser prices are also on the program.

Other portions of the fund would be used for buying more land for the university. [illegible] other buildings, already authorized by the Legislature, will be built as soon as conditions permit. Although more than 7,000 students attend Ohio State University, the present equipment can only care for 5,000 comfortably.

The program presented by the colleges to the Legislature is more or a plain statement of what is actually necessary to keep these institutions from being swamped and to list some steps toward the alleviation of conditions. Even this extensive building program does not take care of all the needs.

However, the Legislature will probably be in a more favorable frame of mind [illegible] approaching the subject. [illegible] years, not only were the State schools competing among themselves, but legislators were influenced by the interests of the numerous small schools in their own districts. Now, that the five State schools are working together, and Ohio State University has become recognized throughout the State, much of this sectionalism and selfishness will be [illegible].

OPPOSES BLUE LAW SUNDAY

Pastor Says Lutheran Church Does Not Favor Austere Observance.

The Lutheran Church is not in favor of enforcing Sunday observance by what are called "blue laws" in their austere and narrow severity," declared the Rev. Dr. Junius B. Remensnyder yesterday morning in St. James Lutheran Church, Madison Avenue and Seventy-third Street, of which he is pastor.

"The position of the Lutheran Church respecting Sunday has ever been more liberal than that of the Calvinistic churches," he said. After quoting Christ as saying, "The Sabbath was made for man, and not man for the Sabbath," he added:

"The Lutheran Church holds that Sunday should be a day for the free exercise of worship and a season of rest and gladness. When God and His worship are remembered in the forenoon the Lutheran Church thinks it well for those who have little opportunity for pleasant recreation during the toil and stress of the weekdays to be accorded such liberty during the rest of the day."

"There is great danger that the 'blue laws' will make Sunday a day to be dreaded," declared the Rev. Dr. Raymond C. Knox, chaplain of Columbia University, yesterday afternoon in St. Paul's Chapel. "Some people are becoming impatient and trying to take a short cut for making people good.

"The result will be inevitable. The Sabbath, instead of being a day of rest and gladness, will be again as Ruskin described it, 'A day which passed its shadow three days in advance.'"

NO BLUE SUNDAY IN SULU.

Sultan Makes It Only Day for Cockfighting to End Industrial Tie-Up.

Copyright, 1921, by The Chicago Tribune Co.

MANILA, Jan. 23.—Blue Sundays have gone into the discard on the Island of Sulu in the South Philippines and blue weekdays have come in instead, and all because the inhabitants have followed too closely the example set by their [illegible] Sultan.

The Sultan of Sulu is an ardent cockfighting fan, too ardent in fact—for it is whispered that it was during the Sultan's visit to the royal pits not long ago that the favorite of his harem eloped with the Chief of Police. It was on Sunday, by the way, and the new Chief of Police, appointed by the enraged Sultan, promptly ordained the first Sulu blue Sunday law—no cockfighting on Sunday.

But the result of the law's operation has been disastrous. Farm work was neglected all over the island and the natives devoted every day of the week except Sunday to their favorite sport.

To set the wheels of industry once more in motion the Sultan himself has invoked the royal prerogative and has proclaimed Sunday to be the official cockfighting day in his domain, the sport being taboo the rest of the week.

DEAR MEDICAL TRAINING.

Columbia Finds Costs Doubled—Plans $10,000,000 School.

It cost $4,600 to train a doctor at Columbia, according to university authorities, who say that of this sum the student contributes only $1,280. The expense has practically doubled in the last six years. Walter Mendelson, retiring President of the Association of the College of Physicians and Surgeons of Columbia University, says that Columbia needs a real university hospital. The Trustees are working on a plan to establish a medical centre, the cost of which will be about $10,000,000. Owing to lack of laboratory space, clinical material and proper instruction, the College of Physicians and Surgeons this year was unable to accept more than 100 students from 300 applicants.

Dr. James, Columbia alumni Trustee, in his report says that it is possible to carry on the work as inexpensively as before if the people are willing to go back to the health conditions of those days.

Henry E. Hale, class of '96, has been elected President of the Medical School alumni for the coming year, it is announced.

WOMAN DEFIES LIFTERS.

"Georgia Magnet" Gives Demonstration to Prove She Antedated Coulon.

In order to prove that she antedated by twenty years the feats of Johnny Coulon, who is now amazing Paris, Miss Annie Abbott, who calls herself "the Georgia Magnet," gave an anti-lifting demonstration to a group of reporters and other observers in the Astor Hotel yesterday. Four men who grasped her by the elbows and under the shoulders were unable to lift her from the floor nor could they push her against the wall when she stood with her finger tips resting against it.

Dr. Carleton Simon, Deputy Police Commissioner in charge of the Narcotic Division, and also a specialist in mental and physical phenomena, after watching Miss Abbott's performances, repeated them himself to a group of newspaper men, showing how she had made use of simple laws of gravity to defy her would-be lifters.

"If I place my hands on your arms," he said, "you will have to lift yourself to lift me. That is what Miss Abbott did." And he suited the action to the word. No one could budge him. He put his arms against the wall, each slightly bent, as Miss Abbott had done, and could not be pushed toward it.

"There is nothing metaphysical or supernatural in what Miss Abbott does," said Dr. Simon. "The laws of gravity she makes use of are well known. It is as simple as trying to lift oneself by the boot straps."

STANDS BY PARDON BOARD.

Prisoners' Relief Society Assails Texas Governor for Abolishing It.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 23.—Abolition by Governor Neff of Texas of the State Board of Pardons was attacked today by E. E. Dudding, President of the Prisoners' Relief Society, as the "removal of the great moral anchor" which has tended to control convicts. The spirit behind the Governor's action, Mr. Dudding declared, was "that of the days of Nero."

"When an oppressed, despondent man comes to believe that nobody cares for him he comes swiftly to care for nobody," Mr. Dudding said in a letter to the Texas Governor. "You shout brutality at a man and he will shout back with more brutality.

"A system of all hurting and no healing is bad, and I hope that you will change your attitude and grant Executive clemency to every convict who shows by his prison conduct that he wants to be a better man. You must remember, my dear Governor, that the devil is in us all."

The Prisoners' Relief Society announced receipt of a telegram from a committee in one of the Texas penitentiaries saying that the Governor's action had thrown the convicts into a panic. The society sent the committee the following reply:

"Be of good cheer. The people of Texas will not stand for the backward step the Governor proposes to make."

PRINCETON TO LIMIT STUDENTS TO 2,000

Restriction Is Necessary to Maintain Present Educational Methods, President Says.

SOUND FINANCIAL POLICY

Special to The New York Times.

PRINCETON, N. J., Jan. 23.—Plans to limit the student body of Princeton University, perhaps to 2,000 members, were announced here today by President John Grier Hibben, who said that a Faculty committee would be appointed to frame a proposal. Although Dr. Hibben did not mention the figure of 2,000, another unofficial statement gave that number as the desirable maximum, in the general opinion of the Faculty and alumni. The announcement is in line with a former statement of Dr. Hibben that it was his ambition that Princeton should be "not a big university, but a great university."

"We wish to limit the enrollment to that number which we can properly accommodate and still maintain the character of our Princeton life and educational policy," says the President's statement. "We have always believed in the greatest possible amount of direct contact between teacher and student and likewise in concentrating the life of the university upon the campus. We do not feel that we can maintain the university's traditional policy and our present educational methods if we allow ourselves to be drawn into a policy of indefinite expansion.

"Though there are other factors that enter into the situation, at the present time the deciding consideration must be that of sound educational policy. Financial difficulties, though with our present deficit of $212,000 they are serious, might be overcome.

"In restricting our numbers it would seem that for the present we are also confining ourselves to sound financial policy. Our plans for the endowment campaign were drawn in the belief that we were making provisions for the work of the university for the next ten years. Based on the rate of increase in enrollment in the ten-year period from 1905 to 1915, it was assumed that the university's undergraduate body would not reach the 2,000 limit before the expiration of that period. In the year 1917-18, as a result of the war, the total number of undergraduates at Princeton was reduced to 808.

"This year there are already in attendance 1,816 undergraduates, and it would appear as if the 2,000 limit would be reached shortly. It appears that the dormitories at the present time have a capacity for accommodating only 1,275 students. The laboratories, the gymnasium and the library would also be crowded beyond their capacity and beyond the possibilities of doing effective work if the undergraduate enrolment were allowed to exceed the 2,000 limit. This would necessitate a large building program, upon which the university is now unwilling to enter, and seriously alter the character of Princeton's life.

"It seemed to us that the moment had come when we must consider what policy we are to follow in the future, and whether we are to preserve our present character or allow ourselves to increase in size indefinitely, even at the cost of sacrificing much that we believe to be good in our present system."

WALLIS PROPOSES REFORMS

Intelligent selection abroad and scientific distribution in this country should be carried out in immigration, Frederick A. Wallis, Commissioner of Immigration, said last night in an address at the Church of the Heavenly Rest, Fifth Avenue and Forty-fifth Street. Commissioner Wallis described some of the problems he was trying to solve at Ellis Island and reforms of administration with a view to the comfort of the newcomers he was inaugurating.

He said that he would always carry in his memory the picture of joy on the faces of immigrants who saw sugar for the first time in four or five years when they marched into the dining hall for food on their arrival at the station. Describing the needs of the station, Commissioner Wallis said there should be comprehensive bathing and sterilization systems, such as the army had devised in wartime as a preventive against disease and vermin.

NIGHT FOG DIMS HARBOR.

Ships Delayed, Ferries Late, Trucks Drive Into Battery Park.

The fog which hung over the harbor from midnight until 7 o'clock yesterday morning caused considerable delay to the ferry service and the river craft and vessels entering and leaving the port. The Pavonia of the Erie Railroad, which left Jersey City at 2 A. M., was an hour and a quarter making her slip in Manhattan at the foot of Chambers Street. The Staten Island ferryboats were about thirty minutes late and the same thing occurred with the Thirty-ninth Street ferry from the Battery.

At South Ferry the fog was so dense that the drivers of trucks arriving before dawn missed the roadway and drove into Battery Park and were rescued by policemen on duty.

Her clothing caught fire, but her father arrived in time to tear it off her. Father and daughter were treated for burns at St. John's Hospital.

MUSIC

By Richard Aldrich

The New York Symphony Orchestra

Ernest Chausson's symphony, which had been previously announced for performance by the New York Symphony Society in Aeolian Hall, and was withdrawn for further rehearsal, was put on the program yesterday afternoon. It was not unfamiliar to the audiences of the Symphony Society, having been played several times by Mr. Damrosch. It maintains its place well as one of the best of modern French symphonies; strong, appealing, and individual in its musical substance, glowing in its orchestral color, and pregnant in its suggestion of mood.

It seems, indeed, now a landmark of a period that is gone by; the period of the Wagnerian influence in France; one of no long duration, but one that brought forth some significant fruits. Chausson's symphony shows this influence, without doubt, yet the composer's individuality shines undimmed through the work.

A new American composition was presented for the first time in New York: a piano concerto by Leo Sowerby of Chicago, a young Westerner, 26 years old, who gained his musical training in Chicago. His overture "Comes Autumn Time," was played by the New York Symphony Society three years ago; and the concerto dates from about the same period. It was played yesterday by E. Robert Schmitz, a pianist who has before now signalized his interest in the new and untried.

Mr. Sowerby is young; and youth, the eagerness and daring of youth, perhaps the indifference of youth to accepted canons of taste and continence, appear in his concerto. It is in three movements, which are played without interruption, entitled "March," "Fantasy" "Martial and Rhythmic, Broad and Heroic," respectively. There is great energy of rhythm and boisterousness of statement and sometimes a certain unabashed commonplaceness of theme. In the "Fantasy," the slow movement, there is really much that is poetically conceived. In even this, however, as in the other two, it seems as if the composer's best thoughts were often damaged by the recklessness of his development and treatment. He uses one somewhat sentimental and commonplace phrase to considerable excess in the last movement and this movement is prolonged unfortunately, at the end, where it seems as if the composer could hardly bring himself to let go. He, of course, enjoys dabbling deeply in acid dissonances, in open fifths, in splashed and blotched orchestral color. As for the piano part, it cannot be called grateful, though it has its share of difficulty.

But with all the deficiencies of taste and lack of continence in this work, there is much in it that can hardly be heard but with a kindly and a lenient ear. Its boisterous excess signifies life and energy, a fermentation of idea. Mr. Sowerby, as has been observed, is young and will no doubt not attempt to deny the atrocious crime of being a young man; but he will possibly gain wisdom and moderation with advancing age. He has already gained something of them—this concerto as first performed in Chicago contained a part for a soprano voice. The soprano voice has been eliminated: a good sign. Perhaps more will follow, in one way or another.

Mr. Schmitz played the concerto brilliantly: a difficult and not, in the ordinary sense, a grateful work. But it did seem as if the orchestral part, also difficult and complicated, had not been fully mastered.

GETS CHINESE SCULPTURES.

U. of P. Museum Acquires Two Stone Horses From an Emperor's Tomb.

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 23.—Through the liberality of Eldredge R. Johnson, President of the Victor Company of Camden, the University Museum has acquired possession of two sculptured Chinese horses which are considered the finest specimens of Chinese sculpture extant, and among the finest in the world. Neither Mr. Johnson nor officials of the University Museum will disclose the price involved, but it can be said that this is the most valuable acquisition from any point of view in the history of the Museum. It marks an era in the acquisition of Oriental art objects in America.

The specimens acquired are two out of six which embellished the tomb of Emperor T'ang T'ai Tsung, who in the seventh century of our era rose from humble birth by his military achievements to put his father on the throne and then to succeed him. He was the Napoleon of the Far East, and ruled in the golden age of Chinese art. For his tomb he had sculptured the six war horses he used in battle, all of which were wounded, and four of these are held by China as priceless treasures. The two which the University Museum has acquired were smuggled out of the empire a few years ago, and China has agreed that they shall remain in this country, while jealously guarding the others.

One of these horses was named Autumn Dew, as appears from the inscription, and the other may be called Strong Wing-Foot, although it is not easy to translate the archaic name. The horses in stone are slightly mutilated, but still show the marvelous skill of the sculptor and are looked upon by experts as ranking with anything of the sort produced by Greek art in its golden age.

MARY GARDEN HOPES FOR OPERA 'ENTENTE'

HERE FOR SIX-WEEK SEASON

Wishes to See Farrar in Her Favorite "Louise"—Tribute to Oscar Hammerstein.

Mary Garden, here to direct the Chicago Opera Association's largely subscribed performances at the Manhattan Opera House tonight and for six weeks to come, told her immediate plans as an impresario on her arrival yesterday afternoon, twenty-three hours after singing her last opera of the season in Chicago, finishing with "Three Kings" and filling a house.

Miss Garden's fellow artists, who sang again Saturday evening, including the main body of the troupe, are due by special trains early today. Several stars of the Manhattan's opening nights had already arrived and were among her callers last evening at the Ritz-Carlton, where they passed barricades of arriving baggage that recalled Paris hotels in Peace Conference time.

Miss Garden said she hoped sincerely that grand opera in America had reached a point where her company could establish an "entente" with the Metropolitan, "our first established institution," she exclaimed, "solid as a rock." She hoped also to see Mr. Gatti-Casazza's production of her favorite "Louise," not tonight, of course, when she will be at the Manhattan as director while Miss Raisa sings "Norma," but possibly at Miss Farrar's matinee at the rival house next week. Asked as to her own return to the Manhattan stage, where she had first appeared in New York, Miss Garden paid a characteristic tribute to the late Oscar Hammerstein.

"There," she said with emphasis, "was a man, and one who did much for opera. Think of me, coming back into his house to succeed him in that work, and Campanini, too. What a circle we have traveled since we began in 1911 in Chicago! Life brings strange things to pass, does it not?"

Miss Garden on Chicago Opera.

From small beginnings with the public there, Miss Garden said, interest in opera had grown each year, save for one interruption during the war, until the last ten weeks had seen the greatest audiences constantly at the Chicago Auditorium. Another season has been guaranteed by Harold F. McCormick and his wife, Mrs. Edith Rockefeller McCormick, and Miss Garden has agreed to direct the artistic course of this period, receiving only her usual cashet when she sings.

"After 1921-22, I am out," she said, "unless whoever is the Director shall re-engage me as an artist merely. I must first sing; that was one of my conditions. I believe, however, that Chicago has a big future for opera and that it will be richly supported and endowed."

Miss Garden confirmed the appointment of George Miller Spangler as the new business manager, saying he would come East in another week, as he had now to familiarize himself with the past business affairs in consultation with the retiring executive manager, Herbert M. Johnson.

"Mr. McCormick will himself be our manager this week," she added, "as he arrives tomorrow, and with him his lawyers, who will take charge of the theatre at once."

Mr. Spangler, it was explained later, had long been active in Chicago in directing civic betterment enterprises of the Chicago Association of Commerce, and it had been hinted in the West that his selection for the opera post was an indication that business men generally out there would take a hand in continuing the opera after Mr. McCormick's guarantee expires.

Will Give More Repetitions.

As to the financial guarantee, Miss Garden herself had a word to say.

"Making expenses?" she responded to an inquiry. "Well, opera is opera, you know. But not with a $300,000 deficit—that's what we must wipe out. I shall give more repetitions, and not attempt offering a different opera every night of the season. We have just given thirty-five operas in ten weeks, and as a singer I know what a strain that means for those who sing so many different rôles."

For the Manhattan's first week, the repertory stands as announced here before she arrived, Miss Garden added. A second week will start next Monday with Mme. Galli-Curci in "Lucia," then, on Tuesday, the American tenor Charles Marshall, in "Otello," with Miss Raisa as Desdemona and Mr. Ruffo as Iago. Miss Gall and Mr. Muratore follow in "Manon," Galli-Curci will sing again at the matinee, and Mary Garden will present herself in "Thaïs" and "Faust," this last on Saturday night, Feb. 5, with Muratore and Baklanoff.

ALIENS CONTENTED IN CAMP.

Guarded by customs officials and Cunard Line detectives, the immigrants landed on Pier 53, North River, at the foot of West Thirteenth Street, from the Saxonia on Saturday, were still encamped yesterday on the upper floor and are likely to remain there for the next two or three days.

The customs men said they had never seen such a sight during their twenty-five years' experience along the New York waterfront. Camp beds or cots were not obtainable, and the immigrants were made comfortable with mattresses on the floor. There was plenty for them to eat, including soup, roast and boiled beef, vegetables, pudding and coffee.

In the afternoon 58 of the 800 were moved from the pier onto the Anchor liner Saturnia. In the opinion of customs officials, a squad of immigration inspectors and two surgeons could have passed two-thirds of the persons held on the pier in less than five hours.

BERWICK LID ON TIGHTLY.

"Permits to Walk" Worn by Objectors to Sunday Law Edict.

BERWICK, Pa., Jan. 23.—Berwick's first Sunday under the order of Council for a strict observance of the Sunday closing laws found only half a dozen business places, most of them cigar and ice cream stores, remaining open. Scores of establishments, including clothing and grocery stores that formerly counted Sunday their biggest day, obeyed the edict.

Burgess F. R. Kitchen modified the closing order to the extent of permitting the sale of Sunday newspapers, gasoline, milk and ice.

The police made an inspection of the entire town and announced that arrests would be made tomorrow of the proprietors of the stores that remained open. The penalty for the first offense is $4.

Tags with the words "Permit to walk the streets of Berwick on Sunday" found a big sale and were worn by objectors to the blue law crusade.

PITTSBURGH OBTAINS RABBIT MARANVILLE

FILLS GAP IN INFIELD

Smoky City Team Weak at Shortstop Since Passing of Wagner—Braves Get Good Hitters.

PITTSBURGH, Jan. 23. — Walter Maranville, star shortstop of the Boston Braves since 1913 and regarded as one of the most brilliant infielders in baseball history, today became a member of the Pittsburgh Club through a deal which sends three members of the Pirates to Boston. The players given up by Manager Gibson for the diminutive infielder are Walter Barbare, also an infielder, and two outfielders—Bill Southworth and Fred Nicholson.

The addition of Maranville plugs up a gap in the Pittsburgh infield which has been a source of trouble to local managers since Hans Wagner passed out of the game. Several players have been tried at the post, but none filled the bill satisfactorily. Barney Dreyfuss, owner of the Pirates, has frequently expressed the opinion since the close of the 1920 pennant chase that his team would have carried off the National League championship if the club had been as strong here as in other positions.

The trading of Maranville to the Pirates does not come entirely as a surprise, as it has been known for several weeks that Dreyfuss and Gibson were trying to put through a deal for the player. It was believed that New York had the inside track, but the fact that Dreyfuss was willing to give more in playing material enabled him to swing the deal.

A Star Since 1913.

Maranville joined the Braves late in the season of 1912 and became the regular shortstop at the start of the 1913 campaign. When he first joined the team critics regarded him as entirely too light for major league baseball, but he soon convinced all that he was a star. He is one of the most spectacular infielders the game has known in recent years and his wonderful defensive ability clearly offsets his weaker hitting. He is a normal .250 hitter.

It is regarded here as a good deal for the Pirates in one way, since the team gets a player to fill the gap where weakness has been so apparent; but at the same time there is no denying that Dreyfuss paid high for the Boston star. In Southworth and Nicholson he gave up two of the best-hitting outfielders in the major leagues today, and Barbare is an infielder of merit. He does not class with Maranville as a fielder, but he outhit the Boston midget in the 1920 race and is normally as good with the stick as is Maranville.

Southworth has been a member of the Pirates since the middle of the 1918 campaign, coming here from the Birmingham club of the Southern Association. He was a sensation during his first few months with the team, hitting hard and fielding brilliantly. He closed the 1918 season with a batting mark of .341 and was generally rated as the find of the season in the National League. During the 1919 campaign he did not hit up to his 1918 standard, but he was far from a weakling with the stick, finishing with a batting mark of .280. Last season he batted .284. This ability with the stick, coupled with his great speed in the outfield, stamped him as one of the younger stars of the league. Southworth has not yet celebrated his twenty-seventh birthday.

Nicholson a Hard Hitter.

Nicholson is a comparative newcomer to the Pirates, but his hitting through the 1920 campaign gained him considerable prominence. For a great part of the season he was the batting leader of the organization, and he closed the season in second place. Rogers Hornsby was the leader with a mark of .370, and Nicholson, who took part in ninety-nine games during the year, was close behind with a batting mark of .360. Nicholson played with the Detroit Tigers before joining the Pirates.

Barbare has been more of a utility infielder than a regular with the Pirates, though he took part in about sixty games last season. He shared the shortstop work with Caton, who was released to Brooklyn since the close of the season. Pittsburgh has a young infielder named Traynor, who is regarded as about ready for a regular berth, and it is possible that Gibson plans to use him at third base next year, with Maranville at short. This will allow for the shift of Whitted to the outfield, making an outfield trio of Carey, Bigbee and Whitted.

FRANK FRISCH IN LINE.

Signed Contract of Young Infielder Reaches Giants' Office.

It was announced last evening that the Giants had received the signed contract of Frank Frisch, their crack third baseman, for the season of 1921. In accord with time-honored custom in big league circles, the terms were not made public, but it is known that the Fordham Flash is to receive a substantial increase in his monthly stipend in recognition of the excellent work he did both at the third corner and with the ashen wand during a great part of the last pennant chase.

Acute observers of affairs of the diamond are almost unanimous in the belief that the illness of Frisch and his consequent absence from the game for several weeks cost the Giants the bunting last season. The battle of 1920 was hardly under way when the doughty and clever infielder fell ill while the team was returning from an invasion of Boston. The trouble proved to be caused by a recalcitrant appendix, which had up to that time been a perfectly placid and respectable tenant of his person for as long as he could remember.

During the debate between Frisch and his appendix, which resulted in the eviction of the latter, the Giants did a good deal of floundering around in the league cellar. Their uncanny showing during this period was what finally enabled the Robins to flutter through on the rail and land the flag. Of course the absence of Frisch was not wholly responsible for that early-season decline and fall of McGraw's machine, but it had a good deal to do with it, as was evidenced in the team's brace upon the return of the third baseman after many weeks of recuperation.

Frisch, who shares with Eddie Collins the distinction of being listed among the greatest all-round athletes who ever broke into the big leagues, was born on the Hudson, a few milese above Fordham, and has been a Fordham boy all his short life. He distinguished himself at St. John's Hall, Fordham Prep and, later and more emphatically, at Fordham University, not only in baseball, but also in football, basketball and track sports. McGraw's eagle eye was upon him, and an attractive contract drew him to the Polo Grounds in June, 1919. He made the second Western trip with the Giants that year, first breaking into the line-up as a pinch hitter in Chicago. Later his showing in the morning practice sessions at the Polo Grounds induced Manager McGraw to send him in at Doyle's place. The Fordham youth did such effective work at the keystone corner that he became a great favorite with the fans as well as with the mentor of the team, and since then, save for the period of his illness last year, his star has been constantly in the ascendant.

Another signed contract besides that of Frisch reached the Giants' offices yesterday. It came from Olin M. Voigt, a young pitcher purchased from the Rockford Club of the Three-Eye League last Fall. Voigt is a left-hander, and Dick Kinsella, the scout, thinks very highly of him.

Brothers May Face Each Other in Army-Navy Football Game

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Jan. 23.—Two brothers named Strohecker who hail from Oregon, stand well over 6 feet in height and weigh over 200 pounds each, are members of the newest classes at the Military and Naval academies and may meet some day in the annual service football match, as both are making reputations as athletes. Soldier Strohecker is the elder. He played on the eleven of Oregon Agricultural College and was a substitute guard last year at West Point, his first season there. Sailor Strohecker is 6 feet 4 inches in height and weighs 203 pounds, though yet very youthful. He played class football and is now stroking the plebe crew. He shows much promise as an athlete.

NEW YORK SOCCER TEAM BLANKS ERIE

That the New York Football Club possesses a soccer team that need not play second fiddle to any combination of stars in the country, notwithstanding the recent setback at Bethlehem, was demonstrated to the entire satisfaction of a big crowd of metropolitan followers of the game at New York Oval yesterday afternoon, when the powerful soccer machine representing the Erie Athletic Association of Kearny, N. J., was defeated by 4 goals to 0 in a National Football League championship fixture.

All in all, it was the worst showing of the season made by the Eries and immediately after their great triumph over the Robins Dry Dock team, holder of the A. F. A. cup. Clearly, the Jersey men were below form yesterday, but New York's football was gilt-edged throughout and of the sort that would have landed the club a cup winner, but for its early elimination, when not at full strength.

As a result of yesterday's victory, New York is again tied with Bethlehem in points, each team having 15. The steelworkers, however, have not lost a game, whereas New York is charged with one defeat. Erie is left in third place with 10 points, followed by Robins Dry Dock with 8.

FEDERAL SOCCERS WIN.

Federal Shipyards soccers and the Babcock & Wilcox team staged a thriller in a National League championship game before a big crowd at Harrison Field yesterday, the final result being a win for the Federals by 5 goals to 4 in a most exciting finish. At half time, the Federals were leading by 2-1.

Two penalties were given against Stewart, the Federals' left back, and both times the Babs collected in full. The latter took the lead early in the game, when Muir negotiated the first penalty, but five minutes from half time M. Jameson and Fildes scored for the Federals in quick succession.

From the second penalty soon after the restart, Campbell equalized, and the same player, with a shot from 25 yards out, gained the lead for the Babs soon after. Brierley, in turn, equalized for the Federals, but Campbell, in a mix-up, once more placed his team ahead. With ten minutes to go, the Federals fairly peppered the opponents' goal until Richardson evened up the score. Five minutes from the end, Knox took a corner, and passes by Fildes and Richardson enabled Brierley to land the shot that won the game.

Baseball Work to Be Started in the Cage Next Week.

NEW HAVEN, Jan. 23.—Yale's baseball campaign for the 1921 season was started today by Captain Wilton Peters, who issued a call for the battery candidates to report to Coach Bill Lauder next Monday. WILLARD LEAVES TO COMPLETE TRAINING

Willard was accompanied by Ray Archer, his manager. The former champion has been training for several months at his farm near Lawrence, Kan.

According to Archer, they expect to go to New York City first, after which they will make a business trip to Boston. Late this month, he said, Willard expects to establish training headquarters somewhere in New York.

Willard declared that he had decided to make his future home in Hollywood, Cal., where he lived until several years ago, when the family removed to the farm near Lawrence. Willard said he was planning to sell most of the property he now owns in Kansas.

Discussing the coming fight with Dempsey, Willard said: "If I didn't think I could win back the title I lost in Toledo, I wouldn't enter the ring again. I would rather let the fight tell the story. I shall have the best corps of sparring partners that money can buy, and I shall be ready."

RICKARD CONSULTS LAWYER.

The next development in the Dempsey-Carpentier championship bout situation will probably be the completion of arrangements whereby Tex Rickard, one of the triumvirate which originally signed to promote the bout, will be installed as sole promoter for the international scrap. Rickard yesterday declared he had not yet received any reply from Charles B. Cochran, British promoter, to a cablegram sent last week, in which Rickard requested official confirmation of the authority of William A. Brady to act for Cochran.

In view of the fact that Brady announced the receipt of a message investing him with full authority to act in the best interests of Cochran, however, Rickard said yesterday he was prepared to resign himself to the situation. Already negotiations are in progress to effect a transfer of the interests of Brady and Cochran to Rickard. The latter said yesterday he had consulted his lawyer, and is prepared to accept an assignment of interests from his late partners in the enterprise as soon as Brady is ready.

TIGER CLUB WANTS HOME.

Princeton Varsity Athletes Seek Building for Organization.

Special to The New York Times.

PRINCETON, N. J., Jan. 23.—Princeton's 'Varsity Club is at present greatly interested in the possibility of a clubhouse which will form a meeting place for the letter men among the undergraduates and for the "old grads" who formerly played on the various university teams.

The 'Varsity Club, which is a firmly established institution at Old Nassau, has no regular home of its own, although its members are always welcome during the training table seasons at the McCormack Field House at University Field. However, there is a long Winter period after the close of the football season and before the outdoor track, baseball and crew seasons begin when the Tiger athletes have no common meeting place. This interferes greatly with the activities of the club, which controls to some extent the athletic policy of the university.

Agitation for a clubhouse reached a culmination at the recent annual banquet, which was attended by many former stars, and as soon as the Princeton Endowment Fund has been completed action will undoubtedly be taken to raise funds for this purpose.

The 'Varsity Club is open to membership for all men who have received letters in the four major sports, football, baseball, track and crew, and, in addition for members of intercollegiate championship minor sports teams which are awarded the "P." instead of the usual insignia which does not qualify for membership. A few "outsiders" are also admitted to membership from time to time, usually in the case of coaches of long standing such as Keene Fitzpatrick, Dr. Spaeth and Bill Clark, the mentors of track, crew and baseball. Bill Roper, head football coach, and his staff of assistants are all old letter men, and as such are regular members.

The title seekers started their battles atop the New York A. C. roof at 10 o'clock in the morning, and as the last match was being decided dusk was fast enveloping the court.

CULLEN IS LEADER IN LEAGUE SCORING

Dartmouth Forward Has 45 Points in Intercollegiate Basketball Circuit.

Penn's rise to the top of the Intercollegiate Basketball League during the past week carried along with it Captain Danny McNichol, who came up from fifth to a tie for second place in the individual scoring averages. Although the Pennsylvania leader has played in only two games, he has compiled a total of 36 points, and with this is deadlocked with Sidman of Cornell, who was the leader in last week's standing.

Taking Sidman's place as the leading scorer is Cullen, Dartmouth's speedy forward, who has a total of 45, made up of 13 field goals and 19 tosses from the foul line. After the three leaders comes Molinet, Cornell's Cuban captain, who still leads the league in field goals with 14. Johnson of Columbia is fifth and Millar of Dartmouth sixth. The latter came up rapidly last week.

The championship Penn team now has an undisputed lead in the league race. The Quakers have won two games and lost none, giving them an average of 1,000. Dartmouth, which had won three games until Saturday night's encounter with Penn, has three victories in four contests, a standing of .750, and Columbia and Cornell are tied for third with a .500 average. Princeton won its first game during the week after two setbacks, and Yale lost another, the third in succession.

The team record shows Cornell still holding the palm as the best scoring aggregation, the Ithacans having compiled 104 points in four games. Dartmouth is second, with 91. Cornell also has the best average total per game, and it likewise leads in the matter of field goals, with 39. The best defensive five is Penn, which has had only 17 points a game scored against it. McNichol's ability from the foul line has been the outstanding feature of the team's play. He has scored 32 out of 42 attempts.

The individual and team averages follow:

Player.	Games.	Field Goals.	Foul Goals.	Total Points.
Cullen, Dartmouth	4	13	19	45

COWARD WINS AT SQUASH.

Defeats Whitlock in Class B Tourney, Loser Failing to Score.

Squash tennis of an unusually high order for Class B players was in evidence yesterday at the Squash Club, where the National Class B squash championship tournament entered the second round. Five matches were played and two went by default.

Thomas Coward of the Yale Club put up a remarkably strong game against B. E. Whitlock of the Columbia Club and won in straight games, the score being 15—0, 15—0, and it was the first occasion on which any player has completely failed to count against his opponent. Coward is looked upon by many as the most probable contender in the final, with J. C. Rochester as his likely opponent.

F. A. Seller of the Montclair Athletic Club furnished considerable of a surprise when he defeated C. W. Dingee of the Crescent Athletic Club in straight games. One of the most interesting matches of the day was that between N. F. Torrance of the Crescent Athletic Club and Basil Van Gerbig of the Squash Club. Both players are much older than the average squash players but they put up a remarkably speedy exhibition and it took three games to decide the match, Van Gerbig winning.

The first game was close all the way, while in the second Van Gerbig took the lead at the start but was eventually overtaken by Torrance, who won, 15—12. The attempt tired him, however, and Van Gerbig won the third game and the match. Basil Harris, who was reported to have forfeited to E. H. Heminway on Saturday, will play him today.

The summary:

Second Round—E. P. Pierce, Jr., Harvard Club, won from Andrew Baxter, Jr., by default; W. A. Kimball, Columbia Club, won from Kingsley Kunhardt, Columbia Club, by default; F. A. Seller, Montclair A. C., defeated C. W. Dingee, Crescent A. C., 18—16, 15—8; Thomas Coward, Yale Club, defeated B. E. Whitlock, Columbia Club, 15—0, 15—0; Alfred Moses, Columbia Club, defeated F. B. Shaw, 2d, Columbia Club, 12—15, 15—4, 15—5; John W. Ivins, Jr., Crescent A. C., defeated A. C. Schermerhorn, Yale Club, 15—13, 17—15; Basil Van Gerbig, Squash Club, defeated N. F. Torrance, Crescent A. C., 15—16, 12—15, 15—5.

CADET POLO TEAMS BEAT YALE TWICE

West Point Opens Intercollegiate Season With Pair of Victories, 6-1 and 4-0.

Special to The New York Times.

WEST POINT, N. Y., Jan. 23.—West Point won two decisive victories over Yale, 6 to 1 and 4 to 0, in the opening of the intercollegiate indoor polo season here today. The games were played in the big riding hall and attracted an unusual amount of interest on account of being the first intercollegiate polo games ever played at the Military Academy.

The Yale squad in charge of Major R. E. B. Hoyle, U. S. Army, arrived yesterday and were the guests in barracks of the Cadets over the week end. Last night mixed teams composed of the Cadets and Elis engaged in a couple of hours' practice in the hall under the glare of the arc lights.

The workout last night and the contests today were in the nature of practice matches for both sides, inasmuch as they were both playing their first games. West Point has had Cadet polo teams in the past, but not for the last three years, due to the war. On the other hand, Yale has a polo team in the field this year for the first time. It is made up of members of the R. O. T. C. unit at the University.

In today's game Hopkins, Haskell and Dean played well for Yale, while Griffis, Greening and Mudgett led for the Cadets in the number of goals scored. The riding of both sides was hard and fast and the contests were spirited and hard fought.

Colonel Lewis Brown Jr., who is at the head of polo at West Point, said today that Princeton would play here next Saturday and Sunday.

The line-up:

ARMY 1ST (6).	YALE 1ST (1).
1—Douglass.	1—Styne.
2—Griffis.	2—Hopkins.
3—Greening.	3—Haskell.

Goals—Haskell, Douglass (3), Griffis (2), Greening.

1—Bosserman.	1—Hartshorpe.
2—Reese.	2—Judy.
3—Mudgett.	3—Dean.

FURBELOW FIRST HOME.

HAVANA, Cuba, Jan. 23.—With the Marianao and the Havana Post handicaps as the star attractions at Oriental Park today, a large crowd turned out for a splendid program of seven events. The Marianao Handicap, a sprint event for three-year-olds and upward, resulted in a victory for Mose Goldblatt's Furbelow, which, under Kennedy's rousing ride, gained the decision in the last stride.

Different Eyes and Belle of Elizabethtown alternated in the lead to the last sixteenth. Then Furbelow came with a rush and won by a head, while Belle of Elizabethtown defeated Smart Money a length and a half for the place. The race carried a net value of $2,390.

The secondary feature, the Havana Post Handicap, at a mile and a sixteenth, was won by Walnut Hall, which closed favorite. His margin of victory at the end was small, as he led Exhorter by only half a length, with Bally third, a neck away. The victory of Walnut Hall was largely due to Pickens's strong ride in the closing strides, when he kept the seven-year-old gelding in the lead. The distance was run in 1:46, the first mile being negotiated in 1:39 3-5.

Steel ingot being taken from reheating furnace preparatory to rolling into rails

NEW YORK CENTRAL LINES

Rails and Research

THE New York Central Lines have placed orders for 184,275 tons of heavy open-hearth rails, enough to lay a new single track from St. Louis to New York.

In the New York Central research laboratories, out of the experience of never-ending road tests, has been developed the highest type of rail used in this country.

This search for absolute dependability in rails, to carry the weight of more and more powerful locomotives and heavier trains, insures the safety and comfort of the millions of passengers who ride each year on the New York Central Lines.

The rail ingots are made on precise physical and chemical specifications. From the time the ore enters the furnaces until the rails emerge from the great rollers, every step in the process is in conformity to the most rigid scientific requirements and under the eyes of New York Central rail experts.

When fabricated, the rails are subjected at the steel mills to exacting tests in machines of scientific precision. These tests are for the purpose of making certain that the finished rails are as nearly flawless as it is humanly possible to make them, and will withstand the strains of the heaviest traffic.

The 1921 rail order is an important part of the program of after-war rehabilitation undertaken by these Lines in order that they may efficiently perform a maximum share of the work of national transportation.

SHOOTERS ORGANIZE TO REDUCE PRICES

Pinehurst Trap Contestants Protest Against High Cost of Shells and Targets.

MAY BUY FROM GOVERNMENT

Army Ammunition Said to Be Available — May Bring Restraint of Trade Charge Against Makers.

Special to The New York Times.

PINEHURST, N. C., Jan. 23.—Following the unusually successful mid-winter trap shooting tournament at Pinehurst, at which shooters from all parts of the country were present, a mass meeting presided over by John Phillip Sousa, the famous band master, was held today to protest against what those present felt to be the excessively high cost of ammunition, targets and other trap shooting accessories.

C. Ford Seeley of Baltimore, Md., was elected permanent secretary of the organization and was authorized to take such steps as he saw fit to obtain a sounder financial basis for participation in the sport. His instructions were as follows:

To get in touch with gun clubs and shooters of the United States with a view to co-operation in the effort to reduce the costs of targets and ammunition.

To take as his first step in the reduction of costs the purchase from the Government of several million dollars' worth of shells and targets which were bought for war purposes and are now ready for release.

To obtain from the gun clubs and shooters agreements to purchase through the secretary all shells and targets which they use for a period of five or ten years.

If necessary to build a shell and target factory, for the backing of which those present pledged their support.

To seek legal advice to determine whether the munition companies were not acting in restraint of trade in their adherence to an alleged agreement to keep prices at their present level for another year.

C. C. Newman of Indiana reported that the gun club of which he is a member had purchased shells from the Government at $23 a case of one thousand, and had found them to be extremely satisfactory. This figure is nearly one-half the present market price.

Several of those present spoke of the present high cost, pointing out that the prices of almost all other commodities, including paper, brass, copper and lead, had dropped, while the price of shells remained at the maximum figure which they had attained during the war.

Trap shooters from thirty-two States of the union, including practically all the States east of the Mississippi and many of the Western ones, took part in the meeting.

CHANDLER IS HIGH GUN.

Visitor at Larchmont Y. C. Traps Has a Card of 99.

A. Chandler, a visitor, was the high scratch gunner in the shoot at the Larchmont Yacht Club yesterday. He took the prize with the excellent total of 99 out of a possible 100 targets, the highest card of the year. The "bird" he missed was his tenth in the first time at the traps. His individual strings were therefore 24, 25, 25 and 25. W. E. Ferguson did the best work among the club members. He took the club prize with a 94 out of a possible 100 targets.

No less than five gunners tied for the high handicap prize. They were Francis M. Wilson, W. E. Ferguson, F. A. Lewis, A. Baxter, Jr., and F. M. Hoyt. All had full scores of 100 targets. With the exception of Ferguson, who was not eligible, as he had won the high scratch prize, all shot off for the cup. On the first shoot-off, Baxter and Hoyt fell by the wayside. On the second shoot-off Wilson defeated Lewis by a 23 to 22 score out of a possible 25 targets.

The scores:

Name	Hit.	H'cap.	Total.
F. M. Wilson	87	13	100

POULTRY SHOW CLOSES.

Had Most Successful Exhibit in History of the Fixture.

The task of restoring to Madison Square Garden its accustomed atmosphere was begun last night shortly after 8 o'clock, or just as soon as the thirty-second annual Poultry Show concluded its week's run. A staff of experienced "wreckers" tackled the temporary arrangements soon after the Garden portals were shut on the exhibition of fowl and made great progress in the removal of all barnyard evidence. Only a comparatively small crowd attended the closing day of the show, in contrast to the consistently large attendance of previous days which made the exhibition the most successful in the history of the organization.

Harvey C. Wood, Bound Brook (N. J.) breeder, won the Challenge Cup for the best display of light Brahmas, making his fifth triumph for this award. F. H. Davey of Vineyard Haven, Mass., who last year won the Silver Wyandottes Cup for the best male and female owned and bred by the exhibitor, repeated this success in yesterday's judging of specials. Another of last year's successful exhibits to repeat this year was the Robadel Farm, Cos Cob, Conn., entry, which won the single comb White Orpington Cup. The exhibit of the Prospect Farm, Newark, N. J., was adjudged the victor in the single comb Black Minorcas Cup special.

A record for pigeon prizes during the show was established by R. H. Steelman, owner of the Liberty Pigeon Loft, Trenton, N. J., whose exhibits, consisting of twenty-six carneau pigeons, accounted for fourteen first prizes, four second prizes, three third and two fourth prizes.

TRANSFER SKATING RACES.

Officials of the Public Schools Athletic League have decided to transfer the inter-city scholastic ice skating races between students of this city and Chicago, on Feb. 5, to the Brooklyn Ice Palace. The change was made because of the uncertainty of the plans for flooding the City College Stadium. The matter of securing a formidable, representative local is absorbing the attention of the local scholastic officials.

Qualification trials and elimination tests have already been held, with the result that the officials have selected sixty youngsters from which to mold a local team of about forty skaters who will compete in the coming inter-city championship events. The trials were held indoors, the rinks of the 181st Ice Palace and Iceland being utilized in Manhattan, and the Ice Palace in Brooklyn. The survivors of these trials are now receiving special training to prepare them for the decisive trials which will determine the selection of twenty elementary schoolboys and a similar number of high school lads to represent the city.

Catholic Club Soccers Win.

Harlem Oval was the scene yesterday of a New York State Cup tie match between the soccer team representing the Catholic Club of West Harlem and the Franco-Swiss eleven, and resulted in a decisive victory by 4 goals to 1 for the Catholic Club, which at half time led by 2—0.

Comment on Current Events in Sports.

BOXING

Recent developments concerning the proposed bout between Jack Dempsey and Georges Carpentier for the world's heavyweight boxing championship appear to bring out plainly two facts:

1. The contest will not take place in the United States.

2. When the bout does occur it will not be a half-million dollar proposition.

The passing of the $15 limit rule for admission to championship bouts was the forerunner of the withdrawals by two of the promoters, since it was intended from the time the articles were signed that the contest should be staged close to New York. When this restriction was made nation-wide by the new association to control boxing, the doom of the big fight in the United States was sealed. This legislation made a $500,000 bout a certain liability and the failure of the boxers to deposit their money as per agreement furnished just what was needed to protect the promoters.

The arguments of the boxers' managers that Carpentier's money was on deposit in France and that the Dempsey bond was mislaid, carry no particular weight. In neither instance did the promoters have protection if something had developed since Nov. 20 to make the boxers desire to nullify the agreement. Kearns should have made certain that the bond was on deposit and Carpentier's manager should have arranged with a bonding company in this country if they wished to be protected on a proposition meaning so much to them. Both were lax in their arrangements and they left the way open for the promoters to withdraw when newly enacted rulings changed the complexion of the enterprise.

There is some doubt about England's being in a receptive mood for the bout, the late advices from Britain giving this indication. Canada still is a possibility, but there is a question whether Montreal will support the bout up to the demands of the boxers. Tex Rickard still inclines to the belief that he will stage the event alone, but he prefers to make a new arrangement, one that will put the contestants on a percentage basis instead of a guarantee of a half million dollars. This appears the logical solution.

The international bouts at the Commodore Hotel last week proved a dismal failure, competitively, for the United States representatives, but they paved the way for big things in the boxing line. Both Army and Navy, stirred to activity by the defeats sustained at the hands of the Britons, are arranging a more thorough system of elimination and are aiming at other tournaments. Victory would have meant satisfaction over present conditions and the good to be derived from the nation-wide elimination tournaments would have been lost entirely.

The United States representatives in last week's bouts showed the spirit that defies criticism, but the fact stands out that there was too much haste in determining the men who were to take part against the Britons. The lesson learned last week will be remembered when other selections are to be made.

TURF

For many years it was cause for regret among Americans interested in the development of the thoroughbred horse that William K. Vanderbilt, who owned one of the greatest stables in the world, would neither race nor breed horses in this country. Owners and breeders, therefore, welcomed the news that A. K. Macomber intended to bring to the United States the pick of the horses which he purchased from the Vanderbilt estate.

The interest is mainly in the stallions Sea Sick and Oversight, which are to be added to our growing list of imported sires. These were two of the best producers at the model Vanderbilt breeding establishment in France, which turned out winners for practically all the important stake events of the French turf. They form a valuable contribution to the American breeding industry, which has of late generously patronized the European markets.

Both Sea Sick and Oversight are young stallions and should be steady producers for many years in this country. They have passed the experimental stage as sires, for already they have a number of good horses racing abroad. Both Sea Sick and Oversight are bred in the purple, coming from patrician English thoroughbred stock, to which also trace the best of the American horses. While it is the hope of breeders in this country to produce a distinctly American line that will match the best that England has, they are as yet dependent on the best blood of the English thoroughbred.

With the two stallions that Mr. Macomber plans to send here, America will have taken within a year four of Europe's best sires. Edward F. Simms last Summer bought at a high figure Prince Palatine and Negofol, both of which distinguished themselves abroad as race horses and sires.

There will, however, be immediate interest in the horses which Mr. Macomber proposes to put into training for the coming season. Some of these horses, notably Tchad, have been turf stars in Europe. Frequently imported racers have failed to perform up to expectations, and those of the Macomber string will be closely watched when they make their appearance during the coming season.

Although most football observers had expected Yale to reappoint Tad Jones as its head football coach, not so many had anticipated that Jones would leave his position with a Seattle shipbuilding firm, sign a contract for an unstated period of years and attempt the task of building a permanent and consistent football system at New Haven. This latter announcement has all kinds of interesting possibilities in it, and one can sympathize with Yale's jubilant reception of the good news.

There seems to be small doubt that Jones is capable of handling the assignment, provided of course that Yale will leave him free to work out his own destinies. Other coaches, too, might have done well at New Haven if Yale had let them alone. To smooth over difficulties between various factions and satisfy completely a host of old graduates, each with his own idea of how the game of football should be played, is one of the tasks with which most Yale coaches have to deal, and often it did not leave them time enough to devote to the work at hand—training and building an eleven.

The fact that Jones is abandoning his business interests and adopting as a calling the coaching of Yale football teams would indicate that both Yale and Jones believe he will cope with the situation at New Haven. Jones would hardly take this decisive step without assurances that he will be given both the time and freedom to work out his own ideas in his own way. If this should come to pass, the Elis should soon see the beginning of a football system on the same lines as those of Princeton and Harvard.

Jones's success last year, of course, was far from remarkable. He had good material and a long list of injuries. The team lost decisively to both Princeton and Harvard, and it was accused again of playing mediaeval football. But with all this, Yale undergraduates and alumni maintained a remarkable confidence in Tad Jones. He has conservative ideas, but a keen knowledge and proper appreciation of modern football and its possibilities. He is a graduate, but not one of those whose only gridiron theories are based on vivid memories of the tactics that defeated Harvard in 1894. With this school of football Jones is likely to have little sympathy, and even less as he comes to realize with experience the size of the task he has undertakn. Building football teams at New Haven is likely to be as absorbing and difficult a job as building ships at Seattle.

TENNIS

It is difficult to recall another such instance of an absolute monarchy in a sporting realm as that established and maintained through a decade and a half by Jay Gould, who, the other day, successfully defended his open court tennis championship of America against the challenge of Jock Soutar, the Philadelphia professional. Soutar acquired the privilege of encountering the mighty master by winning the tournament in which the best of the players to whom court tennis means daily bread and meat competed. He was, in the strictest sense, the survivor of the fittest. Yet, in the hands of this miracle of the ancient court game, he was only another pupil to be taught the finer points of the pastime.

There is no direction toward which Mr. Gould may hopefully look upon this globe for an opponent who will thoroughly try his mettle and test his fibre at the game which he has made peculiarly his own. Amateurs and professionals—they are all alike to him. Behind two horizons his master may lurk unseen. The most likely one is called middle age, although he is already scoffing at its approach, for he is in the thirties. The other, more problematical, is some possible young phenomenon now undergoing careful training under expert supervision.

It is now fifteen years since this amazing wielder of the racquet tasted of defeat at court tennis. In 1906, at the age of eighteen, he won the American amateur championship from Joshua Crane. In 1907 he went to England and won the British amateur title from Eustace Miles, who came to America the following year seeking vengeance, only to partake once more of defeat. It was in 1914 that Mr. Gould captured the world's open championship from the English professional, George Covey, whom he beat decisively, allowing him only one set in eight. Since that time he has encountered the world's best, with the one seemingly inevitable result.

There is, in some quarters, an apparent tendency to jeer at the "nursery-bred" athlete. There have been many examples, especially in the court games, and, more particularly yet, in lawn tennis, of youngsters drilled on private courts by star professionals and versed before they made their tournament débuts in the entire curriculum of strokes and of form. Some of them have had notable careers in competition, and one, at least, has won a national lawn tennis crown. In general, however, these carefully developed players have attained slight prominence. In the case of Mr. Gould, although he played almost constantly as a lad upon the private courts of his father, George Gould, at Lakewood, there was no fixed design on his part, or on the part of anybody else, to make him a dominant factor in the tournament game. He played because he loved the sport and he played marvelously because he had the physical and mental endowment. At the present time only a challenge from Mars could cause him any perturbation.

BASKETBALL

The championship Penn team has finally reached the top of the Intercollegiate Basketball League, but there must be an uncomfortable conviction in Quakertown that the titleholders are going to have plenty of trouble holding their laurels. The league has settled down apparently to another close and sizzling race, and any one of five teams has at least an outside chance to capture the final honors. Yale is the sole exception, the Elis having dropped three games, two of them on the home court.

Dartmouth's rapid rise to the second rung of the league ladder is without doubt the outstanding feature of the early stages of the struggle. Penn's two victories were not unexpected, and, furthermore, both were gained on the Quakers' own court. But Dartmouth had no such great reputation. It had nestled snugly for many years at the bottom of the league, and it was to this notch that the unthinking critics, and many of the thinking, had again assigned the Hanoverians. That the team has won three out of four contests is sufficient cause for rejoicing at Hanover and for amazement elsewhere.

The league struggle is still too young for the dopesters to make much progress with their calculations. Cornell, which had distinct possibilities as a contender, has lost two games and is perilously near the danger limit of three defeats. Yale is out of it, to all intents and purposes, and Princeton, with two downfalls, will have to rise to great heights if it is to overcome the handicap. Dartmouth is an outstanding contender, and Penn and Columbia are strong but still unknown forces.

Columbia's hopes for final victory rest partly on an advantageous schedule. The New Yorkers began with two games away from home, Princeton being defeated and Penn downing the Blue and White. Five of Columbia's eight remaining games will be played in New York, while Penn will have only three home contests during the remainder of the season. What the champions will do when they leave Philadelphia and Penn is apt to be the biggest factor in determining the ultimate winner of the league race. If the Red and Blue should falter, there are two or three strong rivals ready to slip into the vacated throne.

RICE AND OWEN TIE AT TRAVERS ISLAND

R. F. Rice and R. M. Owen tied for the high scratch prize at the Travers Island traps of the New York Athletic Club yesterday. Each had a score of 98 out of a possible 100 targets. On the shoot-off the trophy was taken by the first named gunner. As it then was very late and darkness was gathering fast, the committee decided not to hold a shoot-off for the high handicap prize, a contest in which there were more than a dozen ties. The shoot-off will be held next Sunday.

Along with A. L. Burns the two nimrods who tied for the high scratch prize also scored legs on the Buermeyer Cup. In this event each had a straight card of 50 targets. In the distance handicap R. F. Rice again was in the money, tying with A. E. Ranney for the prize. Each was credited with a leg. A scratch special went to T. H. Lawrence.

Although the scores were not as high as they were on Saturday, an unusually large number of gunners made straight runs of 25 targets in the regular events. The Tournament Cup was the exception. Not a straight was hung up in the event. In the Byronel shoot straights were made by R. B. Cole, W. G. Allen and L. M. Smith. In the President Cup race straights were made by J. H. Vanderveer, R. F. Rice, A. L. Burns, T. H. Lawrence, G. H. Martin, R. M. Owen and F. W. Finch.

LEWIS TO DEFEND TITLE.

Will Meet Caddock This Evening in Championship Mat Bout.

An interesting wrestling bout is expected this evening at the Seventy-first Regiment Armory, when Ed (Strangler) Lewis, Kentucky grappler, who recently relieved Joe Stecher of the heavyweight championship, defends his title against Earl Caddock, Iowa wrestler, acclaimed as the "man with a thousand holds." The contest is being conducted by Promoter Jack Curley, who reports unusual interest in the match and a heavy demand for tickets to the bout.

The bout has aroused considerable speculation. Followers of the two grapplers are confident of success for their favorite. The admirers of Lewis are in the majority, for, with his recent victory over Stecher, Lewis added to his legion of friends. The champion undoubtedly will take the mat a decided favorite. The terrific, crushing force of the powerful Lewis headlock, a hold which has left its after-effects on three victims—Wladek Zbyszko, Joe Stecher and Dick Daviscourt—together with the psychological advantage which goes with possession of the championship, are factors which will compel a leaning to Lewis irrespective of the physical comparisons of the men, which favor the burly Kentuckian in overwhelming degree.

Lewis has announced that he will depend on his headlock to subdue Caddock. The match, therefore, promises to develop whether Caddock is capable of resisting the subduing pressure of the Kentuckian's powerful arms or whether the shifty Iowan, with his speed, agility and his variety of holds, can inveigle the champion into a position which would result in a transfer of the title. Caddock doesn't fear the headlock. In fact, he is confident that his cleverness and speed will prove effective mediums for combating the damaging hold. Lewis, on the other hand, is confident his strong left arm will crush Caddock as it has done others he encountered on the path to the championship. Both grapplers are reported to have trained hard for the title match. Each is said to be in superb physical condition and fit for the test.

MEETS FOR YALE FENCERS.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Jan. 23.—The Yale fencing team's schedule, announced tonight, includes the following matches:

High Winds Handicap Gunners.

High winds made the conditions rather difficult for the week-end shoot of the Pelham Country Club yesterday. The targets ducked and soared in a manner that made it almost impossible for the nimrods to hit them. Still G. E. Laugerantz, the winner, had the satisfactory score of 42 out of a possible 50 targets. Fred Schauffler was second with a card of 41. Other scores were: G. LeBranche, 40; W. Swan, 38; W. Graves, 38; J. D. Nicklas, 35; H. L. Loomis, 30; W. Bavier, 30; G. Tashimiki, 30; A. P. Walker, 29.

NEW COURSE RECORD SET BY SILVERSTEIN

Sol Silverstein of the Glencoe A. C. carried off fast-time laurels yesterday in the Harlem and Heights Athletic League handicap road race, held over the Morningside A. C. course of about five miles, and in doing so attained a new course record. Silverstein, starting from scratch against a field of sixteen rivals, finished in eighth position, in the actual time of 25:30, eclipsing the previous course mark, held by Peter Zabudiofsky, by 27 seconds.

Irving Lehman, Morningside A. C. harrier, led the pack home, after one of the keenest finishes in the history of the league. Lehman, starting with a handicap of 1:45, advanced to the front with J. Cain, Mohawk A. C., about 100 yards from the finish, and they raced shoulder to shoulder until within twenty-five yards of the end of their journey. Here Lehman spurted and gradually pulled away from the Mohawk harrier, to win by about three yards. Max Tea, Glencoe A. C., the second H. H. A. L. runner to finish, was third, about five yards back of Cain. The latter is a member of the Bronx Athletic League, whose participation in the race was sanctioned by the officials. Lehman's actual time was 26:38.

Pos.	Name and Club.	Hand'p.	Actual Time.

SING SING LOSES JOY UNDER NEW RULES

THREE GRADES OF CONDUCT

Convicts Will Start In First Class—Regulations Apply to All Prisons.

Special to The New York Times.

OSSINING, N. Y., Jan 23.—Sing Sing's prisoners are forbidden to wear jewelry, woo, write love letters, dine luxuriously, or dress stylishly under drastic new rules made public today which will tighten the reins of discipline at the prison. The rules, issued by Charles F. Rattigan, Superintendent of Prisons, will be put into effect by Major Lewis E. Lawes, the Warden, a week from Tuesday. They will apply to all State prisons, but will be especially felt at Sing Sing, where privileges have always been more numerous than in up-State prisons.

The prisoners will be divided into three grades to denote their behavior. Service stripes will be worn, to indicate how many years the prisoner has been in confinement.

Every prisoner will start on Feb. 1 under the new rules, with a clean slate. All will be listed as first grade as long as they observe prison rules, and while in that class will wear a white disk on the left sleeve.

If a first grade man misbehaves, he will be reduced to second grade for six months, and will wear a blue disk. If while a second grade prisoner he errs again, he will go into the third grade and wear a red disk. The red disk is to be the mark with which any prisoner attempting to escape will be denoted.

A third grade man will be able by six months' good conduct to advance to second grade, and similarly a second grade inmate may regain the first grade. However, a prisoner who regains the first grade will not wear the white disk again, but a white circle instead. For each year that a prisoner remains in the first grade he will wear "a bar or other mark of distinction."

Inmates will not be allowed to possess or wear any jewelry or rings, and silk shirts, fancy ties, white collars and silk hosiery must go under a rule which states: "The clothing of all inmates must be uniform, and such as is provided by the institution, except that inmates may be permitted to supply themselves with underclothing, socks of a quiet color, a gray flannel shirt, a gray sweater, black shoes, overshoes or rubbers, gloves and a black tie."

No women except relatives will be allowed to see a prisoner, but an inmate may receive a visit from friends other than women once a month upon approval of the Warden. For years the unmarried prisoners and some of the married ones have had many young women callers. Often elderly women would visit a young prisoner to hear him tell what beautiful eyes she had or what an inspiring influence she was. Usually such callers left money, jewelry or some other gift for the prisoner.

Love letters will also be eliminated under a rule that, "Promiscuous letter writing is to be discouraged and any inmate abusing the privilege herein accorded will be punished at the discretion of the warden."

Prosperous prisoners who have always had food sent to them from outside the prison must rely on prison fare. No packages may be received except on Thanksgiving, on Christmas, on Easter and on the Fourth of July.

The new rules also teach cleanliness and etiquette. The inmates are to keep their person, clothes, bed and cell clean. They must remove their caps in the offices and hallways and when appearing on business before prison officials are also to have their coats buttoned. When passing from building to building, collectively, they are to "march with military step and carriage."

OFFERS ARMY FLYING TO 500 YOUNG MEN

General Harris Announces New Airplane Class Open to Civilians on March 1.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 23.—Maj. Gen. Peter C. Harris, Adjutant General of the army, is offering a chance for 500 young men to learn how to fly an airplane in a new class to be started by the War Department on March 1.

The department, he explains, is offering this opportunity to all civilians between the ages of 20 and 27 who have a high school education or its equivalent, and who desire to master all phases of military aeronautics. From the applicants 500 will be selected as flying cadets who will be sent to the Air Service School at March Field, Riverside, Cal., or to Carlstron Field, at Arcadia, Fla., where their instruction will begin.

Their primary instruction in the theory of the art of flying at these two fields will cover a period of approximately four months. The advanced training, which consists of courses in pursuit, bombing and observation, will occupy about six months, three months of which will be spent in a service squadron. These later courses will be given at Rockwell Field, San Diego, Cal.; Ellington Field, Houston, Texas, and Post Field at Fort Sill, Okla. On completion of this course the student will be commissioned as a Second Lieutenant in the Air Service Reserve Corps and discharged.

General Harris said that young men interested in this course should make their applications direct to the Director of the Army Air Service, or they can obtain more complete information by calling on or applying to the nearest army recruiting officer. The courses will be open only to unmarried men. The cadets will be paid $75 a month while learning and will receive a ration allowance of $1 a day, together with quarters, all clothing and equipment, medical and dental attention. Discussing the opportunity offered by this new course General Harris said:

"The importance of air transportation not only from a military but a commercial point of view is now universally established. The opportunity for young men to make a study of aeronautics does not frequently present itself in civilian life, and even in the Air Service there are only a limited number of young men who can avail themselves of the intensive course offered. To enroll in this corps of flying cadets a special physical examination is necessary, and the educational requirements are such as to assure a high type of young man."

POURS OIL ON FIRE, 6 BURNED TO DEATH

WASHINGTON COURT HOUSE, Ohio, Jan. 23.—Six members of the family of James Adkins, living fourteen miles north of here, were burned to death early this morning when fire destroyed their home. Adkins was fatally burned.

The fire followed the explosion of a coal stove into which Adkins poured kerosene on hot coals in an effort to start a blaze quickly.

The dead are: Mrs. James Adkins, 30 years old; Grace Adkins, 14; Leona Adkins, 11; Naomi Ruth Adkins, 4; Freda Adkins, 3 weeks; Walter Bennett, 70, uncle of Mrs. Adkins.

Soon after 2 o'clock this morning Mr. Adkins arose to heat water for his three-weeks-old daughter, who was ill. He was pouring kerosene into the stove from a two-gallon can, when there was an explosion, and the burning oil was thrown to all parts of the room. Mrs. Adkins and her baby, who occupied a bed in a corner of the room, were enveloped in flames. The three other children and Mr. Bennett occupied a single room on the second floor of the four-room dwelling.

Adkins rushed from the burning building, rolled in the mud, and then ran a half mile to a neighbor's home for help. Excepting the collar of his shirt, all of his clothing was burned from his body.

By the time neighbors arrived at the dwelling it was a mass of smoldering embers. Adkins was brought to a hospital here, where his death is momentarily expected. He was employed as a farm laborer.

HARDING WITH ROOT ON ARMAMENT WAIT

But He Is Expected to Hold Aloof From Controversy With Borah.

YACHTING PARTY AT ORMOND

CUMMINS JOINS THE GROUP

Cabinet Shifts Are Expected to Be Discussed by Senators on Trip.

Special to The New York Times.

ORMOND, Fla., Jan. 23.—There is little prospect that President-elect Harding will inject himself into the controversy between Elihu Root and Senator Borah over the disarmament question. As he expressed it yesterday when he went on board Senator Frelinghuysen's houseboat, the Victoria, for a two weeks' cruise along the east coast to Miami, he is determined to remain "free from worry and care" until he returns to St. Augustine, Feb. 7. The Victoria arrived here late this afternoon.

Although Mr. Root, with the prestige of long acquaintance with international affairs, did not presume to speak for the President-elect when he told Senator Borah that the disarmament conference should not be called until after the inauguration of a new administration, he nevertheless appears to have interpreted Mr. Harding's position correctly in the light of the President-elect's statement on the question before leaving Marion.

Two weeks ago Mr. Harding denied that it had been definitely decided to invite representatives of foreign powers to Washington for a conference upon proposals for limited or total disarmament beyond the forces necessary to preserve international order. Coupled with the denial, however, was Mr. Harding's hope that ultimately such a conference could be held. It has developed in Washington dispatches that the question of armament in all probability will figure in the broad program of the Harding proposal for an association of nations, and that this was one of the reasons for the return of the British Ambassador, Sir Auckland Geddes, to his country for a conference with officials of his Government.

At the time when he denied reports that it had been decided to call an international conference in Washington, Mr. Harding pointed out that under the Naval Act of 1916 President Wilson is still empowered to call such a conference. The question was raised at the time whether President Wilson would issue a call for an international conference that could not be held until after the inauguration of a new Administration, and Mr. Harding indicated his belief that it would be "unseemly" of the President to leave the matter to the next Administration. In the light of this, Mr. Harding and Mr. Root appear to be in accord.

Expect Cabinet Parleys on Boat.

Whether Mr. Root speaks with the authority of the next Secretary of State cannot be settled until Mr. Harding returns to St. Augustine for further deliberation upon his Cabinet selections. Impetus to Senatorial objections to Mr. Hughes as Secretary of State, coupled with efforts in behalf of Mr. Root, is believed to have caused the President-elect to abandon his decision to announce the next Secretaries of State and the Treasury before he left for Florida.

It has been indicated that one way out of the President-elect's dilemma appears to be the relinquishing of his decision to appoint Mr. Hughes Secretary of State, transferring him to the post of Attorney General, switching Harry M. Daugherty to Postmaster General and putting Mr. Root on the slate for Secretary of State. Mr. Harding, it is understood, has received suggestions to that effect, and doubtless this will be a matter of discussion that hardly will be avoided on board the Victoria, in view of the various opinions held by guests on Senator Frelinghuysen's yacht.

Mr. Frelinghuysen is known to favor Hughes, while Senator Fall has had many conferences with Mr. Root since the election and can be presumed to speak in behalf of Senatorial effort in Mr. Root's favor. Another guest, Mr. Daugherty, can speak with authority on proposals to transfer him on the tentative Cabinet slate from Attorney General to Postmaster General.

In view of Mr. Harding's campaign utterances it is not believed to be probable that he will call an international disarmament conference under the provisions of the 1916 Naval Appropriation bill.

When the Victoria touched at Ormond this afternoon to enable the President-elect's party to land for a round of golf over the Ormond course tomorrow morning, important mail and telegrams received at the Harding temporary headquarters at the Ponce de Leon Hotel, St. Augustine, were sent on board.

Harding Boat Gets Stuck in Mud.

ORMOND BEACH, Fla., Jan. 23 (Associated Press).—The houseboat Victoria, on which President-elect Harding is cruising, disembarked her passengers here this afternoon for a two hours' motor ride along the Florida East Shore Boulevard. In the course of the trip Mr. Harding and his companions drove into Daytona, eight miles from Ormond, and brought back Senator Cummins of Iowa, who has been at a Daytona hotel and who will make the remainder of the houseboat trip as a member of the party.

Under a hot sun, the President-elect came ashore, wearing white woolens and a straw hat. His visit attracted little attention, though the Victoria docked within a stone's throw of a big tourist hotel. Only a few of the guests learned of his arrival until after the Victoria had headed downstream again.

Trouble at the drawbridge occurred soon afterward and held up the Victoria for more than an hour. She attempted the passage at too shallow a place, and stuck in the mud in such a position that the bridge could not be closed until her little engine had forced a way out inch by inch. Meantime more than a score of automobiles were held up.

A crowd of several hundred gathered on the bridge and cheered the houseboat when she finally extricated herself. At no time was the Victoria in a dangerous position, and, although her rudder was slightly damaged, her master said that the injury was not serious.

Prices realized on Swift & Company sales of carcass beef in New York City for week ending Saturday, Jan. 22, 1921, on shipments sold out, ranged from 14 cents to 19 cents per pound and averaged 16.78 cents per pound.—Advt.

Waitresses Get Patrons To Picket Hotel in Boston

BOSTON, Jan. 23.—The smiles of striking waitresses induced many patrons of the Quincy House to volunteer for picket duty today with the girls who had often served food to them. Men in tall hats joined with college youth in notifying prospective guests that a strike was on. From early afternoon until long after nightfall the vigil was kept up.

It was reported at the hotel that three labor unions which have been holding regular Sunday meetings there canceled their gatherings today as a result of the strike.

ARISTOCRATIC GANG ARRESTED IN VIENNA

HAD FORGED PASSPORTS

And Had Arranged for Escape by Airplane After the Completion of Their Program.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

VIENNA, Jan. 23.—A curious light is thrown upon conditions here by the arrest of seven men who formed themselves into an armed gang of terrorists. All seven are of good family and were mostly naval and military officers under the old monarchy, but lately they have been with the "Austrian Legion" in the Hungarian service.

They intended to carry out a series of burglaries in Vienna in order to replenish the cash resources of their Legion, and when arrested were armed with revolvers, while one had a supply of chloroform for use upon their victims. They had also false passports and papers and detailed plans of what they were to do.

One of these was to break into the Army Pay Office, where large sums in cash were kept. They then intended to invite a wealthy currency swindler to cross the frontier with them and so smuggle out the currency without risking an examination by customs officials. They were asked by the smuggler, however, to deposit an equal amount in Vienna as a pledge of their "honest" intentions. This they failed to do, and the trip was not made. They had intended to chloroform their smuggler accomplice on the journey.

As the coups planned became more desperate in their nature, arrangements were made whereby a motor car would be in readiness to help them out of trouble, and their final exploit was to have been dramatically wound up by their escape in an airplane, the use of which had been arranged for.

DISASTER TO THE K-5 STILL A MYSTERY

British Expert's View That It Was Caused by "Over Trimming" of Submarine.

LONDON, Jan. 23.—The fact seems to have been established that the British submarine K-5 was not rammed, and there is nothing yet to explain the cause of the disaster to the submersible off Land's End last Thursday. This was the first British naval disaster since the armistice was signed and the worst submarine accident to the country in peace times.

Many theories concerning the disappearance of the under-water boat are being advanced, but although an official inquiry is being held aboard the battleship Queen Elizabeth it is doubtful whether anything more concerning the fate of the K-5 ever will be known. Wreckage has been found near the spot where the submarine was last seen.

Rear Admiral S. S. Hall, retired, who was in charge of the submarine service during the war, theorizing on the cause of the disaster to the submarine K-5, says in The London Times:

"It may be taken as certain that the loss of the vessel was due to some delay in checking the downward momentum gained by the vessel being over-trimmed in diving, either by admitting compressed air too slowly into too many tanks at one time, or to tanks only partially full, or to a sea connection being closed prematurely."

The Admiral asserts that the water was so deep that the submarine would inevitably be crushed, and it would be impossible to regain control, owing to the entry of water. This, also, would prevent the use of the under-water signal plant.

He says that the K-class was designed solely for the North Sea and was not fitted to endure the open sea. These submarines are the largest and most complicated craft of that type in existence and need exceptionally well-trained crews, whereas many of the crew of the K-5, including the Lieutenant on whom the duty of supervision would fall, had newly joined the vessel.

Another theory is that an internal explosion may have caused the accident.

Salvage is considered impossible at the great depth of 500 feet, where the craft is supposed to lie, and it is doubtful whether it will be possible to obtain a photograph of the wreck, as was done in the case of the steamer Laurentic when that vessel was sunk in Lough Swilly.

The official list of those on board the K-5 issued tonight confirms the previous estimate of six officers and fifty-one men on board.

CHICAGO HEARS MELLON GETS PLACE IN CABINET

CHICAGO, Jan. 23.—Cabinet gossip current in Washington today, says a dispatch tonight to The Chicago Tribune, is to the effect that Andrew W. Mellon of Pittsburgh, banker and industrial capitalist, is to be Secretary of the Treasury. His name was presented to Senator Harding by Senator Knox, after which the President-elect invited Mr. Mellon to Marion for a conference. The dispatch further says:

"Senators who have received word that Mr. Mellon has been selected for the Treasury portfolio expressed the opinion that Charles G. Dawes of Chicago would be given another place in the Cabinet. The possibility of Mr. Dawes being appointed Secretary of War was suggested some time ago, but Mr. Harding is understood to be opposed to having any one for his war minister who has been identified with the army in the past.

"From another source, however, comes the report that with the selection of Mr. Mellon for the Treasury post General Dawes has been eliminated for consideration and that the Illinoisan in the Cabinet will be former Governor Lowden, either as Secretary of the Interior or Secretary of Commerce.

"Still another Illinois man, Harry A. Wheeler of Chicago, is being urged for Secretary of Commerce by the Chamber of Commerce of the United States, of which he formerly was President."

INDUSTRIAL SLUMP AFFECTS BELGIUM

Depression Affects All Manufactures Except That of Plate Glass.

WORST IN TEXTILE TRADE

Socialist Co-operative Plant Has Closed—Most Factories Keep Going, but on Reduced Time.

Copyright, 1921, by The Chicago Tribune Co.

BRUSSELS, Jan. 23.—An industrial depression, which Belgian bankers and business men hope is only temporary, has brought to a standstill the remarkable progress in reconstruction of this little country's industries.

Only one division of its important manufacturing enterprises may be said to be in a prosperous condition—the manufacture of plate glass.

The metallurgical and machine plants, which until last November showed steady gains, are falling off now, because of slack buying. The strike of November and its after effects have decreased considerably the output of coal, which had reached, and on one occasion exceeded, the coal production of pre-war months.

But it is the textile industry which has been hardest hit in Belgium. The flax mills are working eighteen hours a week, and unless something happens very soon to bring in new orders they will be forced to close entirely. The cotton spinners and weavers are working twenty-seven hours a week, and they also are threatening to close their mills. At present 24,000 of the normal number of 120,000 workers employed in the textile industries are without any work.

The recovery of Belgium after the armistice was remarkable. The return of the Belgian Government in November, 1918, found more than 600,000 workers unemployed, many of the steel mills destroyed, and hardly one plant ready for work. Dec. 31, 1919, saw 76 per cent. of Belgian workers again employed, and by June 1, 1920, 94 per cent. were working. The biggest increase was in the building trades, which were on June 1 employing three times as many workers as they did in 1913. The coal mines showed a generous increase of 9 per cent. over the 1913 average. Metal trades were at 85 per cent. and textiles at 83 per cent. While resumption of production did not equal resumption of employment because of the number of men occupied with reconstruction, it was approaching very close to the mark on Sept. 1.

Belgium's only important mining is that of coal. That industry, but for the general strike of November, would have shown 100 per cent. production for the year 1920, in comparison with that of 1913. The average monthly production for the last complete year before the war was 1,910,710 tons. During 1920 the following were the figures: January, 1,869,640; February, 1,683,750; March, 2,006,160; April, 1,900,750; May, 1,737,086; June, more than 2,000,000; July, nearly 2,000,000; August, 1,856,000; September, 1,990,030; October, 1,991,000; November, less than 900,000.

This coal production has made Belgian industry independent of coal imports and probably has greatly aided the quick recovery of her factories. In the metallurgical plants, however, the progress has been more gradual, because of the number of factories destroyed and stripped of raw materials. Until the first of last October this progress had been steady, and not until the month of November did it begin to show a tendency to remain at a standstill.

The metallurgical industry in 1913 employed 30,000 workers, and the machine trades 110,000. It now has more than thirty thousand workers, and the machine shops and factories have more than ninety thousand. The progress toward pre-war standards is best shown in the month-to-month production tables of the last year. In 1913 Belgium had fifty-five blast furnaces, of which three were totally destroyed during the war. On Dec. 1, 1920, the remaining fifty-two were either lighted or under reconstruction.

In the machine industries the present crisis is much more serious than it is in the prime products branch of the metal trades, for the Belgian machine industry depends almost entirely on foreign trade. The foreign market is not buying, and the German competition, which places its goods on the market much lower than the Belgians are able to do, is seriously cutting into their export commerce.

It is in the textile industry that the worst conditions prevail. Since July 1 last, when Belgium had approached pre-war production of cotton and linen goods, there has been a steady decline in orders until on Dec. 1, 1920, the flax mills were working eighteen hours a week, and the cotton mills twenty-seven hours.

The week before Christmas the big Socialist co-operative flax-spinning plant was closed through lack of goods, and it was announced that many others would be unable to carry on unless new orders were forthcoming at once.

In 1913 Belgium had 329,560 flax spindles, employing a few more than 30,000 men. By April 1, 1920, 219,000 spindles were again in operation. On July 10 another 10,000 had been added. When the falling off of orders came the factories, rather than close parts of their plants entirely, shortened the hours of work and maintained their full payrolls. That condition continued until the middle of last December, the Socialist spinners being the first to cease work.

The cotton spindles in operation, which in 1913 numbered 1,700,000, were 1,250,000 the first of January, 1920, and 1,400,000 the first of July, which figure has been maintained until now. The consumption of raw cotton, however, dropped from an average of 17,000 bales monthly in July, 1920, to an average of about 8,000 bales last November.

On Aug. 1 it was estimated that 100,000 bales of American cotton would be required for the fiscal year, Aug. 1, 1920, to July 31, 1921. Now the estimate is placed at fewer than 60,000 bales, and may even drop to 40,000 before the Spring deliveries.

The great difficulty which the industry is facing is that of regulating prices. The mills are uniformly offering cotton and linen goods at more than 50 per cent. below their present retail prices. Buyers will not buy at this figure until their present supply of high-priced textiles is exhausted.

The upshot of it all is that this Winter the mills may close entirely until new orders are forthcoming. Such a move would throw more than 100,000 men out of employment.

The glass-making industry was the first to regain anything like normal production, and the plate glass division of this industry is maintaining its record. The window glass division and the plants manufacturing tableware are now finding it difficult to maintain production under the recent cut in prices. The November production was no higher than that of August, being at 85 per cent. of the 1913 mark. Belgian manufacturers have unfilled orders from the United States for 100,000 feet of plate glass.

The general slump in production has affected employment to a less extent than might have been expected, chiefly owing to the efforts of employers to keep their organizations intact and the reduction in hours instead of in number of employed.

On Jan. 1, 1920, the number of unemployed men and women was 150,000. On June 1 more than 100,000 had found places, leaving an unemployed total of about 40,000. At the present time, owing to reductions in textile factories, where 24,000 are out of work, the total number of unemployed exceeds 50,000, and further increases are expected before conditions begin to mend.

Widespread Revolt Against Soviet Rule; Bolsheviki Rush Reinforcements to Ukraine

COPENHAGEN, Jan. 23.—Delegates have arrived at Warsaw representing the peasants around Karelia, Petrograd, Pskov and Novgorod, while Russian Ukrainians in revolt against the Soviet are seeking to negotiate for common action against the Bolsheviki.

The revolts are spreading rapidly and are considered a serious danger for the Soviet Government.

In Siberia and Turkestan new uprisings are reported. The North Caucasian mountaineers have taken the railway running to Vladikavkaz in the Terek territory.

WARSAW, Jan. 19 (Associated Press).—The insurgent uprisings in the region of Kiev are reported to have reached a stage where the Bolsheviki are rushing up fresh troops to deal with the situation. The peasants are said to be organizing at various points between Kiev and Odessa anti-Bolshevist movements which are spreading among the Ukrainians, who desire to free the district from Soviet rule.

The insurgents are being aided by the so-called "Black Hand," which is described as being similar to the Ku-Klux Klan of American Civil War days, being composed of unidentified persons who are carrying on night raids with the principal object of ridding the country of Soviet Commissars. Several Commissars have been taken from their beds and shot or hanged, and their lieutenants in a number of instances have been warned to leave the district and never return.

Virtually all of the railroad line from Kiev to Odessa is said to be controlled by the insurgents, but the Bolsheviki plan to attempt to regain control of it as soon as their reinforcements arrive. The insurgents have been victorious in several encounters south of Kiev. They have reached the suburbs of Kiev. Red forces are on the way to that city to prevent its capture.

LUDENDORFF BACKS ANTI-RED WAR PLAN

Endorses Draft of Project Said to Have Been Asked For by Americans.

DECLARES PEACE INSECURE

Copyright, 1921, by The Chicago Tribune Co.

MUNICH, Jan. 23.—"In the not distant war between Russia and Poland, Russia will overrun the latter country, and when Warsaw is captured all Europe will be endangered and the whole world will realize that the danger of Bolshevism is increased, not diminished."

This is General Ludendorff's view. The former Chief of the German Staff told me so today, and later sent me to see Arnold Rechberg, who drew up a plan for a European league to fight Bolshevism in the field. Rechberg told me that the war program to block the Bolsheviki was written largely at the request of Americans, but he could not mention names.

General Ludendorff is living in a suburb at Prince Ludwig's home. He is in the best of health and vigorous. He was dressed in a sporting suit and wearing American shoes. As he sat at his desk he wore horn-rimmed spectacles, but there was a monocle on his desk.

Ludendorff has changed little since the war except that his hair has grown grayer. He is still unaccustomed to interviews and his speech comes with difficulty.

"I am sorry," he said, "that Rechberg's memorandum, which held my approval, although not written by me, was published, because it should have had the authority of its British and American backers. Rechberg's notes are self-explanatory. I can only add I am convinced that all Europe must unite against Bolshevism before it penetrates the heart of Europe.

"Unfortunately, there is no unity of opinion within Europe. The danger is urgent, yet it seems impossible to come to an understanding among nations, each desiring to save itself from Bolshevism. I am convinced that a Russian attack on Poland this Spring will be successful, and when Warsaw has fallen France and the remainder of Europe will realize the danger. Then it will be too late to stamp on the earth and have fully armed soldiers appear, as Cadmus did when he sowed the dragon's teeth."

Peace Not Secure, Ludendorff Says.

General Ludendorff does not believe that Germany is wholly freed from Bolshevism. He fears especially the arrival of Red troops on the Prussian border if Poland is overrun.

"No durable peace in Europe is possible," declared the General, "until the Russian problem is settled. Russia is not only raising armies, but backing the third internationale movement in every country, thus undermining national ideals. Therefore I believe that Bolshevism must be fought internationally. In order to make armed intervention possible it is absolutely necessary that the Entente change its policy. England's policy is dubious, while America's policy is turning toward disinterestedness in European affairs.

"Naturally before Germany can take an active part against Russian conditions it is necessary that France change its policy toward Germany."

General Ludendorff believes it is easier for eastern European States to unite than for Germany to bridge the differences with western States, especially with France, "which still seems to fear the so-called German plans of attack."

Of Bavarian politics, General Ludendorff refused to speak. He remarked that most of his visitors were foreigners, adding that "foreign countries seem more eager to hear my voice than Germany." Finally he declared that he preferred to remain forgotten by the press, but my final impression is that he is convinced he has not yet retired from the world's focus of events.

American Help Is Wanted.

Herr Rechberg was formerly Adjutant to the Crown Prince. When I asked him regarding his memorandum, he replied:

"I wrote it at the request of British, French and American leaders, especially Americans, who wanted information on the German military viewpoint, because Germany is most capable of warring on the Russians. I saw the possibility of building an anti-Bolshevist block to Europe providing it has America's moral and financial support, which these Americans discussed.

"I took up the matter with General Ludendorff and others. General Ludendorff wrote an endorsement. I then presented the document to the American and Entente leaders."

Rechberg said that General Ludendorff had not discussed it with General Hoffman, but their views coincided. Rechberg also interviewed the leading German industrial and labor leaders, who are planning to reconstruct Russia's agricultural and commercial life.

"What does Germany expect for her military leadership if it destroys Bolshevism?" was asked.

"Naturally," said Rechberg, "Germany expects the Entente to revise the Versailles Treaty, lifting burdens from the German people. It will be a small payment in return for saving Europe from the greatest of all dangers and restoring the greatest producing and purchasing country to the ranks of active nations."

ALL UPPER SILESIA WANTS PLEBISCITE

YEARN FOR TRANQUILLITY

BEUTHEN, Upper Silesia, Jan. 23 (Associated Press).—German industrialists, Polish propagandists and the men and women who work in the great mines of Upper Silesia express virtually a unanimous hope that the Allied Council meeting in Paris tomorrow will fix the earliest possible date for the plebiscite, which, they believe, regardless of the result, will be the first step toward the stabilization of the unsettled conditions which are terrorizing and pauperizing a large percentage of the population.

The Germans, who are conducting an intensive campaign to swing the region east of the Oder to their side, declare that a further postponement of the elections will only add to the excitement and to the hatred between the Poles and the German workmen, and that economically the interests of Upper Silesia will be best served by an immediate vote to decide whether Poland or Germany will control.

The Poles, apparently more confident of victory, assert that they have always stood for an early plebiscite and still urge it. It is pointed out by both sides that the population is fully equipped with arms and that fighting during or after the elections can hardly be avoided.

Wojojeck Korfanty, Polish leader and chief propagandist in the plebiscite zone and former member of the Reichstag, whom the Germans charge with instigating the "organized terror" last year, has declared that Poland is so confident of winning the elections that he has completed arrangements for the assumption of control of every administrative post the moment the decision of the electorates is announced. He said an organization had been developed to take over the railroads and all the mines and other industries, as well as to replace the present German Government officials.

The campaign, which has been going on ruthlessly, has lost its economic aspects, in spite of the great wealth of Upper Silesia, and has become a question of nationality, according to Korfanty, who added:

"Upper Silesia has never really been part of Germany, and the Germans developed it for five hundred years only as a colony. This campaign is against the Middle Age system by which the industrial barons have been able to hold a majority of the working people in literal slavery. This working population is overwhelmingly Polish, its social and national interests are Polish and its sympathies are there. I am willing to wager my head that Poland will win this plebiscite."

Korfanty is housed in a large hotel in Beuthen, which he purchased. The street in front of his offices was thronged with silent crowds of men, women and children, many of whom were barefoot and thinly clad, although a storm of snow and sleet was raging, when the correspondent called on him. The stairways also were thronged with those waiting to see him. There were numerous guards in plain clothes.

The correspondent quickly passed through two outer rooms into Korfanty's office, where the Pole, who is rather short and yellow-haired, began a conversation in French, but turned immediately to German. In the course of the conversation Korfanty was informed:

"The Germans say you have an army of 30,000 men in Poland; that you have over 10,000,000 marks in contributions; that you are responsible for the terror; that you are the chief cause of the spread of Bolshevism in the mining centres; that you have planned a massacre of German residents in the event of a Polish victory, and that the French Government is giving you financial support."

Adjusting his monocle, Korfanty smiled and said:

"The Poles and Germans all are armed. That is a natural sequence to the events of last August. I am not training troops. We have sufficient money, but the French do not give liberally, you know. The crime wave seems to me to be more the result of the war than local conditions, and you have it everywhere. It is in Berlin, in America, over the whole world. Feeling is intense and there probably will be trouble, but criminals have no nationality."

BERLIN, Jan. 23.—German mine owners with whom the plebiscite in Upper Silesia has been discussed are generally agreed that in the event of a Polish victory they would make no effort to dispose of their properties, but would seek a satisfactory working agreement with the Polish Government. One of them said:

"The situation is such that we would be unable to dispose of the properties at anything approximating the real value. Besides, these estates have been held by the Germans since the fifteenth century and the owners would be loath to part with them now. Also, we feel we owe an obligation to the rest of the world to keep the mines operating and think the Poles realize that it will be necessary to retain in authority the men who developed or are now operating these industries."

CRITICISES WILSON ON RUSSIAN NOTE

London Chronicle Considers Too High a Price Asked for Armenian Mediation.

PROTECTION FOR SOVIETS

"We Wonder if We Are Reading the 'Arabian Nights!'" Is the Paper's Comment.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Jan. 24.—The Daily Chronicle, in an editorial article on President Wilson's message to the Assembly of the League of Nations on Armenian mediation, declares it "bristles with disputable points."

"We may note," it says, "that fighting on the Crimean front resulted not from invasion but from civil war, and that the troubles in Armenia arose, in the first place, not from the Bolsheviki but from the Kemalist Turks. But consider the price which he asks 'particular' European powers to pay for the benefit of his mediation. They are to pledge themselves to guarantee, presumably by force, the territorial integrity of a Russia ill defined and stretching from Poland across Europe and Asia to the Pacific. Denied the right to any say in Russian affairs, offered nothing in return by Russia, they are to undertake to protect this beneficent home of revolution against any enemy in two continents who may have a grudge against it. This would be a tall order even if the United States were willing to help. But as the price of President Wilson's personal mediation in Armenia! We wonder if we are reading the 'Arabian Nights.'"

SEE "RECOGNITION" IN NOTE.

Soviet Followers Say President Admits Their Government Exists.

Those interested in the Russian Soviet Government left here look upon President Wilson's note to the powers as amounting to an eleventh hour recognition of the Soviet Government. Some who were asked their opinions said they had no doubt that, if assurances were given Russia that she was secure against invasion, demobilization would take place immediately.

"Mr. Wilson has been again consistent in his inconsistency," said Isaac A. Hourwich, who was statistician for the Soviet foreign trade bureau conducted here by Ludwig C. A. K. Martens. "He has always changed his views with a change in the situation. Until recently he denied that there was anything like a Soviet Russian Government and denied that there had been any intervention. Now, on the eve of his moving day, he recognizes the fact that there is some sort of government in Russia."

Dr. Hourwich was asked if he thought Russia would really demobilize if President Wilson's suggestion were followed by the powers.

"I do not believe she would immediately demobilize, not until she was perfectly sure she was in no danger of invasion," he said. "Russia has always made every concession to buy peace, she has wanted peace more than anything else. She has consented to the loss of Russian territory on the Rumanian frontier, to the loss of Russian territory on the Polish frontier, she has yielded to little Esthonia, a country of only a little over 1,000,000 people; she has consented to the separation of a large territory in Easetrn Siberia and the formation there of a Democratic Government independent of the Russian Government so as to avoid conflict with Japan.

"Russia has conceded everything she could be asked to concede to secure peace and she only wants to be left to work out her own destiny undisturbed. Only a few months ago when peace seemed likely she began to demobilize her army and sent soldiers to districts to do construction work, but when danger threatened again she was forced to mobilize them. Of course, Russia would demobilize if she could feel secure."

Charles Recht, an attorney who represented Martens in his legal difficulties here and who still has charge of his legal affairs, characterized the note as somewhat "belated."

"It looks to me as if the Administration was trying to save its face," he said, "as if it were making a virtue of necessity. It merely shows that it has been proved that the Soviet Government is so firmly established that nobody can interfere with it, and that it might as well be left alone to work out Russia's destiny."

CONSTANTINISTS WILL NAME BOULE PRESIDENT

Today's Election Seems Certain to Be Carried by Rhallis and Gounaris Deputies.

ATHENS, Jan. 22 (Associated Press).—When Parliament meets next Monday the principal questions before it will be the selection of a President of the Boulé. It seems apparent that no one party can secure the election of its candidate without support from the other groups. It is felt certain that the followers of Premier Rhallis will vote with the supporters of War Minister Gounaris and will constitute the so-called Government group.

As these two groups control more than 200 out of the total of 369 votes, the election of their candidate seems virtually assured. The followers of former Premier Venizelos, who have 110 votes, will decide tomorrow whether they will participate in the meeting of Parliament.

The Government has decided not to rescind the Venizelos elections in Thrace and elsewhere. It is believed that M. Rhallis will continue as Premier, although M. Gounaris is known to be the real choice of the Royalists.

Appointments to unfilled portfolios in the Rhallis Cabinet will probably be made Monday.

M. Duvara, the new Rumanian Minister to Greece, presented his credentials today to the Greek Premier and will be received officially by King Constantine within the next few days. Rumania thus becomes the first allied government to recognise Constantine on his return to the throne.

LONDON, Jan. 23.—A dispatch from Athens says that Commander Boubourlis, the Greek Naval Attaché in Rome, who was arrested last Wednesday on a charge of destroying official documents, was released after an examination.

Boubourlis once acted as aide de camp to Admiral Coundouriotis when the latter was Minister of Marine. The documents he is alleged to have destroyed were said to have concerned the methods of the Venizelos régime, in which Coundouriotis held his portfolio.

SYNDICALIST LEADER SHOT.

Spanish State Employes Demand No Reprisals for Strike.

BARCELONA, Jan. 22.—The Syndicalist leader Hermene Gildo La Casa has been shot dead by a party of reactionary Syndicalists, according to reports received here. La Casa promoted the strike of Canadian Company workers last year.

MADRID, Jan. 23.—The committee in charge of the strike of civil servants has decided to demand guarantees of the Government that no reprisals will be taken against the workers for their action during the strike. The question of guarantees now is holding up the resumption of work.

Thief Loses Pardon by Crime, Must Serve 'Life Plus 5 Years'

OSSINING, N. Y., Jan. 23.—I. J. Hoskowitz, a "cracksman" recently sent to Sing Sing for five years for a burglary in Poughkeepsie, has just made the discovery that the penalty really means "life and five years."

Sing Sing officials announced today that a pardon given Hoskowitz for an old crime is revoked by his new sentence. When the Governor pardoned Hoskowitz, who was serving a life sentence for second degree murder, the pardon stipulated that if Hoskowitz misbehaved any time after being released he would have to return to prison and serve the life sentence.

LENIN'S ULTIMATUM HAS SPLIT RADICALS

REJECTED ENTIRE BY FOUR

In Others There Are Divisions or Minorities Fighting Moscow Domination.

Nicolai Lenin's ultimatum to the Socialists of the world, giving them the "twenty-one conditions" to which they must subscribe before they can be received into the Third or Communist Internationale of Moscow, has met with a widespread, if in many cases negative, response. It indicates a decided split in the ranks of the Socialist Party in many countries, judging by reports from abroad.

Lenin demanded, among other things, that Socialist organizations must purge themselves off all moderates, defy all national laws, undermine armies, gain control of the press, throw off the allied "yoke," promote a world economic crisis, condemn any league of nations, aid the Soviet Government and abandon for the blood and fire of "red revolution" all conservative Social Democratic programs.

United States—National Executive Committee of Socialist Party in refusing to recommend affiliation said: "We concede to the Russian comrades the right to formulate their own internal policies without interference from any other section of the working-class movement of the world. What we concede to them we claim for ourselves. Every resolution adopted by our party implies or claims this right for the American movement."

England—Leaders of British Labor Party and Trades Union Congress, in appeal to Socialist and Communist parties of world, urged efforts to "reconstitute the Internationale on a non-sectional basis."

Italy—Socialists in national convention last week rejected the conditions by a large vote, the minority withdrawing and forming the Italian Communist Party.

Germany—Independent Socialists at a conference in Halle in October voted to adhere to the Third Internationale program, the vote being 237 to 156. Great disorder marked the session, and a number of delegates bolted the conference. A month previously Independent Socialists at a convention in Berlin went on record against Bolshevism.

France—Socialists split into three factions following convention at Tours on Dec. 29, at which a motion by the Left Wing to join the Third Internationale without reservations received 3,208 votes, winning by a large majority. The Centre and Right groups oppose the elimination of conservative leaders.

Spain—Socialist congress voted in favor of the Bolshevist program last June, but no definite action was taken until September, when Marcelino Domingo and his followers pledged adherence to Lenin and his rule of the proletariat.

Switzerland — Executive Committee of the Swiss Socialist Party refused allegiance to the Lenin program. The party approved the committee's stand, but a split followed over the question of joining the Third Internationale.

Chile—A Socialist Party referendum resulted in majority of Socialists registering their approval of the Moscow dictatorship, but a small minority opposes adherence to Lenin.

Argentina—Delegates to the National Socialist Convention on Jan. 10 by a vote in the ratio of three to one rejected a proposal to accept Lenin's terms and decided not to send envoys to Russia to study Sovietism.

Sweden—Extreme Socialists and Laborites favor world revolution. Independent Socialists in 1919 voted to join the Third Internationale.

Norway—Resolutions advocating creation of a revolutionary regime based on the Soviet system were passed at the last Socialist congress. Scandinavian Workers' Congress in session at Copenhagen, however, by a vote of 385 to 15 rejected the Norwegian Socialist proposal to enter the Moscow Internationale and denounced what it characterized as Lenin's "barbaric terrorist regime."

Holland—Dutch Socialists in conference on Oct. 27 decided to defer action on the Lenin ultimatum.

Belgium—Socialists rejected the overtures of Third Internationale leaders and declared their purpose of preserving independence of action.

Austria—Extreme Socialists after accepting membership in the Third Internationale broke off relations with Moscow on Nov. 8, the Social Democrats passing resolutions condemning the Lenin-Trotzky régime as designed to "disrupt trade unionism."

Mexico—"Communist Congress of the Mexican Proletariat" in Mexico City on Sept. 19 ended in disorder when plans were started for the organization of the Fourth Internationale. Bolshevism previously had been indorsed by some of the speakers. Radicalism reported spreading in Yucatan, where property of opponents of Bolshevism has been dynamited.

The Baltic States went on record against Sovietism when the Social Democratic Congress at Riga on Dec. 18-20 rejected adherence to the Moscow program by a large majority.

While the Socialists of Strasburg voted adherence to Lenin, the French Agricultural Federation announced it would expel all those who pledged allegiance to him.

No official expression of opinion on the Lenin ultimatum has so far been made by Socialist or Communist bodies in the following countries: Canada, Australia, New Zealand, Portugal, China, Japan, Colombia, Venezuela or Peru.

RUSSIAN REFUGEES' PLIGHT.

SALONIKI, Jan. 22.—Thirty thousand refugees from the Crimea, among whom are twenty generals, seventy Colonels and a nephew of the novelist Tolstoy, face starvation unless aid is sent soon by the Allied Governments, it is learned here. The depleted condition of Greek resources does not permit of any assistance being furnished by the Greek Government, and the French, who have cared for the refugees, are withdrawing, leaving the work in the hands of a few Americans, who are without adequate supplies.

Typhus and other diseases are raging and scores of deaths are being reported daily.

DUBLIN, Jan. 23.—Official reports today show eight men have been killed in Ireland during the week-end. Two of them are constables. Another police officer succumbed to wounds received in an affray at Cork early this month, and two policemen have been seriously wounded.

Constables Hegarty and Taylor of the R. I. C. were found shot dead on the roadside at Stranooden, County Monoghan, last night and Constable Clarke was wounded. The men were off duty at the time, and so far there are no details of the occurrence.

With a label bearing the words "convicted spy" attached to his clothing an ex-soldier, Dennis Dwyer, was found dead on the road at Farrenlough, near Bandon, County Cork, in the martial law area. There were two bullet wounds in his head.

Armed men, in one case masked, and in the other without disguise, kidnapped early yesterday morning William Elliott, a farmer of Brumel, and William Charter, a farmer's son of Gervagh Ballinalee, County Longford. Charter's fate is unknown, but in the afternoon Elliott's bordy was found in a bog at Listrahee. He had been shot in the head.

An encounter between police and alleged burglars is reported from Clones, County Monaghan, early this morning.

A police party turned out in response to information that armed burglars were in a local shop. Constables intercepted the men and there was an exchange of shots. Later a special constabulary from Newton Butler found in the street one man killed and one seriously wounded.

An official telegram has reached Dublin Castle stating that three men—Michael Hoade of Cahirlistrane, John Kirwan of Ballinasloe and William Walsh of Headford, County Galway—were shot dead while attempting to evade arrest.

The remaining case is that of Constable Johnston, who was wounded during the attack at Parnell Bridge, Cork City, on Jan. 4, and who has since died.

Glenbar police barracks, County Tipperary, was attacked early this morning by a party estimated at 100 men. For an hour and a quarter the attack lasted, bombs and rifles being used. No police casualties are reported.

After attempting unsuccessfully to blow up the vacated barracks at Rostrevor, County Down, a body of men set the building on fire by means of paraffin late last night.

A bomb was thrown over the sea wall at a motor vehicle containing auxiliaries which was traveling from Booterstown to Dublin. There were no casualties, only the wheel of the car being damaged.

DUBLIN, Jan. 23 (Associated Press).—All the buildings in Palace Street, which overlooks the main entrance to Dublin Castle, have been commandeered by the military. The residents of the buildings have been ordered to quit their premises before next Thursday.

SAYS SINN FEINERS ARE MORE UNITED

Leader Declares There Will be No Peace Until Dail Eireann Is Recognized.

CORK, Jan. 23.—"The Sinn Feiners are as far as ever from any intention of accepting the partition act, though it is probable they may be prepared to utilize the electoral machinery thus provided to ascertain the sentiment of the people," said Professor Alfred O'Rahilly, Registrar of the University of Cork and one of the principal leaders of the Irish movement today.

"I do not doubt that the Sinn Feiners would be returned by a larger majority than in the last election," he added. "In fact, the Sinn Feiners never were more united than they are today."

Professor O'Rahilly said he was skeptical that there ever had been any split in the party, as was reported six months ago, when the movement was alleged to have been shaken by the action of the British Government.

"Whatever might have been the case then," he declared, "it is certain that the Sinn Fein is absolutely solid now. The country is becoming accustomed to terrorism, and the Government's attempt to break its spirit by violence has only strengthened the people's determination to continue the struggle. There is no such thing as moderate and extreme Sinn Feiners. Such a division is non-existent.

"Many Sinn Feiners opposed guerrilla tactics when they first were adopted, preferring passive resistance; but their minds have been changed by the force of events."

Discussing the possibility of peace, Professor O'Rahilly said:

"I am certain that the Sinn Fein will not attempt negotiations either for the alternative scheme of the Government or for a truce until the Government is prepared to meet the Dail Eireann. The published records of violence are enough to show how ridiculous is Major Gen. Sir Edward Strickland's claim that martial law has succeeded in breaking the organization of the Republican Army. The organization possibly has changed with the requirements of the situation and probably is much less centralized, but for the purposes of guerrilla warfare it seems as effective as ever."

CORK MAYOR AT PORT TODAY

Under Seaman's Privilege He Could Ship on Some Friendly Vessel.

NORFOLK, Va., Jan. 23.—Donal J. O'Callaghan, Lord Mayor of Cork, will arrive here tomorrow to cancel his parole with immigration authorities, his counsel, Judge Joseph T. Lawless, announced tonight. O'Callaghan was due today, but missed the boat on which he had made arrangements to leave Washington.

The Lord Mayor's next move will depend upon the attitude of the immigration officials. If he receives the privileges accorded to seamen, it is indicated here that he will quietly ship on some friendly vessel which will endeavor to get him safely through the British cordon around Ireland. Under the Labor Department ruling he will not be required to sail until ready to sign on as an "able seaman," as he is now rated.

The Theatre Guild made its third production of the season last evening when a pretentious and self-conscious tragedy called "John Hawthorne" was presented for the first time at the Garrick Theatre, with the idea that it should be repeated for a series of matinees so scheduled as not to interrupt the success of "Heartbreak House." The scheme of sandwiching it in to the regular bill in this manner was doubtless dictated also by a justifiable lack of faith in its appeal, and an explicable desire to have it over and done with as soon as possible.

"John Hawthorne" is the work of a new playwright named David Liebovitz, who has told in it the story of a pious young woman torn by the struggle between her conscience and her awakening love for her husband's handsome young farmhand. When he would take to the high road to fly the temptations involved in their relationship she develops a deep fear of letting him thus escape her religious influence, and so retains him. When, in a fit of anger, he kills her husband, she is possessed that he should win pardon by repentance and confession. And when she fails utterly to recommend this course to so free and life-loving a spirit, she gives him up to the authorities. The cornered Hawthorne has nothing left to do except jump over a cliff, which he does, and thereby brings to an end a play which, for all its ingredients of murder, flight and pursuit, manages somehow to be almost continuously dull and uninteresting.

The setting and occasionally the accent of the players suggest the Tennessee mountains as the background of all the goings on which fill "John Hawthorne," but the play is at considerable pains to be noncommittal in the matter and the program will go no further than to say that the action of the play does take place in a mountain region. This touch is characteristic of all the subsequent proceedings, where an escape from the restrictions (and possibly also from the responsibilities) of a more familiar realism have led Mr. Leibovitz into a mildly poetic text and a general haziness of outline and detail. Much of his dialogue is cursed with what the dramatic critics are wont to describe fretfully as being "literary," though it would be interesting to know what subtle propagandist first set the fashion of using "literary" as a word to describe bad writing for the stage.

The effort of the author to drop a universal gauze between his puppets and his audience communicated itself to the players and set them all to intoning the play in a manner signularly monotonous and unconvincing. This was partly responsible for the unmannerly levity with which the play was received by a pained first-night audience. They found cause for laughter in lines where comic intent on the part of the author seems strongly improbable. Part of this laughter was the usual reaction of offended Broadwayism to any serious attempt at something new. But most of it was just the unconquerable rebellion of common sense against hifalutin' nonsense. Of course the great hearty guffaw came when one of the posse lying in wait for the fugitive Hawthorne sighed deeply and said: "It's a long night."

PLAYS TO AID CHINA FUND.

Special Performances of Ten Productions Will Be Given Next Sunday

Special performances of ten plays will be given in the New York theatres next Sunday in aid of the Chinese Famine Fund, and particularly for the sufferers in the northern part of China. To this end there will be performances of "The Skin Game," at the Bijou; Mrs. Fiske in "Wake Up, Jonathan," at Henry Miller's; Ben-Ami in "Samson and Delilah," at the Thirty-ninth Street; "Mary," at the Knickerbocker; "Little Old New York," at the Plymouth; Grant Mitchell in "The Champion," at the Longacre, Margaret Anglin in "The Woman of Bronze," at the Frazee; "The Meanest Man in the World," at the Hudson, "Welcome, Stranger," at the Cohan and Harris, and "The Broken Wing," at the Forty-eighth Street Theatre.

Eight of these performances will be given at night, and two in the afternoon. All persons concerned with the various productions have given their services free of charge, including the house staffs. There will be no war tax on tickets.

A Chinese play, written and acted by Chinese, but to be played in English, will be presented here and on tour in the near future in aid of the same cause. The author is Peng Chun Chang, formerly President of the Nankai College in China, and the play is entitled "Mu Lan." It is to be presented under the auspices of the Chinese Student Committee formed last Fall to aid the sufferers of Northern China. The play will be acted by about thirty Chinese students, most of whom are attending Columbia.

FRANCIS WILSON HONORED.

His Return to Musical Comedy Marked by a Dinner.

Francis Wilson was the guest of honor at a dinner at the Greenroom Club last night, given in honor of his return to the musical comedy stage in "Erminie" after an absence of seventeen years. Addresses were made by Frank Bacon, Herbert Corthell and Mr. Wilson. Frank Burbeck was master of ceremonies.

An entertainment which followed the dinner included Eugene O'Neill's "Bound East for Cardiff"; "Sabotage," and other sketches. Those who appeared included Percy Helton, Janet Velie and Jay Velie, Harry C. Browne, Edward G. Robinson, Tom Lewis, Stewart Wilson and others.

At the Friars' clubhouse in Forty-eighth Street a dinner and dance took place with Marilyn Miller and Leon Errol, the stars of "Sally," as the guests of honor.

POLICEMAN SAVES MAN'S LIFE

Jumps Into River for Tug Fireman —Others Aid Rescue.

John Anderson, 38 years old, a fireman on the tug Dalzell, lying between Piers No. 1 and No. 2, North River, was rescued last night by Patrolman John Beyers, of the Marine Division, when, in attempting to board the Dalzell from a bulkhead, he fell overboard.

Patrolman Beyers grabbed a lifeline, and, jumping into the river, placed the line around Anderson's body and with the aid of other patrolmen pulled him to the bulkhead.

Anderson, suffering from submersion, was removed to the Broad Street Hospital by Dr. Kenner.

'Nice People' to Open Klaw Theatre.

The Klaw Theatre, built by Marc Klaw in West Forty-fifth Street, opposite the Plymouth, will be opened on Monday night, Feb. 21, with "Nice People," a comedy by Rachel Crothers. The new house will seat 800 persons. "Nice People," which Sam H. Harris is producing, will have Francine Larrimore as its star.

THE SCREEN

Cecil B. De Mille's latest puppet show, "Fobidden Fruit," is at the Rivoli this week. It is a highly sophisticated, gorgeously movie-milled, that is, moviedemilled, version of the Cinderella story, written by Jeanie Macpherson. A person ignorant of the "fillum business" may be puzzled to know why it is called "Forbidden Fruit," as it will be obvious to any spectator that "Temporarily Withheld Fruit," or "Taking a Husband for Worse and Getting Another Far Better," would have been a much more accurately descriptive title; for the final grand marriage made by the heroine is never forbidden, but only deferred until the obstacle presented by the existence of an entirely undesirable husband can be removed. Those who know why most movies are made will not wonder at the title chosen, however. They will know that it is expected to account for at least one out of every five tickets purchased for the picture.

But this must not be taken to indicate that "Forbidden Fruit" is salacious. It isn't at all, and it is neither dull nor shabby. Mr. De Mille is a master of marionettes, and can set them in such surroundings as no one ever really lived in, but exactly such as many people really living in city flats and on Main Street imagine they would like to live in. His characters are rarely people, but as puppets they are often wonderful to behold, and sometimes they are interesting. And their acting is usually excellent, as acting, but infrequently persuasive as impersonation. It is surrounded by too much magnificent artificiality and forced into too many plot-channels to seem anything but stagy. It is all very splendid, if spurious, however, and those who like their fiction undisguised but ornamented by a workman of the utmost skill invariably like Mr. De Mille's productions, and they will especially like "Forbidden Fruit," for it is one of his best. It's hard to find a technical flaw in it, although one might call such a meticulous director's attention to the fact that the polished, pink fingernails of well-manicured ladies photograph black—or are the black fingernails in "Forbidden Fruit" intended? Maybe Mr. De Mille is setting a new style for parvenu circles.

The principal members of the cast are Agnes Ayres, as the ultra-modern and mundane Cinderella; Clarence Burton as her objectionable husband, Kathlyn Williams as the fairy godmother, Forrest Stanley as the Prince, Theodore Roberts as the source of wealth that makes all of the grandeur possible, and Theodore Kosloff as a butler in the house of plenty. They all do well what they are supposed to do. Miss Ayres even goes beyond expectations, and Miss Williams is adroitly expressive. Mr. Roberts, of course, is delightful, and Mr. Stanley is just the hero needed. Mr. Kosloff has something of a part, and shows himself a real pantomimist. It would be interesting to see him in a rôle of more substance.

Also on the Rivoli program is Julian Ollendorf's most ambitious adventure with pen and ink, a caricaturistic, and sometimes literal, history and description of New York's Latin quarter, entitled "Seeing Greenwich Village," a clever, if not distinctly original, and amusing work.

"Mamma's Affair," one of the accomplishments of the last theatrical season, has been done in motion pictures more or less faithfully by those dexterous workers, John Emerson and Anita Loos, with Constance Talmadge in the leading rôle, and is on the screen of the Strand this week. Those who were extraordinarily entertained by Rachel Butler's play will doubtless find the photoplay only a pale reflection of it, and they may say it was just like the movies to make the heroine the picture of charming health, without physical or neurasthenic disfigurement, until the scene in which it is necessary for her to do something to attract the doctor's attention as a sick person, but Miss Talmadge's admirers would not want to see her unattractive in all of the scenes preceding the entrance of the doctor, and anyhow, maybe she was taken ill suddenly. Many run-down people look perfectly well until just before they collapse, you know.

At any rate, "Mamma's Affair" on the screen is an amusing word-and-picture play, and Miss Talmadge, departing somewhat from her usual manner, is still an agreeable person to have around. Effie Shannon is the parasitic mother, and Kenneth Harlan, as the doctor who cures the mother by curing the daughter, are the most genuine people in the play. George Le Guere and Katherine Kaelred do all that is necessary in their rôles.

The Strand program also includes "In Dutch," an Educational travel picture, and Booth Tarkington's latest comedy, "Edgar Camps Out," which the reviewer, to his regret, was unable to remain for.

LHEVINNE AT PHILHARMONIC

"Fewer and better," after the popular formula, were the concerts of yesterday, compared with Sundays of late, as if musical New York had reason to pause before its plunge into a record week of fifteen operas and twenty-five concerts, forty public events at least, in the seven days coming.

Josef Lhevinne, the Russian pianist, gave pleasure to a large audience at the Philharmonic matinee in Carnegie Hall, playing in his direct and forceful way Liszt's first concerto, which is also on another orchestra's program tomorrow. Schumann's "Spring" symphony, ideal for the warm day, was repeated, and Conductor Stransky added Smetana's "The Moldau" and Ippolitov-Ivanov's "Caucasian Sketches."

Luisa Tetrazzini, singing her second concert at the Hippodrome last evening, was greeted by a great house that enjoyed the Italian prima donna's arias from "Mignon," "Sonnambula" and "Dinorah," and would not let her go without a heavy toll of encores. Mme. Tetrazzini was assisted in alternate numbers by her own company, including Francesco Longo, J. Henri Bove and Max Gegna.

Margaret Matzenauer herself, and not Jeanne Gordon, indisposed for some days, sang the heroine's music in "Samson and Delilah," given in concert form before the largest Metropolitan Sunday night audience of the season. Mr. Sembach was the hero, a rôle of Caruso's in the opera, while Amato, Ananian, Rothier and others also sang with the chorus and orchestra, led authoritatively by Albert Wolff.

THEATRICAL NOTES.

The opening of "Cognac" at the Princess Theatre, announced for tonight, has been postponed. The play will be continued on tour for a few weeks before coming to New York.

Anna Wheaton has been engaged for the Ziegfeld roof, and will appear in both the Nine O'Clock Revue and the Midnight Frolic, opening Feb. 1.

"Three Kisses," the musical piece which Wilner and Romberg are producing, will be known instead as "Ruffles."

"A Night of Love," by Samuel Ruskin Golding, will be tried out soon by Edgar MacGregor.

Charles Abbe has been engaged for "Near Santa Barbara," scheduled to open at the Greenwich Village a week from tonight.

A special performance of "Twelfth Night" is to be given by the Verdi Club in the near future. Frances Carson will play Viola, and the cast will also include Pedro de Cordoba, Morgan Farley, Horace Braham, Rowland Buckstone and Cecil Yapp.

The cast of "The New Morality," in which Grace George is to be seen for special matinees at the Playhouse, will include Lawrence Grossmith, Ernest Lawford, Warburton Gamble, Lillian Kemble Cooper, Kathleen Andrus and John Gray.

There will be an extra matinee of "The Bat" at the Morosco this week.

Josephine Victor will leave the cast of "The Skin Game," at the Bijou, at the end of the week. It is understood that her successor in the part will be Jane Grey.

Brandon Tynan has withdrawn from the cast of "The Tavern," at the George M. Cohan Theatre. John Meehan, general stage director for George M. Cohan, is at present acting the part.

SING "LOHENGRIN" FEB. 2.

Gatti's Twelfth Week Also Brings Cora Chase in "Rigoletto."

Wagner's "Lohengrin," which has not been sung in four years at the Metropolitan, will be revived there on Wednesday evening of next week, Feb. 2. The drama of mystic Parsifal's son and his earthly bride, Elsa of Brabant, will be sung in English by Sembach, Easton, Matzenauer, Whitehill and Blass, conducted by Bodanzky, and staged with entirely new scenes by Joseph Urban.

Among events of the twelfth week will be a Thursday matinée of "Louise," with Farrer and Harrold; the further reappearance of Bori that evening in her original rôle in "The Love of Three Kings," with Gigli, Danise and Didur, and the début on Friday night of Cora Chase, an American artist, as Gilda in "Rigoletto," when Hackett returns as the Duke.

Duci de Kerekjarto, violinist, will play at next Sunday's "opera concert." "Zaza," which was the occasion of a great French demonstration last Saturday, in the presence of Ambassador Jusserand and Consul General Liebert, will be repeated next Monday in the regular subscription, with Farrar and the usual cast.

For the Saturday matinée on Feb. 5, there are "L'Oracolo," with Bori in another of her best rôles, and "Cleopatra's Night," with Alda and Kingston, while a popular-price Saturday night will add "La Forza del Destino," with Ponselle, Delaunois, Crimi, Danise and Mardones.

AN ALPHABET OF APPROVAL
ARCHER to DARLING (DING)
WILLIAM ARCHER—Allow me to thank you sincerely for giving me an opportunity of seeing Miss Zona Gale's delightful play. I have enjoyed every moment of it. The characterization is admirable throughout; the heroine is a beautiful creation, beautifully acted; and almost equally fine is the drawing of the colossal egoist, Dwight Deacon. I write in great haste and can only say in general that I have been deeply impressed.
PERCY LEE ATHERTON—I like the play better than the book.
GEORGE BELLOWES—I wish I could paint folks as wonderfully as Miss Gale has written them.
ALEXANDER BLACK—It is the most American play I have ever seen. It slips beneath the appearance of things and does something new in the theatre.
GELETT BURGESS—It is a charming play. It delighted me.
HENRY S. CANBY—No one is likely to despair of American literature after seeing "Miss Lulu Bett." It ought to be called "The Humors and Horrors of Family Life in America."
BENJAMIN DE CASSERES—No more livable, vital and instantly recognizable middle-class, small-town people have appeared on our stage in many years. Nor have I seen a play in many years that has been more perfectly cast and interpreted. There is no star, for each one in "Miss Lulu Bett" is a star. The continuous laughter caused by the play is the laughter that is caused by what Henry James calls "the delight of recognition." It is one of the few plays of the present season that I could enjoy twice.
J. N. DARLING (DING)—Gaar Williams and I saw the play last night and nudged each other black and blue. We both agreed it is the best show we have seen in years.

PLAN PORT WORK TO COST $225,000,000

New York and Jersey Commission Will Submit Proposals to Both Legislatures.

WOULD LINK THE STATES

A plan for the development of the port and harbor of New York and New Jersey is ready for submission to the Legislatures of both States. It is the result of several years' study by the New York, New Jersey Port and Harbor Development Commission, and is intended to prevent the drift of business to other ports, to relieve the congestion on the waterfronts, to lower the cost of transportation and to serve plentifully and economically the 8,000,000 who live within the port district.

The plan is to provide central receiving and distributing depots on the New Jersey side for the nine railroads that reach New York on that side of the river, and a similar depot on this side of the Hudson for the Long Island, the New York Central and the New Haven lines.

Among the various railroad terminals and the depots it is proposed to operate connecting railroads on the surface in New Jersey and in subways in Manhattan. Connection between the two States is planned by tunnel lines beneath the Hudson River. It is also proposed to build piers and warehouses and to eliminate the New York Central tracks along Riverside Drive and through what is known as "Death Avenue."

Two Automatic-Electric Links.

"Two stages of the automatic-electric development are proposed. The first, linking the New York Central Railroad with the New Jersey railroads through a loop from a joint yard in New Jersey and a spur to the New York Central's Sixtieth Street yard, will do away with the surface tracks in Tenth and Eleventh Avenues, and provide equal service from each of the ten railroads at twelve union terminals in lower Manhattan.

The second, bringing the New Haven and Long Island railroads into the system through a second joint yard near Ward's and Randall's Islands, which the New York Central will also reach by additional tracks along the Harlem River, and providing additional lines and stations in upper Manhattan, will solve the New York Central-Riverside Park problem by making possible the complete removal of the tracks from the Sixtieth Street yard to Spuyten Duyvil, and will give all parts of Manhattan universal rail service."

Would Create a Port District.

This was the vision of the commission a year ago, when it sought the necessary permission from the two State Legislatures for authority to proceed with the work. But the Board of Estimate refused to consent, because there was no plan, and Alfred E. Smith, as Governor, acquiesced in the wishes of the board. The commission believes that the Legislatures will approve of the plan and create a port district under the control of six Commissioners, three from each State, for terms of from two to six years.

The proposed district extends from Jamaica Bay to Newark, and from Perth Amboy to Irvington-on-the-Hudson. The commission states that rail lines should be brought to the tidal waters, so that rail and water service can be efficiently and economically co-ordinated. It explains that the plan is to accomplish this by a system of inner and outer belt lines on both sides of the Hudson connecting all trunk lines, and having numerous spurs to the various water front.

Every part of the proposed port, it was explained, except Manhattan would have the superior advantage of standard freight rail service without breaking bulk. For Manhattan the statement says, it is proposed to build an underground "automatic-electric system," which is described as an entirely new form of conveyor which would serve all of the twelve railroad lines. The statement reads:

It is estimated that in 1914 railroads in the proposed district handled 75,000,000 tons of freight and the river traffic 45,000,000 tons. In 1918 the terminal costs of handling freight to and from Manhattan are said to have been $2.25 a ton, the total tonnage amounting to about 8,500,000 tons, and it is believed that under the proposed plan there would be an average saving of about $1 a ton.

It is proposed to have twelve terminals in Manhattan, to be served by eight-car electric trains.

At these terminals the cars will be lifted singly by elevators to platforms near the surface, where their loads will be discharged and the cars reloaded. Service to Brooklyn and the river section of Queens is to be supplied by the Long Island-New York Connecting Railroad from Bay Ridge to Hell Gate, and by marginal lines from which spurs are to extend to Jamaica Bay and Flushing Bay.

The commission says that the food distribution problem can be effectively solved by creating food receiving stations and cold storage warehouses.

Cost Estimated at $225,000,000.

Little has been said concerning the cost of the proposed improvement, but it was conservatively stated at approximately $225,000,000. This refers only to those parts of the settled plan and not to additions that may become necessary. How the money is to be raised has not yet been arranged. It was said that it might come from the railroads or from the two States or from both.

The commission consists of William E. Willcox, Chairman; J. Spencer Smith, Vice Chairman, and Eugenius H. Outerbridge, DeWitt Van Buskirk, Murray Hulbert and Frank R. Ford. Major Gen. George W. Goethals is consulting engineer; B. F. Cresson Jr., chief engineer; Julius Henry Cohen, counsel; William Leary, Secretary, and C. A. Ruhlmann, Assistant Secretary.

City Red Cross Station Opened.

FIVE YEARS' FIRES COST $1,416,375,845

A compilation of fire losses in the United States from 1915 to 1919, inclusive, made by the National Board of Fire Underwriters, shows a loss in this period of $1,416,375,845, four times the amount spent in building the Panama Canal.

"The most regrettable feature of the situation is that most of the loss was preventable," says a bulletin issued by the board. "The total recorded destruction amounted to $1,133,100,676, but to this is added 25 per cent. as a conservative estimate of the destruction from unreported fires and those occurring in uninsured properties."

This is the first time a statistical record of fires has been obtained for a period of years. The figures were taken from 700,000 adjustment reports from the fire insurance companies each year. More than 50,000,000 adjustments were necessary to reduce these reports to a form that would show the losses in classifications. The value of property wasted through fire would have built 283,275 houses at an average cost of $5,000 each, thus supplying homes for 1,416,375 people, more than the population of Connecticut; or would have constructed 141,637 miles of macadam roads at $10,000 a mile.

Electricity is the chief cause of fire, a total of $84,086,471 being traced to this source. Matches and smoking materials stand second, with a loss of $73,474,348 for the five years, while defective chimneys and flues hold third place, with a total of $56,650,915. New York's losses from fire are greater than those of any other State, the total for the five years being $140,305,821. Pennsylvania was second, $78,339,866; Illinois third, $73,916,503; New Jersey fourth, $63,679,525; Massachusetts fifth, $53,677,087. The losses from fire in rubbish and litter in New York were low compared with other States, being only $146,997, while in Illinois the loss was $501,018.

HOOVER AT MOVIE THEATRE.

He and Damrosch Will Aid Motion Picture Day Entertainment.

S. Rothapfel, Chairman of the Greater New York Motion Picture Committee of the European Relief Council, has arranged a program at the Capitol Theatre for midnight, Jan. 26, as part of the demonstration throughout the country next Wednesday, Motion Picture Day.

The performance at the Capitol is being given to the members of Mr. Hoover's General Committee, the members and workers of the Motion Picture Committee, and to the hosts and hostesses to 200 or more children at the benefit performance on Jan. 29.

Herbert Hoover will make an address, and several popular stars are scheduled to appear. Walter Damrosch, director of the New York Symphony Society, will conduct a chorus of 150 in several choral numbers.

VARNISH MADE HIM SING.

Volunteer Performer in Theatre Freed on Suspended Sentence.

Henry Weaver, salesman for a music publishing house, who pleaded guilty before Magistrate William A. Sweetser in the West Side Court yesterday to being intoxicated, said that he had been drinking varnish. His sentence was suspended.

Weaver was arrested on Saturday night by Patrolman Walter Donnelly of the West Forty-seventh Street Station at the New York Theatre. The policeman said he found Weaver singing in front of the orchestra rail of the theatre. The performance was interrupted for about ten minutes by Weaver's entertainment.

PALMER REQUESTED TO NAME FEES PAID

Untermyer Says List of Beneficiaries of Attorney General Would Be Interesting.

EXPLAINS HIS COMPLIMENT

Samuel Untermyer, when asked yesterday to comment on the telegram of praise he sent A. Mitchell Palmer on July 26, 1919, and which Mr. Palmer made public on Saturday, said:

"The only comment I care to make is that it must be manifest to the most club-footed intellect that the qualified certificate of character I generously and perhaps incautiously gave Mr. Palmer nineteen months ago, and at a time when his confirmation as Attorney General was being opposed in the Senate, was issued (1) a year before the San Francisco convention and before it was known that he was turning his political office into a huge political patronage machine in furtherance of the ludicrous task of hunting for the Presidential nomination; (2) before we knew or even suspected that he was scattering huge fees broadcast mounting into the millions out of the properties in his custody, and (3) before he had embarked on his crusade of sacrificing some of these valuable properties for a fraction of their costs.

"If I or any one else had then known or suspected the facts, his action would have been then denounced as it has since been almost unanimously condemned.

"If Mr. Palmer will publish a list of the fees paid out of these properties to lawyers and directors and managers whom he appointed it will make interesting and surprising reading, but he must include also the fees taken from American citizens whose property was returned to them.

"Of course it is true, as my telegram states, that I was even then bitterly opposed, as practically everybody now is, to his policy of slaughtering these great properties and businesses or to their being sold, and I am sure the time will come, if it has not already arrived, when every right-thinking American who loves his country will be ashamed of what has been done in our names and will execrate the men who have placed us in that humiliating position.

"It was all very well for us to have taken over these businesses and even to have operated them during the war for the account of our Government as other nations did, but it was quite another matter to have sold them, and at sacrifice prices, so that it would no longer lie in our power to make restitution when the time came.

"If Mr. Palmer can get any comfort out of these performances he is welcome to it. I have nothing but pity for a man whose want of vision has left him and his country in that sad plight."

Bonds Which Inspire Confidence

There are available today numerous issues of time-seasoned bonds which have paid their interest promptly and uninterruptedly for a long period of years, through good times and bad. Such bonds inspire complete confidence. They can now be purchased at prices far and away below their normal levels. Our circular "January Investments" mentions several bonds of this character.

FINANCIAL MARKETS

Last Week's Improvement in Federal Reserve Position—Bond Market and Exchange.

The weekly showing of the New York Federal Reserve Bank on Saturday, with its 2¼ per cent. decrease in ratio of reserves, was disappointing; but the complete statement of the reserve system, published yesterday, proves that no general impairment of position occurred last week. On the contrary, a rise of one-half of 1 per cent. brought the system's average reserve ratio to a figure 3 per cent. higher than any reported in 1920 and 3¾ per cent. above this week a year ago. Reserve percentages increased last week with each of the twelve reserve districts except New York, Kansas City and Dallas.

Equally striking is the reduction of $44,000,000 reported for last week in the system's note circulation. Every district except Richmond shared in this reduction, which brings the total of outstanding notes $289,600,000 below that of only four weeks ago. All this indicates steady progress toward a normal position. But the further fact remains that, even in this period of trade reaction and deflated credit, outstanding Federal reserve note circulation is still $261,000,000 higher than a year ago this week and rediscounts greater by $330,000,000. This is the simplest explanation for the retention of the highest reserve bank rediscount rates of 1920.

We have now advanced far enough into the new year to get at least some idea of the character and trend of the general situation. It can readily be seen that the worldwide strain on credit has relaxed; that trade reaction has not yet run its full course, though its consequences are much less serious than had been expected; that financial and commercial liquidation has released great amounts of capital, notwithstanding that the credit and currency account at central banking institutions has as yet been brought only part way back to normal; and that, in anticipation of the comparatively easy money which is destined presently to prevail, European countries are about to place large loans in the New York market while existing high-grade investment bonds (especially governments) have advanced throughout the world and exchange rates on markets with depreciated currencies have recovered rapidly.

The logic of the movement in foreign exchange in the investment markets and in the market for new European securities may best be understood by recalling what was the prevalent expectation after the signing of the armistice. Even high financial circles looked at that time, first for a great decline from war-time prices of commodities, next for recovery of investment bond prices, when our own huge war-loan issues were terminated, then for the placing of American capital on an immense scale in new European securities, issued to take up or anticipate Europe's trade indebtedness to America, and, finally, as a natural consequence, for something like stability in foreign exchange. How completely every one of these expectations was upset through diversion of credit and capital to the wild speculation in our own markets during 1919, every one knows. But with the definite ending of that period of speculative mania, our markets are at last back on a footing where they can again consider dealing with the realities of legitimate after-war finance.

Prices of existing investment bonds have already advanced substantially this month. The question of continuing recovery has two sides. On the one hand, the much more abundant supply of idle capital and the impending fall in money rates should automatically raise the market value of such securities well above what it was in the recent extreme money stringency. But, on the other hand, if new foreign loans are to be placed in very great amounts with our investors, and especially if, like the forthcoming Belgian loan, they are to yield such return as 8 per cent. with a long maturity, then it would seem that a barrier would be placed against great recovery in existing domestic bonds.

With many of these the yield to investors at the present prices is not much above 5 per cent. The barrier will not be absolute, however. Many investors prefer home securities to foreign loans. Very few care to place all their eggs in one investment basket. Furthermore, outstanding bonds whose price stands far below par because of their 4 or 5 per cent. interest rate will offer, what most of the new foreign loans do not insure, the certainty of an eventual large advance in price, either at maturity or on a future radical change in the cost of investment capital.

Every new European loan taken in this market necessarily helps toward stabilizing foreign exchange. Nobody knows, and nobody can know, what is at any given moment the actual intrinsic value of a draft on a European market where gold redemption is suspended. With resumption of free gold payments a matter of the longer future, the exchange rate depreciates largely at the whim of speculation. The violent alternate rise and fall of sterling in 1920—from $3.75 to $3.18, back to $4.06, then down to $3.33 and up again to $3.53—was no more irrational than the movement of the New York gold market, which, in the year after the Civil War, quoted a paper dollar at $1.44 in gold during January, at $1.25 in March, at $1.67 in June and at $1.32 again in December. The state of the money market, the increase or decrease of our paper currency, the movement of import trade, the activities of speculators, all combined to emphasize these fluctuations, and so they have now been doing with European exchange.

But the essential fact remains that every large loan floated in America by these foreign countries removes the necessity for drawing that much of capital from Europe for settlement of trade obligations. It relieves the foreign exchange market of the immediate or prospective sale of that amount of bills on Europe. Whatever may be the normal depreciation of exchange as a consequence of depreciated foreign currencies, supply and demand on the actual market for exchange is becoming far more favorable to the foreign countries. How much further this movement of recovery is to go depends on the foreign currencies and on our foreign trade, but most of all on the attitude of our investment markets toward new European securities—which is at present

HOPEFUL OF MONEY AND EXCHANGE

THE BANK OF ENGLAND RATE

Financial Europe's Impressions of Our New Foreign Loans and of the Austrian Situation.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Jan. 23.—The excited movements which are occurring in your foreign exchange market have been duplicated in ours, where the unusually rapid shift of the French exchange rate in favor of Paris is attracting wide attention. Several reasons are assigned for the last week's action of French exchange both here and at New York. One is the fact that the return of Briand has greatly strengthened confidence among our financial people in the French Government. Another is that favorable results are beginning to be expected from the impending Anglo-French conference in Paris.

But the sustained strength of the French exchange in both English and American markets is also partly traceable to belief in the satisfactory conclusion of the negotiations for a French Government loan in America. No doubt a more or less feverish reaction will follow the very extensive speculative buying of francs which is now in progress; but the view in London is that the general trend will continue for a time unchecked.

Rise in Sterling at New York.

It must be remembered that last Autumn's fall in sterling at New York was largely due to the pressure of French remittances of sterling bills to America. Arrangement of new French credits on a large scale in America would minimize the danger of a recurrence of this demand. It would also tend to promote French exports to the United States. The worldwide decline in trade is another factor in the rise of sterling in America, because the demand in London for dollar remittances is diminished thereby. A further consideration is the steady American demand for European securities. A really large absorption is reported to have occurred last week.

Although the heavy requisitions due to Treasury bills and tax payments are keeping money relatively tight, confidence in the reduction of the Bank of England rate is undiminished. It is impossible to foreshadow when it will occur, but the disposition is to look for the change a month or two hence. It must still be kept in mind that the condition of the New York money market will have important bearing upon the question whether money is to be cheapened here or allowed to remain at the present high level. Our two markets have been so closely interlocked in the last few years that, unless signs of permanent easing of the situation in America are soon discernible, it will be necessary to proceed very cautiously here. Public opinion, however, is growing in the belief that a lower bank rate is absolutely necessary in order to restore confidence and assist the revival of trade.

Question of Lower Bank Rate.

This consideration may force reduction, even if the situation at New York fails to develop as satisfactorily as is at present expected here. The position of the bank itself is steadily improving, and if the recent recovery is maintained additional force will be given to the demand for a lower rate. The necessity for imposing restriction on credit is also passing slowly away, owing to the steady liquidation of stocks and commodities. Although severe congestion still remains, strong evidence of deflation is afforded by the great reduction of currency notes and Bank of England circulation. During the last month the decrease has been over £27,000,000. Outstanding currency notes alone are now £344,000,000, against £368,200,000 on Dec. 22.

With trade falling and unemployment decreasing, the prospect is for further contraction. The situation in this regard is controlled to some extent by the course of wages and prices, the latter falling slowly but the former being maintained. Strong resistance is developing to any reduction in wages; but if such demands are refused, further decline in the paper currency will follow.

Austria's Condition.

A word should be added on the critical condition of Austria. This is reflected forcibly by the rise of Vienna exchange on London to 2,000 crowns to the pound sterling, as against 1,525 at the end of December and a parity of only 24 crowns. Foreign capital is imperatively needed in Austria for re-establishment of its industries and provision of credits for payment of debts and restoration of exchange. As your people know, an international loan was recommended by the Reparations Commission, but the British Government has not yet decided to participate. Other countries, however, including America, are taking active steps to secure control of Austrian banking institutions, and British participation in the shape of extensive credits seems to be inevitable if our interests are not to be seriously affected.

It may be remarked that the note circulation of the Bank of Austria amounts now to 78,000,000,000 crowns, this being covered by coin only to the extent of 329,000,000. In 1914 the note circulation was 95,000,000 crowns, the gold and silver cover 65,000,000,

Principal and interest payable in dollars in New York at the fixed rate of exchange of $4.86½ per pound sterling.

In our opinion these bonds are among the most attractive of all long term Foreign Government bonds on the market to-day.

With the present great demand for long term Foreign Government issues, these bonds, yielding, as they do, about 9% to maturity, offer an unusual opportunity.

MARCH THE MONTH OF HOPE IN STEEL

RAILROAD OFFICIALS SHY

Special to The New York Times.

PITTSBURGH, Jan. 23.—Specifications against finished steel contracts are coming in at a slightly lower rate than in December, but the bookings are of fair volume considering the dullness in trade generally. The contracts are chiefly with the United States Steel Corporation, contracting by the independents last year having been on a limited scale on account of their higher prices. The latter has sufficient in hand to continue operations at substantially the present rate for about two months, while if specifications continue to come in at the present rate, and there are no more cancellations than at present, fairly dull operation will be maintained for about four months.

The independent steel mills continue to operate at about 25 per cent. of capacity, against the Steel Corporation's 92 rate. Some independent mills have been closed entirely, while others operate at rates of from 30 to 50 per cent. No definite improvement in the demand is expected to occur before the latter part of March. Capacity is about one-half greater than before the war, but no steel producers seriously predict a full rate of operation before next Fall at the earliest.

The policy of economy and retrenchment being adopted by various railroads is regretted by the steel makers, but they have many idle cars. Locomotives and cars are still very high priced. Even the steel producers feel that in general the recent declines in steel prices are not fully reflected in declines in manufactured steel products to the consumer. Even in the case of rails, contracted for freely for this year's delivery, there are delays in some cases in furnishing specifications for future rolling.

The majority of independent steel interests in the East and in the Chicago district have reduced wages of late. Independent ore companies in the Lake Superior region are reducing wages 15 per cent. The Pittsburgh and Youngstown districts are refraining from taking action, for it is universally recognized that, when the steel industry becomes really active again, it will have to be on a lower basis of cost.

S. O. Forces Prices Down.

Finished steel prices are fairly steady at the Industrial Board price schedule of March 21, 1919. The Steel Corporation has continuously adhered to the schedule, while last year the independents advanced their prices. The steadiness of prices is regarded as being due in part to the absence of inquiry. On a lot of 1,000 tons of blue annealed sheets for the Standard Oil Company for barrels, it is understood that a valley mill cut the regular price of $3.65, base, by $3 a ton. Shading in plates and some other products is reported from the Chicago district, but this simply represents a concession of part of the freight advantage the Chicago mills have as compared with the Pittsburgh price, plus freight from Pittsburgh.

On a few sales of foundry pig iron in lots of about 500 tons a price of $31.50, valley, has been made by several furnaces, representing a decline of $1.50 from the $33 figure of the beginning of the year. Bessemer and basic remain at $32 and $30, respectively. In some quarters there is a prediction that a $1 a ton reduction would be made in Lake Superior ores for the 1921 season. This would put prices back to the 1919 schedule, when Non-Bessemer was $5.50 at Lake Erie dock.

Demand for standard steel pipe and oil-country goods against contracts continues good. Most of the independents are shipping nearly to their capacity, and operations in most cases are at capacity, as it is desired to accumulate some stocks, hitherto quite depleted. The National Tube Company is operating full, and shipping as much as can be moved from day to day. The company's stocks are now pretty well down, and all that can be applied on current requirements will probably be gone by Feb. 1. The ov is clear that bular goods are going into actual consumption or needed to replenish poorly assorted stocks.

The independent pipe interest in the Chicago district recently announced a wage reduction of 15 to 20 per cent., and as the plant is being kept in regular operation it is understood that the men have accepted the reduction. Prices for all tubular goods are very well maintained. Standard steel pipe is on the 67½ discount list. Demand for seamless tubes is light, relative to capacity, though if there were no more capacity than before the war the demand might appear quite good.

Tin Plate Slightly Improved.

There is a slight increase in the tendency of tin plate consumers to enter into engagements. The improvement is regarded as sufficient to mark the pace as being forward rather than backward in the matter of returning confidence in the future of tin plate. But neither the leading interest nor the Independents look particularly for strict contract business; they are rather interested in specific orders. In the case of the Independents there is not merely new business to look for, but also releases from some of the suspension instructions received late in the old year. The leading interest seems to be indifferent whether the customer takes out a contract or gives a definite order. The old contracts, for the second half of the old year, are now well specified, the specifications being equal to operations for several weeks to come.

The canned milk trade has placed some definite tonnage. Stocks of milk are being worked off, but would move faster if retail prices were more closely adjusted to the declines that have occurred in wholesale prices. An unfortunate feature of the canned milk trade is said to be that, in the districts where the milk is packed, the sudden stoppage of packing two months ago threw so much fresh milk on the market as to depress prices. All tin plate producers seem to be unwilling to consider anything under the regular price of $7 per base box for 100-pound cokes. The cheapest tin plate held by export houses with material on their hands is being offered "as is" at about $6 per base box.

As to operations, the McKeesport Tin Plate Company, entirely idle since before Christmas, started twenty mills, or almost half the plant, last week. This makes about one-third of the Independents in operation, while the leading interest is operating slightly over 80 per cent. Taking the latter and the Independents together, about 55 per cent. of the tin plate mills are in operation.

Limited Market for Sheets.

Open market demand for sheets continues to be extremely limited, but new requirements are arising in moderate volume against old contracts. There is little contract tonnage on books, except in the case of the leading interest, and this is chiefly in contracts that were made for the last half year. There is little if any price cutting. For the present the market can be quoted at the regular prices, namely, 3.65c for blue annealed, 4.35c for black, and 5.70c for galvanized. As to operations, the general average among the independents is probably not over one-third. Last week's operations of the American Sheet and Tin Plate Company sheet mills averaged a trifle over 95 per cent. of the total, and the average for several weeks past has been close to that figure.

The trade generally seems to consider $48.00 as a quotable price on standard billets, the basis for the contention being that the Industrial Board price was $38.50 and the Steel Corporation made an advance a few months ago of $5 a ton. As a matter of fact, however, the Carnegie Steel Company denies that it has any market price at all on billets, while as to the independents their asking price is $45. On important business $45 would be shaded.

As to sheet bars, the disposition of the mills to quote $47 is so uniform and marked that it is evident the mills feel that they are maintaining only a nominal figure. Buyers seem to be a unit in refusing to consider $47, and take the position that the quotation is simply whether or not $42, the old Industrial Board price, can be shaded. There are no firm bids, however.

The Pittsburgh coal district shows a greater production than might be expected considering the poor domestic demand. Sales of Pittsburgh district steam coal at less than $2.50 are regarded as "distress" sales, the price in rare instances having been as low as $2. The ordinary going market on steam coal is considered to be $2.50. Good gas coal commands fair prices, up to $4 for the best grades of ⅝-inch.

EUROPEAN BANKING IN 1920.

Reasons for One Unfavorable English View of It.

"Throughout the continent of Europe," The London Statist remarks in its annual review, "the dominant factor in the banking situation during the past year has been the continued inflation of deposits, fed by the rising tide of notes which the Governments of the belligerent countries have not stemmed. Banking finance is in every country inextricably entangled with Government finance.

"The result has been that currency instability has reacted disastrously on international trading relations to such an extent that, while there may be a glut of certain commodities in one country and a famine of the same commodity in another, it has been found impossible to bring buyer and seller together. The would-be buyer has no assets for immediate payment, and the distrust of the future value of the currency of the buyer's State has in many cases practically destroyed the basis of international credit."

Why Greek Exchange Declined.

Dispatches from Athens, published in the London financial press, declare that the movement of foreign exchange against Greece has been the effect of speculation, arising from the idea that financial pressure may be applied to Greece by the Allies because of the return of King Constantine. A statement published by the President of the Athens Chamber of Commerce makes the flat declaration that the economic situation in Greece is satisfactory, and that no fear exists of an adverse balance of trade. He warned the public explicitly against speculating in foreign exchange on the basis of the present movement, intimating that those who did so might suffer heavy losses.

GRAIN SITUATION CONTROLS BUSINESS

LOW PRICES RESTRICT TRADE

The Remarkable Export Demand for Wheat and the Probable Reasons for It.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Jan. 23.—Business conditions throughout the West show gradual improvement, but the low prices for grains seem to preclude the possibility of a "boom" in many lines of trade for some time to come. The average farmer is not buying freely, and the course of trade depends largely on him. In some quarters the belief is expressed that, were loans to be made to Europe with the distinct understanding that they be used to purchase grain and live stock products in this country it would have a radical effect on general business, and that the price paid to the producer would be advanced.

Propaganda to bring about a downward revision of freight rates continues to be circulated in the West. The Indiana Grain Dealers' Association has adopted a resolution asking that the Interstate Commerce Commission take steps to lower freight rates. Leading wholesalers and jobbers, however, take an optimistic view of the future of business. Some reduction in unemployment is noticeable here, and, were it possible to eliminate from the list of idle workers the men in the building trades who are out of work, the general situation would probably be regarded as not unfavorable.

Grain valued around $70,000,000 was received at the country's primary distributing markets during the first three weeks in January, in addition to the large amounts of money that were released as a result of shipments from stations in the interior to non-terminal markets. This immense movement, the aggregate of the five grains being 65,000,000 bushels, has been a prime factor in causing the easier tone in money in the West, and country loans are being gradually reduced. The movement of grain has been unusually heavy for this season, the aggregate last week of 24,453,000 bushels comparing with 16,339,000 bushels last year and with a five-year average for the period of 19,571,000 bushels; thus increasing 4,882,000 bushels, or 24 per cent., as compared with the average. The movement is expected to remain comparatively active for some time to come, although the breaking up of the country roads has begun to check deliveries from the farms.

Although grain prices were on the down grade the greater part of last week, net losses were not severe. Final sales showed wheat off 5½ to 6½ cents, corn 2½ to 2⅝, and oats 1⅝ to 1⅞, as compared with the previous week. Corn and oats, however, are selling at new low prices on the crop and May wheat at the bottom was within 4 cents of the minimum figure. The heavy liquidation by speculators for the rise in wheat and corn is regarded in some quarters as nearing its end, and, with the persistent export demand for wheat in the face of the known fact that Argentina must sell its new crop at the best bid in the world's market, there is a decided disposition on the part of a number of shrewd traders to go slow on the selling side.

The world's wheat situation is in fact regarded as entirely too complex to serve as a safe basis for decision for the long pull at the present time. Calculating by the average consumption of 1909-13 less the estimated production in 1920, Belgium, Denmark, France, Holland, Norway, Portugal, Spain, Sweden, Switzerland, Germany and the United Kingdom have theoretical import requirements of 753,000,000 bushels of wheat and 287,000,000 bushels of rye; to offset which there are 728,000,000 bushels of wheat and 34,000,000 bushels of rye available in exporting countries exclusive of Russia.

This to some extent explains why the demand from the exporter is so persistent, especially in view of the financial conditions prevailing in Europe. With a shortage in the Winter wheat acreage of the United States as compared with last year, the outcome of the growing crop is being keenly watched; for, with Russia no longer able to export grain, the bulk of the European supplies must come from the United States, Canada, Argentina and Australia.

STATE LAW SOUGHT TO END STOCK FRAUD

Bill Before Legislature Also Provides for Licensing of Brokers and Dealers.

EXCHANGE LIST EXEMPTED

Detailed Information About Securities Would Be Filed in Albany to Protect Buyers.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, Jan. 23.—Brokers and dealers in stocks and bonds, whether individuals or corporations, will be compelled, after July 1, to take out a license from the Secretary of State if they are to continue to do business, under a bill introduced by Assemblyman Charles H. Betts of Wayne County.

The bill also provides for close scrutiny by the State, with certain exceptions, of securities offered to the public. Before any issue of stock or bonds of a domestic or foreign corporation is placed on the market, a statement must be filed with the Secretary of State containing detailed information of a character to enlighten investors minutely regarding the origin of the securities, the purpose for which they were issued, the number and classes of shares into which the capital stock of the corporation involved is divided and a description of voting rights, preferences, rights to dividends, profits and capital that go with the ownership of each class of shares. The statement also must contain information regarding the authorized capital stock of the concern and how much of this actually has been issued. It must be accompanied by a detailed balance sheet and profit and loss and income statement, together with a description of the nature and value of the property against which the securities are issued and how the appraisal was arrived at.

The feature of the bill that has aroused discussion at the Capitol is the exemption of stocks listed on the New York Stock Exchange from this exercise of the State's authority. Mr. Betts stated that the officers of the New York Stock Exchange exercise a sufficiently close supervision over and examine with sufficient care amply to safeguard the public, stocks and shares offered before they are listed on the Exchange. These other classes of stocks are also exempted:

Other Exempt Stocks and Bonds.

Shares of stock or bonds of public service or utility corporations, approved by the Public Service Commission or corresponding boards or officials in other States.

Shares of stock or bonds issued with the approval of an officer, board, or commission of the United States, pursuant to law.

State or National bank stock and stock of trust companies.

Shares of stock or bonds of domestic insurance companies.

Stocks or bonds of domestic savings and loan associations.

Shares of stock or bonds of a religious or membership corporation.

Shares issued as stock dividends.

Shares of stock or bonds deposited as collateral when made by a pledgee to satisfy a loan thereon.

Stock or bonds held by a public officer under judicial process.

The bill contains elaborate provisions defining the contents of statements that must be filed prior to the issuance of mining and oil stock. In such cases a most minute description of the properties involved and their earning capacity, including the volume of production per day, must be incorporated.

The road of the promoter is made more difficult under the Betts bill. Whenever a promoter or underwriter receives a consideration for his work in excess of 10 per cent. of the net amount realized for a corporation through his work, he must file with the Secretary of State in full the terms of his agreement with the corporation, or the corporation must do it for him.

Wildcat Promotion Hit.

Here is a provision of the Betts bill which will hit the promoter of wildcat securities hard:

"If shares of stock or bonds be offered to the public by promoters or underwriters, and the rate of profit, commission or bonus received or to be received by them exceeds 10 per centum of the net amount received or to be received for such shares of stock or bonds by the issuing corporation, there shall be printed on the front page of every prospectus, circular letter or other literature, and in the body of any advertisement whereby such promoters or underwriters offer such shares of stock or bonds for subscription or sale, in conspicuous type, the rate of profit, commission, or bonus received or to be received by the promoters or underwriters and the net amount received or to be received for such shares of stock or bonds by the issuing corporation."

It is also provided that the prospectus must truthfully set forth in all essential details the information filed with the Secretary of State under the act, as well as recite the fact that a statement has been filed with the Secretary of State, which is open to public inspection, and contains truthful information regarding the corporation and its securities.

The license fees are not heavy—$5 for brokers or dealers who do business in cities of the first class; $4 for those doing business in cities of the second class, and $3 for brokers and dealers in securities in smaller localities. Licenses are to be revoked by the Secretary of State where the holder has violated any provision of the Securities law; has made a material misstatement in his application for the license; has been guilty of fraudulent practices; has been convicted of a felony or of any crime involving misconduct in connection with traffic in securities; has permitted a judgment against him to remain unsatisfied for more than six months, or demonstrated his incompetence or unworthiness to conduct the business authorized through the license. If a license is revoked, it cannot be replaced for a period of one year following revocation.

Penalties under the act vary. Violation of the section affecting the prospectuses of promoters by them or by publishers who print matter which does not comply with its provisions is defined as a misdemeanor punishable by a fine of not more than $1,000 and imprisonment for not more than a year, or both. Offering stock for sale without filing a prior statement with the Secretary of State would be punishable by a fine not to exceed $10,000. Any one knowingly making a false statement of material import in the statement filed under the act with the Secretary of State would be guilty of perjury. The bill explicitly provides for cooperation between the Attorney General and the District Attorneys in the enforcement of the proposed law.

THE "COLLECT," OR FRESH WATER POND

PROBABLY no greater service was ever rendered New York than when the Manhattan Company provided the first adequate water supply for New York, and freed the growing city from dependence on the "Collect" or Fresh Water Pond. Aaron Burr and his associates had early seen that dependent on a water source, limited at best, must surely arrest the development of the city. That the Bank, organized from the surplus funds of the Manhattan Company, so soon outstripped in importance even the parent organization, shows that the founders were not men of a single idea merely, but quick to put their vision and ability at the disposal of the commercial and industrial expansion then beginning. Today, the immense resources of the Bank, at the service of modern commerce and industry, bear witness to its sound building and unbroken progress during the past 122 years.

Serving the Exporter to Canada

A Canadian bank's ability to serve the American Exporter depends upon the clearness with which it foresees the problems its clients have to confront and the thoroughness with which it organizes its facilities to assist in their solution.

Through the actual operations of the bank's own Foreign Exchange Departments in London, New York, Montreal, Toronto and Vancouver, the officers of the Union Bank of Canada are closely in touch with all the financial markets of the world. They are in a position to "keep an eye on the future" for the American Exporter.

CANADA

Present exchange rates make it possible for investors in the United States to purchase our Government and Municipal Bonds at a considerable discount. These bonds are absolutely safe and are similar to your own state and city bonds.

We have prepared a circular entitled "Canada as a field for Investment," that contains much information of value to those contemplating investment.

We would appreciate the opportunity of mailing you a copy without cost, along with a list of very attractive offerings.

Low-Priced Listed Stocks Of Speculative Merit

We have compiled data on a number of low-priced stocks, possessed of undoubted merit that have dropped in price considerably within the past year.

The present position of these stocks appears highly attractive.

Upon application to Dept. T-38 we shall be glad to forward complete literature gratis.

Security prices ceased their downward swing about the first of the year and now appear to be returning to normal quotations. Stocks and bonds of many strong corporations may be purchased at prices from which appreciation is almost inevitable. We will send a list of such securities on request

SAYS FOREIGN TRADE DEADLOCK MUST END

2,000,000 IDLE IN U. S.

Export Business Needed to Absorb Our Surplus Supplies and Restore Industry.

A statement defining the reasons for the formation of the Foreign Trade Financing Corporation was issued yesterday by John McHugh, President of the Mechanics and Metals National Bank and Chairman of the Committee on Organization. The statement was designed for distribution, in circular form, to banks, trust companies and merchants.

"The Foreign Trade Financing Corporation," it said, "is being formed to provide facilities for financing the foreign business of American producers, manufacturers and merchants through long-term credits and sound investments.

"The production of the industries of this country has overtaken and exceeds the buying power here. There is a surplus of goods over domestic requirements. The buyers' strike at home and inadequate credit facilities abroad have caused the piling up of goods in our markets and the closing of mills and factories.

"It is conservatively estimated that 2,000,000 people are out of employment in the United States. Every idle worker and every idle factory is a charge upon our resources. Unemployment means lessened buying power and business stagnation. In order to put these 2,000,000 men back to work, the deadlock that exists in connection with our foreign trade must be broken.

"For generations the business of the United States was practically self-contained. We consumed what we produced. The last six years, however, have seen a marked change. Because of the tremendous demand abroad for American goods, created by world conditions, our industries have greatly increased their capacity for production, so that our factories, farms and mines are now equipped, both in labor and machinery, to produce a great surplus of goods, products and raw materials beyond our domestic needs.

"Our exports for 1920 exceeded $8,191,000,000. Our imports were approximately $5,468,000,000. Our net trade balance for the year was approximately $2,723,000,000, even though our export trade for the year 1920 fell off approximately $1,500,000,000. Through the necessities which we supplied during this period, other nations have been kept on their feet. They still need assistance and are ready to pay for it, if means can be found to give them what they must have on credit terms that will afford them time to manufacture, distribute and realize, through these processes, the funds with which to make payment."

COMMODITY PRICES

Last week was marked by a general decline on the wholesale commodity markets. Of the eighteen staple articles in the subjoined list, ten went to lower prices, and only three advanced. There were declines in wheat, corn, oats, flour, coffee, butter, eggs, tin, lead and cotton. Pork and beef were higher, and print cloths advanced ⅛ cent per yard in connection with the signs of recovery in the textile trade.

WORLD WHEAT CROP

Agricultural Department's Estimate by Countries for 1920 Compared With Other Years.

Production of wheat in the world during 1920, according to the Agricultural Department's estimates in the department's Monthly Crop Reporter for January, increased approximately 100,000,000 bushels over 1919. The department states that the quantity of wheat actually harvested in 28 countries from which reports had been received amounted to 2,671,807,000 bushels in 1920, as against 2,571,485,000 in 1919. It adds that these 28 countries produce, according to the annual average production of the five years before the war, approximately 74 per cent. of the wheat crop of the world.

The department's estimates of individual production of wheat in the important producing countries, so far as reported, is as follows:

PENNSYLVANIA COAL OUTPUT

Nearly 245,000,000 Tons of Anthracite and Bituminous Mined in 1920.

HARRISBURG, Pa., Jan. 23.—Pennsylvania produced 87,131,000 net tons of anthracite coal, and about 157,825,600 tons of bituminous coal during 1920, according to the report for the year of Chief of Mines Seward E. Button, made public tonight. The report notes that earnings were large, some bituminous producers receiving as high as $15 a ton.

In spite of the increase in small mines, known as wagon mines, there was a decrease in the number of fatal accidents from 1,037 to 909. The Chief compliments activity of mine inspectors and the policy of many operators in improving mines, while the attention given to education of miners and welfare of their families is commended.

REPORTS 'TO PUBLIC' ON CLOTHING TIE-UP

Impartial Chairman Blames "Small Group of Employers" for Conditions Here.

THINKS SETTLEMENT EASY

Would Air All Facts and Force Resumption of Negotiations on Original Issue.

The controversy between the Clothing Manufacturers' Association of New York and the Amalgamated Clothing Workers of America was wholly unnecessary, according to Dr. W. M. Leiserson, Impartial Chairman of the Rochester clothing market, who made "a report to the public" on the New York situation yesterday. Dr Leiserson was Impartial Arbitrator here under the agreements recently terminated. Copies of the report were forwarded to Governor Miller and Mayor Hylan.

"When negotiations were broken off and war was declared the Manufacturers' Association and the union were not far apart," Dr. Leiserson said. "The basic issue was a question of fact and could easily have been settled by investigation or arbitration—not a question of principle or right which could not be compromised. The employers wanted their labor costs reduced to enable them to compete with other clothing markets. The union proposed a joint investigating committee to determine what a proper labor cost would be and to make such adjustments as might be necessary.

"Moreover, a majority of the employers as well as the union were anxious to avoid a strike or lockout."

Discusses History of Agreements.

Dr. Leiseron then discussed the history of the two agreements in the New York clothing industry, and said that at a meeting, Nov. 14, of Sidney Hillman, President of the Amalgamated; Major B. H. Gitchell for the manufacturers, and himself, "a plan was worked out by which production might be increased from 10 to 40 per cent."

"Just as this plan was about to be presented to the membership of the union and the association," he continued, "it was side-tracked by a new movement in the Market Committee of the employers' association. This movement was engineered from the outside, and only a few of the fourteen members of the Market Committee were won over to it. They, however, took advantage of some dissatisfaction with Major Gitchell to have the entire staff of labor managers who were representing the employers discharged, so they, with the assistance of an outside lawyer, could get control of the manufacturers' association and thus prevent any peaceful settlement. In this plan they succeeded completely, and on them and their lawyer, Harry A. Gordon, must rest the responsibility for having prevented a peaceful settlement of the dispute.

"Of course the manufacturers had many causes of dissatisfaction. So did the workers. But every one engaged in the negotiations knew the union alone was not responsible for these conditions. The manufacturers are equally to blame.

Calls Gordon an Agitator.

"The employment of Mr. Gordon as counsel was not sought by the Market Committee. He was imposed on the committee by a small group. He is an eloquent agitator, and seized on the irritations caused by union members and business agents to stir up discontent and class feeling. Nevertheless, the majority of the manufacturers do not approve of his methods even now.

"The union contends that the breaking off of relations by the employers constituted a breach of contract. But the Impartial Chairman is of the opinion that the manufacturers were within their legal rights. The preferential shop agreement had been renewed from day to day pending the result of the negotiations, and the closed shop agreement, although without an expiration date, could be terminated by either party on giving due notice. The employers were therefore free to refuse to renew the old agreement, and no charge of breach of faith may justly be brought against them."

"The duty of the public in a case like this seems clear. It should insist on a thorough airing of the facts and the expulsion from the situation of the agitators, the lawyer and the group who brought on the strike. It should see to it that the negotiations are resumed on the basis of the original issue of decreasing labor costs. This can easily be brought about if the authorities and the newspapers will bring the pressure of public opinion to bear on both parties.

"Without such pressure the employers who were unwillingly led into the conflict cannot be expected to oust the small group who are misleading them. Once the facts are brought to light, however, then the employers will get rid of the agitators, settle their dispute peacefully and relieve the community of disorder and violence and the consumers of clothing of the burden of a costly and unnecessary strike."

TO RESIST CUT IN WAGES.

Women Garment Workers' Union Votes to Support Locals in Fight.

BOSTON, Jan. 23.—Full support to local unions in resisting wage cuts was voted tonight by the General Executive Board of the International Ladies' Garment Workers' Union.

"The cost of living increased 11¼ per cent. between Jan. 1, 1920, when we signed the present working agreement and wage scale, and Aug. 23, 1920," said President B. Schlesinger.

"It is said that the cost of living has been reduced since the latter date, but it has been less than 10 per cent., which would leave the workers in about the same position as when the wage schedule was signed. When the cost of living drops to such an extent that we believe a cut in wages is justified I will be willing to sit in conference with the employers."

Hard Times in Sweden.

Letters from Stockholm published at the end of the year in English financial newspapers state that the year ends in Sweden with severe depression in trade and industry; that, owing to lack of orders, many business enterprises are closing down and dismissing their staffs; that the number of unemployed is accordingly much increased; that ship owners are laying up their vessels for lack of profitable orders, and that old-time business men declare that the present conditions are the worst that they have ever seen.

CLOTHING PROFITS SHRINK.

Hart Schaffner & Marx Cut Surplus to Meet Drop.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Jan. 23.—Some idea of the troubles of the clothing manufacturing industry last year is obtained from the annual report of Hart Schaffner & Marx. In spite of large sales, those for the first six months alone exceeding those of the entire previous year, net profits showed a shrinkage. Inventories at the close of the fiscal year, Nov. 30, were carried at about half the value shown a year before. Accounts receivable were about double. Liberty bonds were converted into cash.

The statement shows net income, after payment of preferred dividends, was equivalent to 11.87 per cent. on the $15,000,000 common stock, compared with 13.11 per cent. in 1919. The company wrote down its good will, &c., item from $15,000,000, which in the preceding year represented about half of the total assets, to $10,000,000, which now represents a little over one-third of assets. In this operation $1,686,000 previously accumulated in the preferred stock redemption fund was utilized and surplus was reduced from $4,085,168 to $1,952,244.

LISBON STRIKE CONTINUES.

Writers Make Common Cause With Publishers Against Printers.

LISBON, Jan. 23.—The strike of the printers has not yet been settled, and no newspapers are being issued except the joint journal put out by the newspaper proprietors and the paper printed by the strikers. The former organ today prints the names of nearly one hundred of the chief journalists of Lisbon, who offered their services to it, and deny that they have joined the strike, as alleged by the strikers, who include all technical classes engaged in newspaper work and also minor journalists.

The editors of the newspapers say that it will be impossible for them to meet the demands of the strikers, as the prices of paper and ink and salaries have risen to a point which has produced deficits in nearly all publishing enterprises.

EXCESS OF GOLD IMPORTS.

They Were Five Times as Great as Exports in First 10 Days of January.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 23.—Imports of gold during the first ten days of January were nearly five times as great as exports, according to a statement issued tonight by the Federal Reserve Board. Exports of silver were estimated as having been more than twice as large as imports.

Out of a total of $5,898,584 worth of gold imported in the first ten days of the year, more than $4,000,000 came from Great Britain, while the heaviest exports were to Mexico, amounting to more than $968,000. Hongkong, with more than $1,820,000, received the greatest amount of silver from this country during the period, while the heaviest imports were $576,000 from Mexico.

SENATE JAM LIKELY TO HOLD UP TARIFF

FOR DELAY ON BRITISH LOAN

Members of House Committee Favor Permanent Tariff Before Agreement on Readjustment.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 23.—With thirty-four more legislative days of this session of Congress remaining, a situation has developed in the Senate which is favorable to the announced plans of those opposed to the Fordney emergency tariff to defeat it in the congestion that will begin to show itself in the next few weeks when the twelve remaining appropriation bills come up.

Some Senate leaders are of the opinion that no general legislation will be disposed of in the remainder of the session which, they say, will be devoted entirely to talk and to the passing of the appropriation bills. This means that the tariff bill will not be allowed to come to a vote, although it is now admitted that if a vote is taken it will command sufficient support to effect its passage, but with amendments.

Even if the Senate should act on a bill loaded down with objectionable amendments it is doubtful whether the House would accept the amendments. That would force it into a conference of the two bodies, where its opponents would have another opportunity to crush it through delay.

Before Great Britain and the United States agree upon the plan for repayment of the loan and adjustment of the interest, payment of which has ceased for a number of years, the House Ways and Means Committee will report, according to a plan of the members, a permanent tariff bill, which will naturally have some bearing upon the loan and this country's financial relations with other countries.

Some Fear Retaliation.

Already the fear has been expressed by those appearing before the Ways and Means Committee that our nearest neighbor, Canada, will adopt some retaliatory measure against a high tariff that will work harm to American trade. One witness last week, representing a Minnesota lumber firm, declared in favor of a continuance of the present schedule on lumber, and expressed the fear that Canada would place a prohibitive export duty on wood pulp as one way to retaliate against a tariff detrimental to freedom of trade with the United States.

Such is not the view of Representative Henry W. Watson of Pennsylvania, a member of the Ways and Means Committee. He favors a high tariff, and, if necessary, the cancellation of the foreign loans rather than a continuance of a policy which would permit debtor countries to pay their debts by trade.

"With a national debt of $24,098,000,000, including $9,580,000,000 lent to our allies during the war, but not including $4,226,000,000 advances extended to them since the armistice, presents an economical question that emphasizes the necessity of high tariffs," said Mr. Watson. "The cancellation of the United States loans to European governments by maintaining a protective duty would be a wiser financial plan than to invite the payment of them by a free trade policy.

"The old spirit of Americanism is passing into history. We are drifting toward another form of patriotism, which needs close analysis. The almost criminal desire for wealth, the great influx of foreigners who do not know our language, our history, or understand our Constitution tends to destroy the passions that quicken the love for liberty and country so strongly manifested in the hearts of our early settlers.

"There is a fanatic desire among some of our citizens to increase our staggering indebtedness by appropriations to aid Europe to rebuild and reconstruct its industries. While we cannot be deaf to the appeal of starving Europe, yet we must regard jealously our own affairs, that despair and want may not dishearten our people. It is for the Congress to protect the American people from ruinous taxation, oppose further European loans, that our credit may be maintained at home and abroad."

FRANC VALUE GOING UP.

Copyright, 1921, by The Chicago Tribune Co.

PARIS, Jan. 23.—The increasing value of the franc and the depreciation of the dollar are expected to drive home many Americans who have been living in Paris on a small income and enabled to enjoy life through the exchange rates which have been hovering around seventeen francs to the dollar ratio.

The dollar closed yesterday, however, at 14 francs and 15 centimes—more than 2⅔ francs lower than a month ago, and financial wizards predict continued depreciation.

One of the reasons for the decline of the dollar and the rise of the franc is the decision of several big American concerns to do business on the basis of 10 to 12 francs to the dollar, regardless of Bourse quotations, and thus stabilize trading to some extent. Similarly French business is being done in England on a basis of from 35 to 40 francs to the pound.

Leading French experts, however, declare that the rising value of the franc has no true foundation, explaining that the factors which caused the franc's depreciation remain unaltered and will be so until the reparations matter has been definitely settled.

It is reported in some quarters that whenever the franc drops to 17 francs to the dollar, the French Government dumps enough American currency upon the Bourse to drive exchange down.

DEFENDS CAPITALISM AGAINST SOCIALISM

Prof. Seligman of Columbia Says Many Benefits Are Due to Accumulation of Wealth.

HURTS LABOR, HE IS TOLD

Socialism Would End Overproduction, the Cause of Evils, Asserts Nearing—Both Applauded.

Professor Edwin R. A. Seligman of Columbia University defended capitalism in a debate with Professor Scott Nearing in the Lexington Avenue Opera House yesterday afternoon on the subject:

"Resolved: That capitalism has more to offer to the workers of the United States than has Socialism."

The audience, which crowded the theatre, was generous in its applause of both speakers.

Professor Seligman pointed out that since capitalism is progressive, it is reforming its excesses, of which he acknowledged that there were many. He held that it is more practicable to alter the present system to meet changing demands than to accept the visionary ideals of Socialism, which, he said, are the fabric of the imagination and have brought woe to the workers of Russia. He insisted that many of the benefits enjoyed by every citizen of this country today have been achieved through the accumulation of capital.

Professor Nearing argued that capitalism has resulted in intermittent starvation and slavery of the worker and recurring wars, and charged that these evils are the inevitable result of overproduction, upon which capitalism is based and which Socialism would end.

Professor Seligman concluded his defense of capitalism with suggestions for reforms in the present economic system, among which were: Diminution by insurance of the losses through unemployment, conservation of national resources from waste, seizure for the community of unduly swollen fortunes, though not to the point of stifling industry, and raising the level of education.

$420,000 North Hempstead Bonds.

Harris, Forbes & Co. and Redmond & Co. are offering a $420,000 issue of Town of North Hempstead (N. Y., Great Neck) School District 5½ per cent. bonds, due Feb. 1, 1932 to 1953, at prices to yield 4.90 per cent. and 5 per cent. The bonds are tax exempt in New York State and are legal investments for savings banks and trust funds in the State.

The Process of Deflation.

The year 1920, remarks a Swiss banking bulletin, will not leave pleasant recollections. It has shown that readjustment to after-war conditions is likely to be achieved slowly and with a good deal of hardship. The economic heritage of the great war is decidedly a heavy load for a single generation.

SPRING BUILDING TO START 35% NORMAL

CEMENT CUT EXPECTED

Estimates made by The Dow Service Daily Building Reports for the territory roughly covered by the metropolitan district of New York indicate a 35 per cent. of normal building construction movement this Spring.

Normal, for the basis of this computation, is taken as of 1912, when the number of new building projects and alterations to old structures totalled 30,132 separate operations, valued at $290,395,489, for Greater New York. For the metropolitan district, including the eastern part of New Jersey, Westchester County and the southern section of Long Island, the total number of building projects, both new and alteration, including the five boroughs of New York, was 40,176 valued at $290,-319,398.

Building material distributers supplying this territory, covering practically a twenty-five mile radius from New York, say that the available stocks that they have on hand and on current order will be sufficient to approximately meet this demand. Inventories recently completed, indicate that existing stocks will not suffice for forward building requirement beyond May or June, at which time it is estimated that the building movement will have attained a rate of about 50 to 60 per cent. of normal.

Replenishment orders now being placed do not appear to contemplate excessive demand until about August, when the market, it is thought, will awaken to the fact that the building material and equipment supplies, due to curtailed building material production now, will be in relatively the same position that they were in at the turn of the half-year of 1920, namely, far behind deliveries.

Car shortages and fuel manipulation contributed last year to accentuate the builders' difficulties. There is nothing of the sort now visible upon the economic horizon to embarrass building material production and delivery, excepting the contributing factors of labor supply and efficiency, credit and readjustment of production and distribution practices resulting from an era of probe and investigation, which might be expected to retard the financing of new and old building material manufacturing and distributing enterprises.

Offsetting these factors, however, is the growing demand for housing and similar construction, which, in the light of what now appears to be something like an overproduction of commercial space in New York City, at least, promises to have practically a right of way to material supply, at any rate, for the first part of the year, or until it has been demonstrated to investment capital, that the commercial space that will be offered for rent this Spring can be adequately absorbed.

With this view generally accepted by the retail building material trade, the market is now passing through the last stage of price cutting, with manufacturers and dealers co-operating to bring the price of basic building materials within the reach of the consumer who will start the first Spring operations.

In the lime department, for example, which has been one of the most rigid of all the building materials during the last six months of price adjustment, the manufacturers and dealers made substantial reductions. In barreled products, such as finishing and common lime, the 40-cent cut effective this week represents a 30-cent reduction by the manufacturer and a 10-cent cut by most dealers. In hydrated lime, both common and finishing, the manufacturer has taken off a dollar a ton and so has the dealer for an equal amount, making a $2 cut to the consumer.

Owing to a cut in the spruce market the first item to be affected in this selling district is wood lath, which dropped $2 a thousand, from $14 to $12.

The recent cut in the price of cement has been misunderstood in the building construction field. Mill base on Portland cement is now $2.30 a barrel, without bag rebate. Rumors have been current in the trade that a manufacturers' price cut, in addition to the recent one, would occur before the first of the year.

The dealers, however, being hungry for business, announced a drop on Jan. 8 of 30 cents. This cut had no relation to the manufacturers' price. The cut on manufacturers' price, probably reflecting the lowering of cost of coal at the mills, in large measure, is still generally expected by contractors who are, in many cases, deferring their purchases until an announcement one way or the other is made by the mills. The expected 30-cent drop would bring the mills base down to $2, to which, of course, carrying, handling, package charges and dealers' profit have to be added for delivered price.

The cost of yellow pine housing lumber is now down to within 10 per cent. of pre-war levels in the wholesale market, and in the retail markets the dealers have shrunk their prices to a proportionate degree, so that the stocks of housing lumber at distributing points have been considerably reduced.

One large Long Island building investor has recently purchased his entire requirement of lumber for a vast apartment house project, although he has not yet decided about proceeding with the enterprise. He is buying other building commodities at present levels, although actual building work is not definite as to time of starting.

Counterparting this policy is the decision arrived at last week by one of the largest distributers of building lumber in this market; with vast yards in Hoboken, to go into the wholesale market immediately for his year's housing lumber requirements, trusting to large orders to break the wholesale market's hesitancy to take business far into the future.

Roofers at mill centres have just advanced $1 a thousand and ocean-ship freight rates have been advanced $1 in anticipation of the rush for freight space as this buying movement gets under way.

Fifty-five per cent. of the lumber mills are still closed. There is still some doubt as to the movement of heavy timber, but there is a general belief that this, too, is nearing its bottom level.

THRIFT CAMPAIGN TO GO ON.

W. F. Morgan Says Effort Will Continue Through 1921—Defines Thrift

Although National Thrift Week wound up yesterday with "Share with Others Day," the National Committee, of which Adolph Lewisohn is Chairman, and the City Committee, of which William Fellowes Morgan is Chairman, announced that the movement was to be continued throughout the year, although not on the scale of last week's drive. Mr. Morgan issued a statement, saying:

"Thrift does not mean saving money simply to hoard it, but, on the contrary, it means earning, spending and saving in time, money and effort. A nation or city cannot be normal unless it is thrifty. Surely every sensible man and woman and likewise every organization or business concern should honestly strive to bring about normal conditions. The sooner this is accomplished the better it will be for all."

PRICES PRINTED ON TICKETS.

Pennsylvania Adopts Policy to Protect Passengers and Agents.

The Pennsylvania Railroad announced yesterday that as a protection to both passengers and ticket agents, prices would be printed on the faces of all its tickets. The new tickets would be issued immediately, but all old ones in stock would be used before the new were sold. Interline passage, for which the new tickets were said to be impractical, were the only exceptions to the policy.

ASK INDEPENDENT ART HALL

Artists Who Dislike Usual Exhibits Will Appeal to Legislature.

The Society of Independent Artists, founded five years ago to advance the principles of "no prizes, no juries and alphabetical hanging of pictures," announced yesterday through its President, John Sloan, that it would send "a lobby" to Albany to induce the Legislature to enact a measure providing for a Hall of Independent Art.

Mr. Sloan said that the delegation would be composed of directors of the society, among them Theodore Butler, A. L. Frueh, A. S. Baylinson and Trygve Hammer, and that they would offer a bill "authorizing the construction in this city of a building large enough and appropriately designed to exhibit each year the works of those who do not believe in juries and prizes at exhibitions."

SHRAPNEL AND GAS NEAR BROOKLYN FIRE

FIREMEN WIN HARD BATTLE

Gas Pumped Out of Danger and Compressed Air Let Out of Torpedoes.

South Brooklyn had an hour of shivery thrills late yesterday afternoon when fire in the Kings County Lighting Company's works threatened to explode a tank containing 200,000 cubic feet of gas and crept close to the E. W. Bliss Company plant adjoining, where lay eighty naval test torpedoes loaded with shrapnel.

The alarm of the neighborhood, well aware of its danger, was increased when the flames stabbed through a dense, black blanket of smoke and thrust themselves seventy-five feet up into the air. For a time, while hundreds fled, some dragging their household goods with them, it looked as if the whole industrial neighborhood, including the Morse Dry Dock and Repair Company's great base to the south, would be destroyed.

Fast, brave fire-fighting by the emergency crews of the Bliss plants and the gas works, supplemented by city apparatus responding to two alarms, confined the flames within the area in which they started. They were extinguished with little loss and no interruption to service.

The police were as quick as the Fire Department to see the potential danger of the blaze, and an unusual number of high officials made fast trips to the water front, where they directed the work of reserves who facilitated the exodus of those who fled and calmed all tendencies to panic.

Long before walls of water had been thrust between the fire and the most dangerous avenues along which it could spread, great rotary pumps had drawn off the 200,555 cubic feet of gas from the tank to which it goes directly from the generating plant. Within a few minutes the steel shell was empty, and the gas was stored safely in the scattered small containers in the holder station at Ninth Avenue and Sixty-fifth Street.

Working at the same break-neck speed as the gas men, the special police force at the Bliss plant let off the compressed air with which the torpedoes were charged and then carted them away beyond the reach of the intense heat.

The plant lies at the water's edge on First Avenue, between Fifty-fourth and Fifty-fifth Streets. A big new storage tank is being constructed, and scattered near it in the yard were a large number of scuppers—iron tanks used to catch the coal tar residue when the gas is distilled. These tanks are heavily coated with tar and oil, and it was among them the fire started from undetermined cause.

Patrick J. Harkins, a former police inspector, in charge of the private guard and fire fighters at the Bliss plant, discovered the blaze. He turned in an alarm, mobilized his own fire department, sent word to Superintendent C. B. Ohnermiller of the gas company, and dispatched members of his reserve to warn dwellers in the vicinity.

Mr. Ohnermiller called out his fire fighters and telephoned the engineer to pump away the gas from the endangered tank. By the time Acting Battalion Chief Cashman arrived, night had come suddenly over the district, a smothering black pall making the work of attacking the flames difficult.

Cashman's men soon were reinforced by those drawn by a second alarm. Deputy Chief O'Hara came with the second contingent and took charge. Satisfied that the Bliss employes were doing their utmost to prevent the exploding of the torpedoes, he turned his attention to quenching the fire, meanwhile interposing a curtain of water between the flames and the gas tank.

It took many minutes to empty the torpedoes of their compressed air. There was no explosive in them, but it was feared if the fire spread the heat would expand the air charge sufficiently to set off the missiles and rain shrapnel all over the district. Even after the compression had been relieved it was thought best to move them beyond possible heat.

Chief Inspector William J. Lahey, Borough Inspector Thomas J. Murphy and Inspector Byron R. Sackett directed the police work. The police estimated the damage, confined largely to the scuppers, at about $5,000. It took about an hour to put out the fire.

BLACK CAT CHEERS MEN ADRIFT ON BARGE AT SEA

Craft Is Picked Up Off Sable Island and Towed to Portland by Coast Guard Cutter.

PORTLAND, Me., Jan. 23.—Tom, a black cat, was the third member of the crew and brought good luck to the barge Waccamaw, which was towed into this port today by the Coast Guard Cutter Ossipee. Captain Harry Landers and James Coleman, both of Boston, were the others. Tom did not lose his nerve when the craft broke adrift from the tug Lehigh ten miles off Cape Elizabeth last Monday morning, and showed little concern when the Ossipee picked up the barge 110 miles off Sable Island last night.

Perhaps Tom, who has sailed along the coast with Captain Landers for two years, really had nothing to do with it, but his complacent attitude as he stalked with dignified mien along the dock tonight and began sniffing for wharf rats registered complete conviction that he was responsible for the saving of the barge and for the absence of suffering on board during a drift of 750 miles.

The only mishap was the snapping of the mast in a gale on Tuesday morning, resulting in the smashing of the deckhouse and damage to the cook stove and the donkey engine boiler.

GOT THEIR SHOES CHEAP.

Then Violetsville Folk Found They Were Wearing Stolen Goods.

Special to The New York Times.

YORK, Pa., Jan. 23.—Violetsville folk were convinced this morning that the price of shoes had dropped a great deal when they were able to purchase new shoes at anywhere from 75 cents to $2.25 a pair—and they bought them. Not only did practically every man in and around Violetsville buy shoes, but some of them bought several pairs. One bought ten pairs, paying $7 for the lot.

Almost every man in and about Violetsville was wearing new shoes today. They are worrying tonight, for they have discovered that the shoes were stolen and the York police are now trying to recover them. They had recovered nearly fifty pairs tonight and also bundles of stockings, workingmen's shirts and underwear.

Violetsville is a village just south of the York city limits and here, on the new State road, about 9 o'clock this morning a motor truck with four men and a load of shoes and clothing stopped and here the bright Sunday morning was enlivened by a street auction. A crowd soon gathered and the strangers had no difficulty in finding bidders and buyers, as any price was taken.

Here's a picture of No. 1—the Watchman of the Coal Pile. Put him to work today. If your heating contractor cannot supply you send $2.15 to us for one sample valve and test it out. Write to our Waterbury office.

Hoffman Valves mean a warm home and big coal saving

Little tots coughing, sneezing, shivering in chilly rooms; Mother distracted by floors and ceilings ruined by leaking radiators; by noisy banging radiators; Father puzzled and worried by the figures on his coal bills—these are the symptoms of a steam heating system afflicted with inefficient venting valves.

Hoffman Valves should be prescribed.

Make this test

Put a Hoffman No. 1 on the worst radiator in the coldest room at home. Immediately that room becomes warm, cozy, livable. No longer the radiator pounds and bangs. No longer does it drip water or leak steam. It's out of the trouble-making class.

Convince yourself by this one room test—then Hoffman-equip all your radiators and watch your comfort increase as your coal bills decrease. For big coal bills are caused by the forced draft and consequent coal wastage required in an attempt to drive heat into poorly vented, air-clogged pipes and radiators. It can't be done for steam and air cannot occupy the same space in the radiator at the same time.

The Hoffman No. 1 is silent, efficient, automatic. Rigidly tested, perfectly adjusted, it comes to you sealed against tampering. Each valve is guaranteed in writing to give five years of perfect service—no "ifs," no "buts." The maker allows himself a wide margin of safety which means each valve will give you many more than five years of perfect satisfaction.

PREMIERS DELAY INDEMNITY ISSUE IN ALLIED COUNCIL

DISARMAMENT IS DEBATED

Germany May Get Time Extension Till May 1 to Disarm and Disband Civic Guards.

AUSTRIA'S CASE UP TODAY

Problem of Helping Collapsing Country to Regain Her Feet Recognized as Urgent One.

By EDWIN L. JAMES.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Jan. 24.—The Interallied Conference began today with the usual speed of interallied conferences, which is to say it started slowly.

Disarmament being the first subject on the agenda, Marshal Foch, Field Marshal Sir Henry Wilson, General Nollet, General Bingham and other military and naval experts were heard as to matters in which Germany had failed to live up to the promises she made. Foch pointed out that the most grievous omission was failure to disarm and disband the civic guards in Bavaria and East Prussia.

In the discussion of just how many more men Germany had under arms than she should differences of opinion arose between General Nollet of the French Army and General Bingham of the British Army. Experts' reports were read at the morning session.

At the afternoon session there was further discussion of the disarmament problem and experts under Foch's direction were asked to present a definite report on Germany's failures to fulfill her engagements.

This is according to official information. What was really tentatively decided was that Germany should be notified officially that she had failed to do certain things with regard to disarmament, and would receive further delay in which to complete the task. This delay will in all probability be fixed to expire May 1. Under the Spa agreement Germany was to have done by June 1 all the things she is now summoned to do by May 1. Incidentally the allied missions of control which ordinarily should quit Germany this month will be kept there six months longer.

The real news of the day comes out through an announcement that helping Austria will be discussed tomorrow instead of reparations, which stood as the second subject on the agenda. The reason for this is that a wide divergence of views has developed between Premiers Briand and Lloyd George on reparations, and they wish to smooth it out before going into open consideration.

This trouble is the old one about fixing by May 1 the total sum Germany owes. The French wish to notify Germany May 1 of the total damage she did, which figure at the latest calculations the French place at about 400,000,000,000 gold marks, or $100,000,000,000. The French admit Germany cannot pay this in thirty years, but they say that every so often the Allies can decide the maximum Germany can pay, and that will be what she must pay for a certain period. Thus the harder Germany worked the more the Allies would get.

England holds the view that Germany should be notified of the total she must pay, not the total she morally owes, and that she should be told to pay it on a certain schedule and be entitled to pay it faster if able.

This difference arises from a divergence in the fundamental conception of Germany's position. England sees Germany in the light of a bankrupt who owes more than he can pay, but who is entitled to be given an opportunity to settle on a basis on which the creditors can agree. France regards Germany as a criminal who should be sentenced to thirty years' hard labor to repair the damage of his crime. It is to compromise these two points of view that Briand and Lloyd George will hold their private conferences.

The best prediction is that Germany will be notified on or before May 1 the total of what she has to pay to the Allies in settlement of the reparation account. In return England will help France in some plan to raise money in the near future on prospect of ultimate payment by Germany.

PARIS, Jan. 24 (Associated Press).—The allied Premiers are said to be considering whether it is feasible and advisable to have the German representative sit with the Council before the final decision on reparations is taken. The British delegation is believed to favor inviting the Germans to take part in the discussion after the Allies come to an understanding among themselves.

Pending a decision on this question Herr Bergmann, the German delegate, it is expected, will confer with Louis Loucheur, the French Minister of Liberated Regions, and it is reported he will make an official offer to pay 2,000,000,000 marks in gold within a year, one-fourth of that amount in cash.

The eventuality of a German being invited to sit with the Council depends partly upon Herr Bergmann's reply to M. Loucheur, who will ask him if Germany has any proposition to make before the Allies decide finally on what course they shall pursue to enforce execution of the treaty.

The Premiers are understood to be greatly alarmed at the situation of Austria, and will endeavor to find some way for the continued existence of that country.

Standard Oil Cuts Gasoline 2 Cents a Gallon in the West

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Jan. 24.—Reductions in the price of gasoline and kerosene, the first here since the war, were announced today by the Standard Oil Company of Indiana, as a result of further breaks in the price of crude oil. Gasoline which has been selling in service stations for 29 cents a gallon will be sold tomorrow for 27 cents, while the tank wagon price of 27 cents has been cut to 25 cents. Kerosene is cut from 18½ to 15½ cents a gallon.

The reduction in crude oil affected the midcontinent and Southwest fields. Stated generally, the reduction averages a drop to $3 a barrel from the prevailing rate of $3.50.

FIVE YOUNG BANDITS HOLDUP 2 TROLLEYS

$2,000 in Money and Gems Lost by Crews and Passengers Near Summit, N. J.

MOTORMAN TRIES TO FLEE

But Halts Car With Pistol at His Head — Band Believed to Have Escaped in Auto.

Five young men brandishing pistols shortly after 9 o'clock last night held up the passengers and crews of two trolley cars of the Morris County Traction Company about a mile and a half from Summit, N. J., and after relieving their victims of money and jewelry escaped into a nearby wood. The holdups took place at a switch on Springfield Avenue. One man, who offered resistance, was struck upon the head with a pistol and knocked unconscious. There were twenty-five passengers in the first car and fifteen in the other.

The bandits stopped a car which had left Summit fifteen minutes before for Springfield. Two of them stood in the centre of the track with lighted matches in their hands, and when the motorman halted his car three others jumped from behind trees with drawn pistols, boarded the car and ordered the conductor to throw up his hands.

The car was crowded and when the passengers saw the conductor's hands go up they realized that they were in for a holdup of the kind experienced by passengers on another car of the road less than two weeks ago.

The leader, holding his pistol at the conductor's head, turned to the other four and said: "Now, you fellows get busy and take all that they have quickly."

Just then the motorman started the car, but one of the bandits shouted: "Turn off that controller or I'll blow your brains out."

Motorman Obeys Command.

The motorman threw off the power and the bandit stood guard over him while the other three went down the aisle with their hats in one hand and pistols in the other, ordering the passengers to drop their money and valuables into the hats.

One woman attempted to frustrate the robbers by pretending that she could not find her purse, but the leader turned to her and said: "We'll stand here for an hour until you get your money and jewelry into that hat, so you might as well give it over right away."

When the three bandits who collected the loot reported to the leader that the money and jewels of all of the passengers had been placed in the hats, he said: "Well, I'll make sure of that. I'll search them myself."

Then he searched the passengers, after which he obtained a watch and chain and a few coins from the motorman and the day's receipts from the conductor, with a gold ring which he took from the man's finger and a cheap watch and chain.

Three of the bandits hurried out of the rear entrance and, running to the front, with their pistols trained on the motorman, ordered him to "Beat it, and don't stop till you get to Springfield, or we'll fill you full of holes from our automobile."

The motorman did not see a machine in the vicinity, but he said later that he decided to take their word for it, and continued on to Springfield at top speed.

About fifteen minutes later another car, almost equally crowded, approached from the direction of Springfield, bound for Summit. The motorman was halted in the same manner as the first, and

Montreal Syndicate Offers to Pay $700,000 In Dempsey-Carpentier Championship Bout

Special to The New York Times.

MONTREAL, Quebec, Jan. 24.—A definite move to bring the Dempsey-Carpentier fight to Montreal was announced this morning when C. F. Graham, President of the Eastern Canada Securities, Ltd., said that both he and Frank O. Goodspeed, Vice President of the same company, were negotiating with Tex Rickard.

Mr. Graham said that a meeting was held at the Windsor Hotel the latter part of last week at which it was decided that if those present pushed matters sufficiently the world's heavyweight championship bout would be staged here. An amount exceeding what it was said Tex Rickard wanted to bring the two fighters to this city—$700,000—was voted.

Today a representative went to New York to see Rickard in the interests of the two promoters. When he returns on Wednesday a syndicate will be formed if the New York interests are agreeable to the terms offered. This syndicate will then start seriously to work.

Mr. Graham, President of the Eastern Canada Securities, is a former Toronto man, but has been head of the company since it began here two years ago. He has always been an enthusiastic fight fan and heard with pleasure that Rickard wanted to have the static battle here. He quickly arranged for the meeting at the Windsor at which the delegate, whose name is kept secret so far, was appointed to interview Rickard.

Frank O. Goodspeed came to Montreal from Wilton, Me. He is a fight enthusiast also. Besides being Vice President of the Eastern Canada Securities, Ltd., he is owner of the large woolen mills in his home town.

George Kennedy, owner of the Canadian Hockey Club and all-around boxing and wrestling promoter, also went to New York today, presumably to interview Rickard and Jack Curley in connection with the fight. Whether he is the emissary of the Securities Company cannot be said. Graham and Goodspeed, it was stated, had approached Jimmie McKimmin, a local matchmaker, to act as their go-between with Tex Rickard, but he refused owing to pressure of business.

Tex Rickard announced last night that he expected to hold a conference some time today with the representative of the Canadian bankers who are anxious to bring the Dempsey-Carpentier bout to Montreal. Rickard said that he had been informed a representative was on his way from Montreal. The promoter knew nothing more in regard to this latest bid for the championship bout.

Bethlehem Steel Head Says the $260,000 Was Charged to Profit and Loss.

APPROVED VOUCHER HIMSELF

Says Ship Board Auditors Saw Books Before U. S. Was Asked to Pay Anything.

MORSE TELLS ABOUT AUDIT

Eugene G. Grace, President of the Bethlehem Steel Corporation, admitted last night that that concern had paid $260,543 to Charles M. Schwab for his personal expenses, but denied flatly that the corporation had been reimbursed by the Government.

Mr. Grace vigorously defended his chief at last night's session of the Congressional Committee on Shipping Board Operations. The testimony he gave at the Hotel Pennsylvania directly contradicted that of Colonel Eugene H. Abadie, formerly General Controller of the Shipping Board. Colonel Abadie swore that the audit by Perley Morse & Co., disclosed a voucher for $260,543 for Mr. Schwab's personal expenses, of which sum $100,000 was alleged to have been charged by the Bethlehem corporation to the Government under the guise of "cost of ship construction."

Mr. Schwab himself, Chairman of the Bethlehem Corporation, already had denied the whole allegation, but had left its detailed exposition to Mr. Grace, who was more familiar with the routine.

President Grace in his testimony explained that it was the general practice of the company, while its Chairman reluctantly was occupying a "dollar a year" post with the Government, to pay his expenses and those of his organization. Mr. Schwab had testified that he never got a penny from the Government while he was serving it—not even his $1 annual, salary—and Mr. Grace further made it plain that while the corporation took care of Mr. Schwab's expenses it made no attempt to pass on the burden to the Government. To begin with, he said, the corporation in handling its administrative and general accounts while it was building vessels for the Emergency Fleet Corporation did not charge general expenses in the first instance against the construction of Government ships.

Books Submitted to Government.

In handling the administrative and general accounts of the Bethlehem Shipbuilding Corporation, he asserted, the corporation placed in the hands of the Emergency Fleet auditors the company's books containing all overhead and general accounts.

"They would select particular items, properly chargeable to the Emergency Fleet Corporation," explained Mr. Grace, "and then they would notify us of these items. We then would charge them to Emergency Fleet Corporation work. Those that were not properly chargeable to the Emergency Fleet Corporation were disallowed by the auditors of the Emergency Fleet Corporation, and they were not billed against the Government."

From the testimony of Mr. Grace it appeared that the mystery concerning Mr. Schwab's expense account, which is now shown to have been paid by the Bethlehem Shipbuilding Corporation, grew out of the misunderstanding of the term "disallowed." Perley Morse, head of the firm of certified public accountants, testified that his accountant, who discovered the voucher, had been informed by an official of the Bethlehem Shipbuilding Corporation that the item of $100,000 was disallowed, although the accountant, Irving M. Kutner, who was called just before Mr. Grace, said he did not recall whether he was informed that the item was disallowed by the auditors of the Emergency Fleet Corporation.

At the time that he was Director General of the Emergency Fleet Corporation, Mr. Schwab had nothing to do with the contracts let by the Shipping Board to the Bethlehem Shipbuilding

One man was blown to bits and three others were hurt, two of them severely, in an explosion yesterday afternoon in the plant of the Columbia Smelting and Refining Company, 365 West Street, when a laborer chopped into a piece of loaded lead pipe.

While detectives of the precinct, the homicide squad and the bomb squad worked on the case, the police made it a mystery. Whether the explosion was believed to be the result of a plot against the plant or the accidental result of a bomb having been sold to it along with other junk to be reclaimed, could not be learned in face of the secrecy with which the authorities acted.

The usual slip, whereby Police Headquarters makes public the bare outline of a crime or disaster of any sort as soon as it is reported, was not issued. The explosion occurred at 1:25. Patrolman Bartels made a formal record in the Charles Street station fifty-five minutes later. Under the ordinary rules of procedure the police slip should have followed immediately. At midnight the slip had not been discovered by those whose duty it is to keep track of them.

The man who lost his life was Luscui Carada, 42, a laborer living at 92 Clinton Street, Hoboken, N. J. Carada, who leaves a wife and several children, saw four years' service with the Italian Army and came to this country only a few months ago.

The injured were John Supanski, 32, of 85 Gold Street, a foreman, and Klad Potosky of 31 Havemeyer Street, Brooklyn, both of whom are in St. Vincent's Hospital, and a third man whose hurts were slight.

The members of the Columbia firm are Siegfried, August and Morris Solomon. Nothing could be learned from them last night, but this much about the explosion is known:

It was Carada's duty to cut lengths of lead pipe into smaller pieces for smelting. He was chopping up a pile believed to have been bought about a year ago when his axe struck some high explosive. Carada's head was blown from his shoulders, and he was otherwise badly mutilated. The axe was buried in the ceiling and the window glass in the room was shattered. There was no fire and no alarm was sent in.

Dr. John R. Norris ordered Carada's body removed to the Morgue, where an autopsy will be held today.

SENATE PASSES BILL TO CHECK PACKERS

Southern-Western Combination Puts It Through, 46 to 33, Against Leaders.

SIZE OF VOTE A SURPRISE

Efforts Will Be Made to Expedite It in the House, but a Fight Is Predicted.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 24.—The bill creating the Federal Livestock Commission, popularly known as the bill to regulate the meat packers, was passed by the Senate, 46 to 33, late this afternoon. The vote in favor of the bill was unexpectedly large, twenty-eight Democrats and eighteen Republican voting for and twenty-three Republican and ten Democrats against the measure. The two floor leaders of the Senate, Lodge and Underwood, both opposed the bill, but the Southern-Western combination held together from start to finish, and the bill was passed in almost the form in which it was reported out by the Committee on Agriculture.

Representatives of the packing industry were in the galleries during the six-hour debate that preceded the vote, and until the last the impression was general that the vote would be very close, with a margin of not more than four or five votes either way. One of the surprises was when Senator Reed, who had previously made a bitter attack on the bill, voted for it. Pittman, another Democrat, who had tried to have the bill recommitted to the committee, also voted for the measure on the final ballot.

The bill now goes to the House, where it is stated the friends of the measure will exert every possible effort to expedite its passage, although a determined fight against it is forecast.

Kenyon Sees Packer Influence.

Senator Kenyon of Iowa, who led the fight for the passage of the bill, jumped to his feet and asked Senator Warren if he could tell the Senate the majority by which the resolution of the Wyoming Legislature had passed. Senator Kenyon charged that the resolution had been passed as a result of the activities of the agents of the packers. He added that there are nine stockmen in the Wyoming Senate and that these men, to his knowledge, favored the bill.

"These packers," exclaimed Senator Kenyon, "are a gigantic monopoly, caring nothing for law or the courts, and this resolution is cheap politics aimed at the junior Senator from Wyoming (Mr. Kendrick), who favors this bill. A representative of the Swifts went from El Paso to Wyoming to aid in the fight against Senator Kendrick than whom there is no more honorable or high-minded Senator in this Chamber."

Senator Kenyon explained that his remarks were not in any way directed against Senator Warren, the senior Senator from Wyoming, who voted against the bill.

After Senator McLean of Connecticut had spoken in opposition to the bill, Senator Reed was recognized. He denounced the bill as smacking of State Socialism.

"The question confronting the American people," said Senator Reed, "is shall we abandon the private control of business and enter upon the broad field of Government supervision. This bill contains the most vicious elements of Socialism that can be conceived of."

"The remarks of the Senator from Missouri," observed Senator Kenyon, "are such as we always hear in debates affecting such legislation as is contemplated."

"The most singular thing, to my mind," said Senator Sherman, opposing the bill, "is that everybody knows how to run the packing business except the packers themselves. Why does not some one inquire about the retailers in meat products? They are too numerous, and that is why the reformers do not go after them."

Prohibits a Monopoly.

The bill as passed makes it unlawful for any packer to engage in any unfair, or unjustly discriminatory, practice or device in commerce or in any deceptive practice or device to cheat or defraud in commerce. It also makes it unlawful for any packer to sell or buy or otherwise receive from any other packer live stock or live stock products for the purpose of apportioning the supply among

BEG CRAIG TO RETURN AS BUDGET MAKER

MEETING HELD IN CITY HALL

Unless Controller Charles L. Craig reconsiders his resignation from the Committee of Finance and Budget of the Board of Estimate, the financial affairs of the city will soon become so entangled that the Hylan Administration may face serious difficulties. That was recognized yesterday at an executive meeting of the committee. Resolutions were unanimously adopted requesting the Controller to come back and a committee was appointed to take this information to him.

An attempt earlier in the day failed to induce Mr. Craig to allow the Finance Committee to resume regular sessions in the Controller's office. The Mayor sent his executive secretary to the Finance Department to inform Mr. Craig that the committee was ready to meet and would he please let it use his office. Secretary Kelly returned to report that the Controller was too busy to see him.

Shortly after this a second attempt was made to storm the Craig breastworks. William J. Flynn, Commissioner of Public Works of the Bronx, agreed to make a personal appeal to Mr. Craig. Flynn got into the Controller's private office, where Mr. Craig said he not only had no intention of allowing the Finance Committee to use his office, but he would not attend any of its sessions, no matter where it met.

Then Mayor Hylan called a meeting in the City Hall. All the members, except President LaGuardia of the Board of Aldermen, expressed the opinion that the Controller's presence at committee meetings was absolutely essential to the proper carrying on of the city's business. President LaGuardia thought the committee should elect a Chairman to succeed Mr. Craig and proceed with its business. The Mayor agreed to act as Chairman temporarily and the resolution was passed.

Headed by Mayor Hylan, the Board of Estimate, with Mr. Craig absent, will go to Albany today to present to the Legislature its petition for a bill more precisely defining the city's power to buy and operate motor buses. The resolution authorizing the trip was adopted two weeks ago, and the Mayor appointed the full board as a committee to present the petition.

A delegation of Staten Island business men appeared yesterday before the board, sitting as a Committee of the Whole, to protest against the proposal of Dock Commissioner Hulbert to extend the upland for the new Staten Island piers across Bay Street and make it a railroad yard. The delegation said the project, if carried out, would destroy the principal business street of the Stapleton, Clifton and Tompkinsville section and destroy millions of dollars worth of assets which never could be recovered in condemnation proceedings. The matter was referred to a committee of engineers of the board.

STONE BEARING NAME OF INGERSOLL VANISHES

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Jan. 24.—Considerable speculation has been aroused by the discovery that some mysterious agency has made away with the three-ton cornerstone of the Illinois State House, which bore, despite protests, the name of Robert G. Ingersoll, the atheist.

When the Capitol was built, in 1868, the cornerstone carried the names of all State officials, including Ingersoll, then Attorney General. Another cornerstone is there today. How it came there, what happened to its predecessor, how so difficult a change could be made, no one seems to know.

From the time the stone was laid, say the people of Springfield, lightning made the building its target. Once, even before the walls were complete, the stone was moved from its place by a terrific stroke of lightning.

Year after year, it is declared, almost every Summer cloud floating over Springfield hurled down a bolt at the State House. Old residents declare that each bolt seemed to aim itself at the cornerstone, and that in time the name of Ingersoll was almost effaced.

Finally, in 1906, the zinc covering of the dome was melted so seriously by the incessant lightning attacks that it was replaced with copper sheathing.

Recently some one discovered that the plain, unlettered block now at the corner was not the original stone. Common rumor charged a fraternal order with chiseling away the name of the atheist. There was prompt denial of the charge. It was discovered that State Architect Edgar Martin's records do not show a change in cornerstones.

BRINDELL SAFES ORDERED TO COURT TO BE OPENED TODAY

Expert Will Be Called to Solve Combinations of Trade Council's Strong Boxes.

CASH ACCOUNTS SOUGHT

Contractor Admits Paying to Leader $32,000 of $50,000 Promised to Bar Strikes.

ADDED SUM TO CONTRACT

Witness Says He Gave Check, Not Wishing "to Attach Any Publicity to It."

Two steel safes, each about four and a half feet high, will be moved from the office of Robert P. Brindell, Chairman of the Building Trades Council, 12 St. Mark's Place, to the Criminal Court Building this morning in response to a subpoena duces tecum served on Charles Burns, Acting Secretary of the council, a witness for the prosecution in the trial of Brindell on a charge of extortion. Unless Martin W. Littleton, Brindell's counsel, succeeds in blocking the plan of Samuel Untermyer, prosecuting the labor leader, an expert safe opener will be asked to solve the combination.

The prosecution has sought the minutes, books and cash account records of the council for several weeks. Roswell D. Tompkins, Permanent Secretary of the council, has eluded process servers and neither Burns nor other witnesses called have been of any assistance in finding the records. The officials of the council examined at the trial do not know the combinations nor whether the records are locked in the safes.

Burns, recalled to the stand yesterday, promised to comply with the subpoena if trucks were sent to the council's office. Some steel filing cabinets will also be removed to the Criminal Court Building. Justice McAvoy directed Mr. Untermyer to send trucks to Brindell's office this morning.

Hugh Robertson of the firm of Todd, Irons & Robertson, who paid Brindell $32,000 for "strike insurance," was a reluctant witness for the defense and gave damaging testimony against Brindell yesterday. He admitted promising Brindell $50,000, knowing that he was buying Brindell's influence as a labor leader to prevent strikes. The admission came as the climax of Robertson's tenacious attempts to prove that he promised Brindell the money for legitimate services.

Robertson also admitted that Matthew Brindell, brother of the defendant, called to see him on Sunday with the testimony Robertson gave last Friday in court and a three-page typewritten statement. The statement contained notes of places in the testimony of Robertson when he said that Brindell had aided him. Matthew Brindell, he said, asked him if he was going to stand by the story he gave the Lockwood committee.

Talked With Untermyer.

"Did you talk at luncheon time on Friday with Mr. Untermyer?" asked Mr. Untermyer. "Yes," replied Robertson.

Q—With whom of the defense have you been talking other than Matthew Brindell? A—Nobody.

Q—What did you say to Mr. Untermyer regarding the services of the Lockwood committee? A—I said it was a very commendable piece of work.

Q—Was that all you said? A—That is all I remember.

Q—Is your memory very bad? A—No, I don't think so.

Q—Didn't you say a great public service had been rendered to builders?

Mr. Littleton's objection to the question was sustained.

Q—Did you say that Mr. Untermyer said you were not helping the people's case? A—Yes.

Q.—Did he say to you you would not have been called if you weren't helping? A.—Yes.

Q.—Then did he say to you he was satisfied you were not telling the truth? A.—Yes.

Q.—Did he say in what respect? A.—He said I was not using absolute frankness.

Q.—In what respect did he say you were not entirely honest and frank? A.—He said I must have discussed the question of money before my visit to the Guaranty Trust Company Building.

Q.—Did Mr. Untermyer say that the least he was entitled to was the sincere co-operation of a builder he was trying to help? A.—Yes.

Q.—How soon after this conversation did you report it to anybody connected with the defense? A.—To Matthew Brindell yesterday at the house.

Q.—Did you tell him about the question? A.—He called it to my attention.

Q.—Was there anybody present but yourself and Mr. Untermyer at last Friday's conversation? A.—No, somebody standing by must have heard what you asked me to change my testimony.

Q.—Do you mean to say that Mr. Untermyer said anything to you about changing your testimony? A.—You said I hadn't given a frank statement.

Q.—Didn't you tell the Attorney General that strike insurance was mentioned at the time of your first conversation with Brindell? A.—Yes.

Q.—But the amount was not named until the third conversation? A.—No amount was mentioned until March 22, 1920. (Robertson's third conversation with Brindell took place on March 22).

Although no construction work had been begun on the Cunard docks, the witness said that the $32,000 he paid Brindell was charged to the contract with the Cunard Line. He denied that Section 380 of the Criminal Code, making it a misdemeanor to pay a labor leader a bribe, had anything to do with his testimony that he received services for the money he gave Brindell. VOTE $20,000 ASKED IN WHITMAN INQUIRY

Committee Recommends Appropriation; Estimate Board Expected to Approve.

MORE MONEY TO BE NEEDED

Two Indictments Now Looked For on "Automobile Graft" Charges Against Police.

The Committee on Finance and Budget of the Board of Estimate yesterday recommended the appropriation of $20,000 requested by District Attorney Swann for the Whitman investigation into alleged corruption in city departments.

The full Board of Estimate will take up the question on Friday, and the $20,000 probably will be granted. The sanction of the Board of Aldermen is not required, because the request comes under a special section of the charter, enabling the Board of Estimate alone to grant such requests, when the District Attorney certifies the "necessity" for the money.

This appropriation will not solve the question of the finances of the Whitman investigation. In appointing Mr. Whitman, District Attorney Swann promised funds to engage all the outside counsel and all the private detectives required. Part of this amount has already been spent on the investigation, now in its third week. If the investigation spreads, as it threatens to, into several city departments, another application will have to be made soon for further aid from the city, or offers of aid from private citizens accepted, as far as it is legal to do so. It was expected that District Attorney Swann would ask for a much larger sum than $20,000, which would be sufficient only for a small and short-lived investigation.

The motion to appropriate the bonds for the Whitman investigation was made by President Henry H. Curran of the Borough of Manhattan. The others voting in the affirmative were President LaGuardia of the Board of Aldermen and Acting President Francis X. Sullivan of Queens. On the ground that they had not had time to study the matter, President Edward Riegelmann of Brooklyn, Acting President John E. Bowe of Richmond and Acting President William J. Flynn of the Bronx refused to vote.

Appropriation Opposed.

Mrs. Ida Claussen, who has added a fight against the Whitman investigation to her many legal controversies, appeared to oppose the appropriation. Louis Cohen, her lawyer, told the committee that $20,000 was but an entering wedge, and that it was planned to extort $500,000 from the city treasury for the investigation.

Ex-Governor Charles S. Whitman presented no evidence to the Grand Jury yesterday. He said that he might present several witnesses today or tomorrow. The next cases to go before the Grand Jury involve the alleged taking of gratuities by police officials for furnishing protection to employers having labor troubles. Two indictments are expected, in addition to the two in the fur and printing strikes.

Several days probably will be occupied by the Grand Jury on the so-called "automobile graft" cases. Ex-Governor Whitman is said to have found the habite of refusing to deliver recovered automobiles without rewards from their owners to be a mor ehighly organized practice than he thought at first. It was reported yesterday that this reached high into the Police Department and that the indictments would be of a sensational kind.

Meier Steinbrink, who is conducting the Board of Estimate's own investigation of the city departments, had a talk yesterday with Mr. Whitman, which was followed by a published statement that Mr. Steinbrink had said that he had turned over to the ex-Governor "a mass of concrete evidence" concerning corruption in certain city departments. Mr. Steinbrink denied, however, that he had made any such statement. Ex-Governor Whitman added his denial and said:

"I have made no promises or boasts about what was going to be accomplished at any stage of this investigation, and I am not doing so now. This investigation has hardly started, and exaggerated statements of what has been discovered are of not benefit."

Supreme Court Justice George V. Mullan announced in his court in the Bronx yesterday that he would ask Mr. Whitman to investigate Detective Sergeant Joseph J. O'Leary of the West Fifty-first Street Station, who was a

SOME REPUBLICANS OPPOSED

Democrats Denounce His Plan as a Move to Force 8-Cent Rides in the City.

SAY IT VIOLATES HOME RULE

Governor for State Commission With Full Power, Save to Pledge City's Credit—Ultimate City Ownership.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, Jan. 24.—Full exercise of the ample police powers held by the State for the untangling of the transit situation in New York City is urged by Governor Miller in a special message read to the Legislature at the session tonight.

The Governor recommends legislation which virtually would eliminate the city Government as a factor, leaving the solution of the problem to a State commission, composed of three members and equipped with sweeping powers, not only to diagnose the disease but to apply the remedy even should this involve the fixing of temporary new rates, pending a hearing and determination.

The Governor's message had an effect almost stunning on the lawmakers not familiar in advance with its far-reaching recommendations. It caused a break in the Republican lines for the first time since the session began. Some New York City Republicans expressed unqualified opposition to the Governor's plan as blazing the way for an increased fare. Others voiced objection to empowering an appointive commission to go over the heads of city officials in the settlement of the transit problem.

The Democrats, led by Minority Leader Walker in the Senate, voiced bitter opposition to the Governor's proposals, Senator Walker accusing him of having committed himself to an eight-cent fare to get the gubernatorial nomination.

Points in the Governor's Plan.

As the Governor sees it, the solution of New York City's problem lies in the creation of a unified transit system and a single fare for the entire city, with lines which are money makers contributing to the maintenance of the less prosperous ones. Such a system ultimately must be municipally owned. With traction stocks at present rates representing, in the aggregate, much less than the intrinsic value of the properties against which they were issued, the Governor regards the present time propitious to lay the foundation for such a system.

The abolition of the Transit Construction Commissioner and the single-headed Public Service Commission for the First District, both created on the recommendation of Governor Smith, is recommended, with the supervision of all public service operations in the State excepting transit in New York City exercised by one commission, all commissioners named after the terms of the present incumbents shall have expired to be appointed for fifteen years.

Warns Against Politicians.

The Governor surveys New York City's traction history, past and present, and condemns those who laid the foundations for ample fortunes by dishonest manipulation of traction securities as well as those who seek to benefit politically from the misdeeds of the early promoters.

"The present problem," he says, "has a background of crooked financing which now subjects it to popular distrust and prejudice, easily aroused by the wiles of the demagogue. The time has come to protect it from the sinister designs of selfish financiers and politicians."

The Governor recommends that all the powers vested in the old Rapid Transit Commission, the Transit Construction Commissioner and the Public Service Commission be given to the proposed new commission for New York City transit alone, the city retaining only the power to give constitutional consent to routes and pledge its credit.

The Governor points out that the courts have decided that only local consents, imposing conditions with reference to fares, which had been granted between 1875 and 1907, were immune from change. The Public Service Commissions were established, with power to regulate rates, in the latter year.

Demands Traction Concessions.

The Governor finds that in making Subway Contracts 3 and 4 in 1913 the Public Service Commission authorized a clause under which any changes in these contracts must be approved by the Board of Estimate.

"I find no statutory warrant for that provision, the only consent of municipal authority to changes expressly required by the statute being consent to changes of plan."

Governor Miller insists that in the settlement to come the traction companies should be compelled to make vital concessions to the city. He pronounces preferential payments (to the Manhattan Elevated and to the underlying companies that enter into the surface system), through which the Interborough has escaped making any payments to the city out of subway earnings so far, as grossly unfair to the city. He also expresses the opinion that the subway leases are too long and the terms of recapture before these expire too burdensome to be of any practical benefit to the city.

He points out that, including $300,000,000 of city bonds, there are upwards of $350,000,000 of New York City bonds in the hands of the public, including thousands of innocent investors who are dependent on returns from these securities for a livelihood.

In anticipation of criticism of his plan in its relation to "home rule," he says:

"There is a good deal of loose talk about home rule in connection with this subject. The problem is not a local problem. It is a State problem, statewide in importance, and can only be solved by the exercise of the police power which resides in the State Legislature. It matters not whether the city owns its subways in its governmental or proprietary capacity. In either capacity it is merely discharging a public function over which the State in the exercise of its police power has control.

"I believe in the greatest exercise of home rule, compatible with good government, but the public interest must always be kept paramount and when State power can be effectively exercised only by the State it ought not to be delegated to municipalities."

Accuses Miller of Higher Fare Deal.

In the upper house Senator James J. Walker of New York City, leader of the Democratic minority, took the floor as soon as the message had been read. He denounced it as an "appendix to The Subway Sun" and a document dictated by the Interborough. In a personal attack on the Governor he accused him of making a deal, pledging himself to an eight-cent fare, in order to get the Gubernatorial nomination prior to the Saratoga Convention.

"The Governor in his message speaks about the transit situation in New York having a background of crooked finance," said the minority leader. "That is true, as we all know. Next he speaks about this situation lending itself to the wiles of the demagogue. Who are the demagogues? Why, there are four millions of them, and you can generally see them, with their hands above their heads, hanging on to a strap. The straphanger is the demagogue. He made a mistake a little while ago, but is not likely to make the same mistake again when another election comes around.

"This proposal is the Carson-Martin bill of sorry memory, rewritten. In order to spread a little sugar coating on the vinegar that he hands to the people in New York City, he holds out the prospect of municipal ownership sometime in a distant future. If municipal ownership eventually, why not now? New York City has declared its willingness to take over the subways and run them for a five-cent fare if the companies cannot. But the Governor does not mean that. His talk about municipal ownership is merely bait.

"I notice that the Governor says in his message that the State has gone too far in dealing with this particular problem to draw back now. It is not New York State that has gone too far. It is the Governor who has gone too far to back out. The Governor would not be sitting on the second floor in this capitol today if he had not committed himself to an eight-cent fare. That was the price of his nomination.

Lusk Defends Governor.

"This message is not tenable and it is not fair to the people of New York City. Why is the city Administration and the much investigated and maligned Mayor eliminated from any participation in the solution of New York City's transit problem? Why? Because they have taken a stand in favor of a 5-cent fare and against an increase. This message is the forerunner of an 8-cent fare."

The minority leader called the Governor inconsistent in recommending a single-headed tax commission to take the place of a three-headed one and a three-headed Public Service Commission to take the place of a single-headed one.

"The purpose of this is obvious," he said. "On the Tax Commission there are two Democrats. Hence one Tax Commissioner is enough, if he is a Republican. The Public Service Commissioner in New York is a Democrat. Hence we must have three Commissioners—that is three Republicans. These are pure, unadulterated ripper proposals, and why should we have absentee regulation of gas and electric companies in New York City by a commission sitting in Albany? I shall be very much interested in watching the attitude of New York City Republican members of this Legislature to see whether they are city men first or Republicans first."

"This situation," he said, "could have been handled by the Governor to his own political advantage. He could have done what the demagogues are already doing, express hypocritical sympathy for the poor strap-hangers, let it go at that and do nothing constructive. But he is too brave, too fearless, too clean and upright a man and too contemptuous of the sort of criticism that has been voiced for political purposes on the floor of the Senate on behalf of the minority, to be swerved from his purpose.

"This problem has been approached from the viewpoint of the financier. It has been approached from the viewpoint of the demagogue. The Governor approaches it courageously from the viewpoint of a man who wants to accomplish something of practical benefit to the people."

"I serve warning on the Governor and on the Republican majority of this house," he exclaimed, "that the people of New York City will not stand for an increased carfare, and his message paves the way for one. No message like this should ever have been read from the desk of the Senate. Had the people suspected that such a message should be read here so early in the session, another man would have been elected Governor, and another kind of message on this problem of such grave importance to the people of the City of New York would have been read by the clerk."

Burlingame Voices Opposition.

Many Senators and Assemblymen declined to comment on the message until they had given it more study.

"If this plan means an increased fare in New York City, I am against it," said Senator Alvah W. Burlingame Jr., Republican, of Brooklyn. "I am thoroughly familiar with conditions down there and I know there is no occasion for a higher fare. I also think that it would be a bad thing to give an appointive commission power to go over the heads of the duly elected city officials in fixing fares on traction lines for which the city's money has been spent."

Senator John Knight of Wyoming County, chairman of the Senate Public Service Committee which will handle any legislation drafted to comply with the Governor's message, said:

"The message to my mind represents a courageous move toward the settlement of a situation which, until the Governor was heard from, appeared beyond settlement. In my opinion, the message suggests a practical plan for the application of the State's broad police powers to a problem affecting the welfare of more people possibly than any other problem with which we are confronted in this State at present."

"I do not think such broad power should be delegated by the Legislature to any appointive body," said Senator Martin G. McCue of New York City, Democrat. "I think it is dead wrong to eliminate the city Administration from any part in the settlement of the transit problem. The people of New York City will resent, in my opinion, this feature of the Governor's plan, seeing that the city has invested hundreds of millions of dollars in the traction lines."

Senator Charles C. Lockwood of Brooklyn refused to make any comment, on the ground that he had not sufficiently familiarized himself with the details of the Governor's plan.

Assembly comment on the message varied. From the Democrats, as might be expected, came a chorus of disapproval, in which some New York City Republicans joined. Speaker Machold of the Assembly said:

"I am heartily in favor of the Governor's recommendations. I have not made careful enough study of all of them to know exactly what legislation will be required to put them into effect, but I will delegate at once to some one in the House the task of preparing legislation to carry them out.

"After that legislation has been prepared we can get an idea of the effect his recommendations will have, and public hearings will be held to determine just what changes, if any, should be made in the legislation to solve the problem about which the message was written."

Express Fear of Higher Fare.

Simon L. Adler, Assembly majority leader, said:

"The Governor's message on the transit situation in New York City and the reorganization of the Public Service Commission is not only an able State paper, expressed in clear and forcible English, but it appears to point out the way for a final solution of the enormous problems in the City of New York and the State.

"The Governor's recommendation that all control over transit matters be vested in one commission is the only thing that can bring order out of the present chaos."

"There is no doubt in my mind that the Governor's message is an open suggestion to the Legislature to increase carfares," commented Assembly Minority Leader Charles D. Donohue.

"It seems to me that the question of transportation in New York City is essentially a home rule one. While it is true that many thousands of people come to the city and use our transportation systems, the systems are primarily for the inhabitants within the city, and the Board of Estimate and Apportionment, being duly elected officials, should have some say in the transit situation.

"The relief to transportation companies which the Governor speaks of can only be accomplished by increased earnings, and that can only be accomplished by increased fares or the diminution of service. And we all know that the present service is entirely inadequate.

"His recommendation for a three-headed transit commission is considerably at variance with his first message, in which he advocated a single-headed commission. I presume this recommendation, however, is due to the fact that the present transit commissioner is a Democrat."

Assemblyman George N. Jesse, New York City, Republican, who last year vigorously fought the Jenks increased fare bills, had this to say:

"The Governor's message is a very adroit and able argument in favor of increased fares. It further is an absolute violation of home rule."

"This message tonight invites very serious consideration," said Assemblyman James A. Caulfield, Brooklyn Republican. "While the Governor, no doubt, aims for the relief of the people of the City of New York and, of course, the Commonwealth in general, still there is a local angle to the traction situation, particularly in Brooklyn, to which no member of the Legislature from Kings County could in any way act indifferently in his final determination by vote on the question of delegating the power of the Legislature to any group of men.

"On the face of it, I cannot deny the fact that it opens the question for projecting the abhorrent raise in fare mania."

A conference of Brooklyn Senators and Assemblymen on the Brooklyn transit situation that was to have been held tonight was adjourned until tomorrow.

Text of the Governor's Traction Message

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, Jan. 24.—The full text of Governor Miller's message dealing with the traction problem in New York City and State, as submitted to the Legislature tonight, was as follows:

STATE OF NEW YORK,
EXECUTIVE CHAMBER.
Jan. 24, 1921.

To the Legislature—I invite your prompt consideration of needed changes in the law for the regulation of public utilities. The most urgent condition is that presented by the transit situation in the City of New York.

In my view, sufficient facts are known to enable the Legislature to determine what action it ought to take. Indeed, those facts are matters of common knowledge. I shall endeavor to state them.

A brief outline of the acts under which the present rapid transit lines were constructed may be helpful.

By Chapter 752 of the Laws of 1894 the Rapid Transit act of 1891 was amended and a Board of Rapid Transit Railroad Commissioners was named in the act, with power to fill vacancies. As a preliminary step, the board was required to obtain the constitutional consents of the local authorities and abutting property owners, or in lieu of the latter the determination of the General Term, now the Appellate Division, of the Supreme Court upon the report of Commissioners that the proposed road ought to be constructed and operated. The board was then to prepare plans and advertise for bids for construction, equipment and operation. Upon obtaining the constitutional consents, the board was independent of municipal control, except that the approval of the Common Council was required as to the form of contracts. Under that act, the first two subway contracts were let, viz., Contract No. 1 on Feb. 21, 1900, for the section north of the Post Office in Manhattan, and Contract No. 2, on July 21, 1902, from the Post Office in Manhattan to the Long Island Railroad terminal in Brooklyn. Under those contracts, made by said board, the credit of the city was pledged to the amount of upward of $55,000,000, a little over $51,000,000 of which has been exempted from the indebtedness which is a limitation upon the borrowing power of the city.

Building of Subways in 1913.

By Chapter 631, Laws of 1905, the power of approval of "plans and conclusions," by the original act vested in the Common Council was transferred to the Board of Estimate and Apportionment. That power was continued by the revision of 1909 and still exists.

The Greater New York Charter (Chapter 378, Laws of 1897) provided by Section 45 that nothing in the act should repeal or affect in any manner the provisions of the Rapid Transit act.

It will thus be seen that the first venture of the City of New York in municipal ownership of transit lines was under contracts made by a board appointed by the Legislature, which was independent of municipal control except for the constitutional consent required to preliminary plans.

In 1907, as a part of the enactment of the Public Service Commissions law, the powers of the board under the Rapid Transit act were transferred to the Public Service Commission for the First District. There was then urgent need for an extension of the rapid transit system. However, it was not until 1913, despite all of the efforts of the public authorities, that Contracts No. 3 and No. 4, providing for extensions under the so-called dual system, were made. That was due, in part at least, to the delay in effecting a working arrangement between the commission and the Board of Estimate and Apportionment. Those contracts were made by the commission and were approved by the Board of Estimate and Apportionment, and they contained a clause requiring the approval of the board to any changes. However, I find no statutory warrant for that provision, the only consent of municipal authority to changes expressly required by the statute being consent to changes of plan.

Evils of Divided Authority.

By Chapter 520 of the Laws of 1919 the regulatory powers of the Public Service Commission were transferred to a single Commissioner appointed by the Governor and the powers under the Rapid Transit act were transferred to a single Transit Construction Commissioner. The result is that there are now three agencies dealing with transit in New York City—the Public Service Commissioner, the Transit Construction Commissioner and the Board of Estimate and Apportionment, and the powers of each are in dispute. It is not strange that an apparently hopeless tangle results.

With respect to surface lines, an equally hopeless tangle of authority exists. It was obviously intended to confer upon the Public Service Commission complete regulatory power over them. But the Court of Appeals decided that it would not infer, from the language of the act, an intention to do that in cases where local consents had imposed conditions as to rates of fare. That decision, however, has been limited to such consents granted between 1875 and 1907. The result is that the Public Service Commission has jurisdiction over some lines and different sections of the same line and a divided authority with the Board of Estimate and Apportionment over other lines or sections of the same line.

A drifting policy has naturally resulted from divided authority and responsibility, while the transportation problem in the City of New York has steadily drifted toward disaster.

According to the report of the Transit Construction Commissioner, there is greater need than ever of new construction and extension of rapid transit lines, the present lines having reached the point of saturation during rush hours. In passing, it may be observed that the service has been so crippled that every hour appears to be a rush hour. The Commissioner states that at present costs the new construction and extension planned will cost $350,000,000, not including equipment for which $200,000,000 will be required. Of course, under present conditions, private capital will not be risked in the enterprise, and the city's borrowing capacity is limited by the $200,000,000 in round numbers of subway bonds now maintained out of the tax levy, while another $50,000,000 will be required to complete projected work for which the city is obligated.

Roads Cannot Pay Expenses.

According to the report of the Public Service Commission, the revenues of all operating companies within the Greater City for the fiscal year ended June 30, 1920, fell short of paying operating expenses, interest, rents and other fixed charges by $10,735,399, as against a deficit the prior year of $8,556,408.

Many of the roads are in the hands of receivers and others on the verge of receiverships. Systems have been disintegrated. Two, three and, I understand, in some cases four fares are now required where before one sufficed. Many lines have been abandoned and service on others suspended, maintenance has been deferred, taxes are unpaid and service has deteriorated, all to the inconvenience, discomfort and expense of the public and the great loss of the city.

The welfare of the entire State is involved in the right solution of the problem. Transportation is a public function, intimately affecting the general welfare, and the regulation of it is within the police power of the State. The colossal nature of the problem and the general interest affected by it are indicated by the fact that there are upward of $850,000,000 of New York City traction bonds held by the public, including the $250,000,000 of city bonds.

While the present drifting policy in a crisis daily becoming more distressingly acute is plainly due to the unwise division of authority and responsibility already referred to, the cause of the difficulty lies deeper. The present problem has a background of crooked financing, which now subjects it to popular distrust and prejudice easily aroused by the wiles of the demagogue. The time has come to protect it from the sinister designs of selfish financiers and politicians. It will not be difficult to eliminate the baneful influence of the former. The market value of outstanding securities is undoubtedly much below the intrinsic value of the properties represented.

Water Squeezed Out of Securities.

The water has already been squeezed out of the securities and the companies are not earning fixed charges. The time is therefore propitious to deal with the subject in the public interest and with exact justice to all. It would be little short of a public calamity if the opportunity thus presented were allowed to pass. Of course, any consideration of the subject must start from the premise that the public shall not be called upon to pay earnings upon or to amortize watered securities. The ultimate solution of the problem must be maximum service with minimum cost for the benefit of the users of the public transportation facilities, the majority of whom have no other means of transportation. The public are now in a position to escape from the consequences of past misdeeds or mistakes, if, instead of utilizing them for sinister purposes to breed disorder in the public mind, advantage is taken of the present opportunity to lay the solid foundations for a forward looking constructive policy.

In the past capital has been attracted too much by the chance of speculative profits. Necessarily those profits are made at the expense of the investor and the traveling public. Poor and costly service and loss to the innocent holder of securities are the inevitable result. Certainty of a fair return must be the attraction to capital in the future, and that, I am sure, the public will readily accord for adequate service. The public are now in a state of mind to take nothing for granted. Their past experience has been such that they now will rightly insist upon being satisfied that the actual facts justify any measures adopted. Some agency, having public confidence, impartially to ascertain the facts and courageously to apply the remedy appears to be imperatively demanded to extricate the problem from its present difficulties.

Unified System, Single Fare.

Viewing the matter solely in the public interest, I think it plain that the foundations should now be laid for a completely unified system of transportation in the City of New York, and I believe any open-minded person who studies the subject at all will be forced to that conclusion. The single fare plan appears to me to be important to the future development of the city, and the relief of congestion with its manifold problems, housing and the like. Extensions should precede rather than lag behind demand. That means that profitable parts of the system must maintain the unprofitable. In order to give the public efficient and cheap service, every possible economy in operation and management must be effected, and every unnecessary duplication of service eliminated. Necessarily, the subways will form the backbone of the system. The elevated, surface lines and buses will eventually be merely auxiliary. If, however, the most efficient service is to be rendered at the lowest cost, competition must be eliminated, and the particular service best suited to each particular situation must be adopted.

The foregoing and other considerations all point to one completely unified system, and if that premise be granted it necessarily leads to the conclusion that ultimately such a system must be municipally owned. That was settled when the city decided upon municipally owned subways. A unified system of operation will be difficult with both public and private ownership of ways and structures. Of course, the ultimate result cannot be accomplished in a day. The time, however, is ripe to lay the foundations, and to lay them properly we must commandeer the services of men of proved ability, breadth of view, vision and public spirit, in whom must be vested all the authority that can constitutionally be given, and such men must be selected utterly regardless of politics.

Preferential Payments Unfair.

The subway contracts, three and four, lay at the threshold of any solution of the problem. They need revision in the public interest. They must be revised if the problem is to be solved. I have not studied them sufficiently to assert with dogmatic assurance precisely how they should be revised and am only referring to the matter sufficiently to indicate the problem with which we have to deal. A very brief examination will suggest certain major points for revision.

Experience has demonstrated that the provisions for preferential payments are unfair to the city. The city is now providing the interest and sinking fund for roughly $200,000,000 of subway bonds out of the tax levy, yet its budget requirements are so great that it has to curtail the police force and this year the Board of Estimate and Apportionment even cut out of the budget $27,000,000 conceded to be necessary for the schools.

The city is so near the debt limit that it cannot undertake needed public improvements, even the erection of necessary school buildings, yet, if the subway bonds were maintained out of operation, as they should be, the city's borrowing power would at once be increased $200,000,000. The people who ride in the subways do not realize that in addition to their fares they are paying to maintain $200,000,000 of subway bonds, and it does not matter whether they are taxpayers or rent payers. Of course, that observation does not apply to the hundreds of thousands living outside the city who daily use its transit facilities.

In my opinion, the term of the leases is too long. That would not be so vital if the provision for recapture would not penalize the city in case it should exercise its option before the expiration of the term. That also would appear to need revision in the interest of the city.

Single Agency Must Have Authority.

Wholly apart from the consideration that the wise solution of the problem will, in my judgment, pave the way for a single, municipally owned system, the problem is in itself single and must be dealt with as a whole. No particular lines can be treated by themselves, and experience has already demonstrated the unwisdom of separating the regulatory powers of the Public Service Commissioner from the powers under the Rapid Transit act now vested in the Transit Construction Commissioner. Increased expense and division and uncertainty of authority have resulted.

To my mind the conclusion is irresistible that the authority and responsibility to deal with this problem must be completely centred in some single agency. Manifestly that cannot be the Board of Estimate and Apportionment. It is common knowledge that that body is unable now properly to function and dispose of the matters coming before it. That observation implies no personal reflection. Its inability to deal with such a problem as this results from the very nature of the organization of that body and the mass of matters with which it deals. A Public Service Commissioner, with all the power under the Rapid Transit act, and all the power necessary to deal with the problem, reserving to the city the power to give the constitutional consent to routes and, of course, to pledge the credit of the city, appears to me to be the manifest solution.

The foregoing views appear to me to be sound. But in stating them, after much reflection, I merely desire to invite your consideration of them and to focus public attention upon them. The vital thing to do at the moment is to create the agency to deal with the problem with ample and undivided authority and responsibility. The necessity of doing that does not appear to me to be open to debate. That agency, when created, must work out a plan for the ascertained facts, uninfluenced by any prejudgments or predilections whatsoever, and I have said nothing with the intention of influencing the ultimate decision with the single reservation that that decision must be in the public interest.

Not a Local Problem.

There is a good deal of loose talk about home rule in connection with this subject. The problem is not a local problem. It is a State problem, statewide in importance, and can only be solved by the exercise of the police power which resides in the State Legislature. It matters not whether the city owns the subways in its governmental or proprietary capacity. In either capacity it is merely discharging a public function over which the State in the exercise of its police power has control.

There are two great problems of transportation in and about the City of New York. One is the problem of transportation of passengers with which we are now dealing. The other is the problem of the transportation of freight involved in the port development problem on which I hope to address the Legislature in the near future. Both are of general State concern and neither can be properly solved without the exercise of State power. I believe in the greatest exercise of home rule compatible with good government, but the public interest must always be kept paramount, and when State power can be effectively exercised only by the State it ought not to be delegated to municipalities.

The regulation of public utilities is, from the nature of the case, a State function and the power of regulation must be undivided to be effective. The State has already gone too far in dealing with the particular problem at hand to draw back now. The responsibility has already been assumed. The deplorable condition of transportation in the City of New York which I have inadequately described and the dark prospects ahead if no relief is found preclude the thought that either the Legislature or the Governor should evade or seek to shift their responsibility.

Were it not for the unique character of the transit problem in New York, I should recommend that all public utilities of the State be placed under the jurisdiction of a single State Commission, which should have full power, regardless of any local authority, except in so far as the Constitution has vested power in the localities. Apart from the fact that the police power of the State is involved, quasi judicial powers should be vested in an impartial tribunal. A tribunal responsible to local authority cannot be expected to be impartial, and experience has shown that such tribunals are subject to local feelings and prejudices. The vesting of such powers in them is like submitting a controversy to one of the parties to it.

Urges One State Commission.

I do not recommend that all public utilities be placed under the jurisdiction of one State commission, except that a commission be created for the First District with complete jurisdiction over the single subject of transit in that district. I make that exception not only because the problem is unique and complicated, but because I entertain the hope that public spirited men, who might not be willing to undertake the regulation of public utilities generally, may be found to undertake a particular service. It is no exaggeration to say that that service will require the highest order of intelligence, fairness and public spirit, to which any citizen may be called and that it affords an opportunity for distinguished public service, the like of which is rarely presented.

I recommend that a commission of three be created with complete jurisdiction over the subject of transit in the First District, that the powers under the Public Service Commissions law and the Rapid Transit act be transferred to it with such amendment as further study may suggest, and that the former independence of municipal control be restored regardless of the provisions of local consents or prior contracts.

I further recommend that jurisdiction over all other public utilities in the State be conferred on the present commission for the Second District. Five Commissioners for that work may be necessary.

I also recommend that the Public Service Commissions law be amended so as to make the rules uniform as to all public utilities, including the power to suspend rates pending a hearing and determination. In view of the time required for some rate determinations, there should doubtless be power to prescribe temporary rates pending such determination, with such safeguards as may be prescribed by the commission, and complete power should expressly be vested in the commission, regardless of local consents or contracts.

Demands Gas Rate Remedy.

I invite your particular attention to the subject of gas rates. Acts of the Legislature prescribing particular rates have been found to be confiscatory by the Federal courts. The result is that the companies affected are left free to impose any rate, subject only to the requirement of reasonableness. That condition requires immediate remedy. Either the Legislature must prescribe new rates or confer jurisdiction over the subject on the commission, regardless of any statutory rate. If we are to have a Public Service Commission at all, it should have complete jurisdiction over that subject. Likewise, it should have jurisdiction to regulate the service and prescribe the standards of quality and the like.

It is impossible to exaggerate the importance and the value to the people, if well done, of the work of the Public Service Commission. That body should be elevated to the dignity and the standing of a court and should be removed from political influence. If a commission of five is retained, I recommend that the terms be so arranged as to expire at intervals of three years, the ultimate term of the Commissioners to be appointed upon the expiration of the terms of the present incumbents to be fifteen years.

The determinations of the commission when once made should be obeyed. There may be some reason for it, but I see no necessity of an appeal from the commission to itself, which must involve some unnecessary expense to parties and to the State, but, more important than that, effective regulation requires that the orders of the commission be obeyed until they are set aside.

I also invite your consideration of the question whether the commission does not undertake too much work of an administrative character. The great functions of the commission are quasi judicial or legislative. As I have said to you in an earlier message, the commingling of administrative with legislative or judicial functions impairs the efficiency with which both are discharged and may also lead to abuses. A body suited to discharge important quasi judicial or legislative functions is apt to be unsuited to administration, and attention to one duty is apt to detract from performance of the others.

Recommends One Administrator.

I think that has been demonstrated by the constant growth in the expenses of the two commissions. An examination of the organization under the Public Service Commission for the Second District discloses the typical development of the bureaucratic system incident to such commingling of powers. There appear to be eight divisions, each with a division chief, and apparently they constitute so many separate departments, each naturally magnifying its own importance and with little or no correlation of effort and service between them. It is inevitable that they are overmanned, and I think it will be little short of miraculous if a close investigation does not disclose that in every one of the divisions there are employes who, at some periods, have little or nothing to do. I am not prepared to say that the work of any of the divisions should be curtailed or dispensed with. I recommend the study of that subject. I am prepared to recommend, however, that if continued, that work be placed under one administrator who will see that it is properly correlated and efficiently done. The Commissioners will have all they can attend to, if they properly discharge their important quasi judicial or legislative functions. They should not be burdened with the administration of such a department as now exists under them. Of course, the appropriation committees will look carefully into this subject. Instead of increasing the appropriations for the department over $180,000, as is requested, I have no doubt that it will be found possible to effect decreases by more efficient organization. How that should be done, I submit to your consideration.

FEARS MORE SERVICE CUTS

Fifth, Vanderbilt and Wilson Avenue Lines May Stop—Harris Doubts Traction Financial Crisis.

The committee of legislators which is investigating the financial condition of the Brooklyn Rapid Transit Company with a view to restoring full operation on the surface lines and to obtain reasons why the receivership has not been ended, had a busy five hours yesterday. Senator William T. Simpson had a long talk in the morning with Lindley M. Garrison, receiver of the company, and in the afternoon Senator Simpson joined with Senators M. S. Harris and Abraham L. Katlin and Assemblymen W. F. Clayton, J. G. Moore and J. J. Mullin in a long conference with officials of the Public Service Commission.

The talk between Mr. Simpson and Mr. Garrison was behind closed doors, but the former said it was of the most cordial character; that Mr. Garrison indicated he was aware that surface transit conditions were bad, and that he was anxious to improve them.

Senator Simpson said there was danger that more surface lines in Brooklyn would be suspended, including the Fifth, Vanderbilt and Wilson Avenue lines, the West End, the Union and Bergen Street lines and the Ralph-Rockaway, Hoyt-Sackett and St. John's Place lines.

It was learned that $4,2[illegible],066, which had been placed in the maintenance fund during two years, had been used to meet operation expenses, and that it would take at least $4,000,000 to put the property in good condition.

Brooklyn and North River Railroad Company.

FINNISH COMPOSER COMING.

Jean Sibelius to Be Professor in Eastman School of Music, Rochester.

ROCHESTER, N. Y., Jan. 24.—Announcement was made today that Dr. Jean Sibelius, for many years Principal of the Helsingfors (Finland) Conservatory of Music, had been engaged as instructor in composition for the new Eastman School of Music at the University of Rochester, and would take up his duties and residence in Rochester on the opening of the school, probably next year.

Jean Sibelius, referred to in the dispatch merely as principal of his own country's chief musical institution, is the famous Finnish composer, it was said last night, whose tone poem, "Finlandia," was first performed in America at a Metropolitan Opera House concert on Christmas Eve, 1905, and a week later by the Russian Orchestra at Carnegie Hall. Sibelius himself was afterward a visitor to this country, as Rubinstein and Tschaikowsky, among the musical "immortals," had been before him, and others since, from Saint Saëns to Richard Strauss.

Dr. Sibelius came to America and conducted nine of his own works at the Litchfield County Choral Festival at Norfolk, Conn., June 2 to 4, 1914, as the guest here of that festival's patron, Carl Stoeckel of Norfolk and New York. Besides the "Finlandia" he also gave "The Swan of Tuonela," "Pohjola's Daughter," the "Valse Triste" and others less familiar.

The composer, now said to be coming here again to join the Eastman musical foundation at Rochester, is 55 years old, having been born in Finland Dec. 8, 1865. As composer he now has a list of completed works up to between sixty and seventy opus numbers. One of his later symphonic poems is "Night Ride and Sunrise," given by the Boston Symphony Orchestra in 1918. His violin concerto was introduced by an American violinist, the late Maud Powell.

SIX STATES' VOTES LACKING.

Forty-two States Have Reported Electoral Vote to Marshall.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 24.—Electoral votes from six States, Indiana, Maryland, Nevada, North Carolina, Oregon and Utah had not arrived, as required by law, when Vice President Marshall closed his office tonight.

Returns which have been mailed from some of the States may be used at the joint session of Congress Feb. 9 to count the votes for President and Vice President.

Nebraska's vote was delivered to Mr. Marshall by Mrs. H. H. Wheeler of Lincoln, and Mrs. Draper Smith of Omaha, who started for Washington by airplane, but on account of weather conditions abandoned the plane at Des Moines and finished their journey by train.

The plaque is of hand-carved Circassian walnut, upon which is mounted a gold tablet inscribed with a testimonial and engraved with the American coat of arms. The plate is encircled by thirteen diamonds.

N. J. Naimy, chairman of the delegation, made the presentation address.

DRY ADVOCATES WIN IN ASSEMBLY TEST

Resolution Favoring Sale of Beer and Light Wines Sent to Committee.

BONUS BILL INTRODUCED

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, N. Y., Jan. 24.—The Assembly Republican majority refused action tonight on the resolution of Assemblyman Henry Baum of Queens, which would ask Congress to "effectually and rationally" modify the Volstead act to permit the sale of light wines and beers in New York State.

The first test of strength of advocates of a liberalized prohibition and their opponents resulted in a victory for Volstead act supporters, when, by a vote of 77 to 42, the Baum resolution was referred to the Excise Committee. It probably will not be reported out.

"We are not attempting to nullify the Eighteenth Amendment," declared Mr. Baum, in arguing for his resolution. "Neither are we trying to interfere with prohibition enforcement. I am firmly of the opinion that an ordinary man can safely drink beer with at least 3½ per cent. alcohol in it without hurting himself in any way."

Majority Leader Adler asked for its reference to committee, saying that the question was one which should not be decided upon without proper consideration.

Assemblyman Nicholas M. Pette, Queens Republican, introduced a resolution asking the Legislature to request Congress to authorize the transportation to Albany of the body of an unknown soldier who fell in battle on French soil to be buried in the rotunda of the Capitol with military ceremony. Under the new rule of the House, the resolution was received but will not be read until tomorrow.

ALBANY, N. Y., Jan. 24.—Provision is made in a bill introduced in the Legislature tonight by Miss Marguerite L. Smith, Republican, member of Assembly from New York, for soldiers and sailors entitled to the $10 a month bonus to be given by the State to turn their snares if they so desire, over to the State Disability Fund for War Veterans or to local funds organized by the American Legion. The bill, backed by the American Legion, is also intended to make all other assignments illegal.

A resolution designed to create a joint legislative committee to investigate business and private banking in New York City in relation to the general methods of handling foreign exchange and letters of credit was introduced in the Legislature tonight by Assemblyman Samuel Dickstein, Democrat of New York. It carries an appropriation of $2,500. Under the rules the resolution went over until tomorrow.

Speaker Machold of the Assembly announced from his chair tonight that he had been forced to refuse the privileges of the floor to several persons because the rules of the Assembly regarding these privileges had been violated. He refused to divulge the names of the persons denied admittance inside the rail of the Chamber.

It was rumored about the Capitol that the Speaker made his announcement as a result of violations of the rules by lobbyists. The Speaker asked the members' aid in seeing that the rules were observed in this respect.

FOR ACTIVE NAVAL RESERVE.

Daniels Would Weed Out Those Neglecting Their Obligations.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 24.—Asserting that the war had demonstrated the navy's dependence on an efficient naval reserve force, Secretary Daniels declared in an address at a Naval Reserve banquet here tonight that, in the interest of greater efficiency, he favored "unsparing use of the knife" in weeding out of the reserve all officers and men who did not fulfill their obligations to the navy. The Secretary said this applied to those who did not care to perform the required active duty or to keep themselves "reasonably informed on the duties of their station."

Secretary Daniels declared that the war had disproved as "foolish and dangerous" the theory that in time of hostilities the navy could rely on the merchant marine for trained sea-going personnel. The war had demonstrated, in fact, he said, that in time of emergency it is the navy which must be expected to provide trained personnel for an augmented merchant marine.

The Secretary strongly advocated, however, the inclusion of merchant marine personnel in the naval reserve.

ASKS $100,000 FOR HIS LOVE.

Woman Jury May Hear Atlantic City Alienation of Affection Suit.

Special to The New York Times.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Jan. 24.—Mrs. Muriell N. Laciar, widow of a wealthy Baltimore physician, has been sued for $100,000 in the Supreme Court by Mrs. Florence Zelley, who charges that Mrs. Laciar alienated the affection of her husband, Samuel Taylor Zelley, an official of the Eastern Motor Company here. The suit is listed for trial during the January term of the County Court, which is now in session.

Mrs. Zelley alleges that the friendship between her husband and Mrs. Laciar began when Mrs. Laciar bought an automobile, after which Zelley spent hours in teaching her how to drive it. This occurred in the Summer of 1917, according to the complaint, which states that since then the two have been constantly together.

There are a number of women on the present jury panel and if the case is heard at this session it will be the first time that a suit for alienation of affection has been tried in this county by a jury with women members.

SAYS HE WED TO GET $7,000.

Dr. Morris Klein of 126 Kelly Street was sued in the Supreme Court yesterday by his wife, Mrs. Beatrice Klein, to recover savings of $7,000 which she alleges she entrusted to him during four years of married life and courtship, consisting of her earnings. Justice John Ford will hear her application today for an injunction against four banks to restrain them from paying out any of the money to her husband.

Mrs. Klein says that she found out shortly after her marriage last August that her husband's professed love was assumed to obtain her money from savings banks for investment.

"He stated that under no circumstances would he return the property to me, and that as a matter of fact he never loved me and his protestations were insincere and entirely untrue," she says in an affidavit. "He stated that he married me to get my money. This confession was a great shock to me, but it confirmed my original suspicion."

PLANNED TO YIELD MEUSE?

French Officer's Book Says Defenses Were to Be Given Up.

Copyright, 1921, by The Chicago Tribune Co.

PARIS, Jan. 24.—That the French High Command contemplated abandoning part of the Verdun defense six months prior to the great German attack, is asserted by Colonel Thomasson in a new book entitled "Preliminaries de Verdun." He says that the Verdun commander did not have sufficient means for completing before February, 1916, the advance positions on both the right bank of the Meuse and the left bank. Therefore, there was talk of sacrificing the right bank positions in order to complete those on the left side.

Colonel Thomasson says that the fact that France was fighting on her own soil prevented application of this strategy, which would have been "playing upon the Germans in 1916 the same trick which the Germans played upon the Allies in March, 1917, by suddenly making a void in front of them, thus rendering the entire German preparations useless and compelling them to begin afresh in another zone." He goes on:

"It would have been better strategy for the Allies to have carried out the proposed 1916 offensive earlier with troops drawn from the Verdun sector. But for moral reasons the High Command clung to Verdun. General Castelnau, at the start of the battle, was ordered to defend the right bank."

KNEW HALL AS 'SHERWOOD.'

Two Testify They Met "Diamond Gus" as Mrs. Ryder's Husband.

Testimony that the late Augustus H. Hall, formerly a wholesale druggist, known as "Diamond Gus" because of his large investments in diamonds, was known as "Gus Sherwood," husband of Mrs. "Jean Sherwood," to friends of hers, was given before Supreme Court Justice Cohalan yesterday, in a suit by Mrs. Jean Sherwood Ryder to recover $150,000 from the Hall estate on the ground that she was Hall's wife and that he had agreed to leave her that sum in his will.

Mrs. Emma L. Hall, who collected $60,000 from the Hall estate by proving she was the common law wife of Hall, is one of the defendants in the suit. She sued Hall for a separation several years before his death and got alimony of $7,200 a year.

John F. Meader, President of an engineering corporation, and living at the Hotel Pennsylvania, and Mrs. Mary Robinson testified that they had known Hall as "Sherwood," the husband of Mrs. Ryder.

FOSDICK RAPS MILLER PLAN.

Says It Is Mistake to Insist on Dry Enforcement by the Police.

Raymond B. Fosdick told the City Club last evening what was wrong with the police in the United States. He did not dwell on the New York department, except to point out that the policeman's task here was made more difficult because of the many foreign born.

"One condition which renders police administration exceedingly difficult," he said, "is our habit of passing laws which do not have behind them the force of public approval. If you use a police department to enforce standards of conduct or to regulate the private habits of a population contrary to its wishes you run the risk of demoralizing the department. For this reason Governor Miller's announcement that he will hold the Police Commissioners responsible for enforcement of the Prohibition law is particularly unfortunate. Their business is protecting the lives and property of citizens, and this task should not be jeopardized."

Too much politics was another handicap, he said. He referred to Arthur Woods as probably the best qualified man in police work in this country.

ARRESTS GIVE CLUE TO $1,000,000 THEFT

BOOTLEGGER KILLED IN DUEL

The arrest of five men yesterday in connection with the theft of $1,000 worth of silk from the Champlain Silk Company, 500 Driggs Avenue, Brooklyn, may lead to the solution of the loss of upward of $1,000,000 worth of silk, according to Lieutenant Detective Willemse of the East Twenty-second Street Station. He said that in the last three months silk valued at $20,000 had been stolen from the company at the rate of $1,000 a week. The firm employed private detectives to trail drivers.

Yesterday afternoon Nathan Kanzer, 40 years old, of 202 North Fourth Street, Brooklyn, was ordered to deliver twenty cases of silk to the Colonial Line at Pier 39, North River. Detectives followed Kanzer in a taxicab and allege that at Suffolk and Delancey Streets they saw Louis Goldberg, 42 years old, of 228 Tompkins Avenue, Brooklyn, and Joseph Briskman, 37 years old, of 2,922 West Second Street, Coney Island, get on the truck and ride to the storeroom of the Federal Trucking Company at Avenue A and East Eleventh Street. Kanzer and the two men went to a nearby saloon the detectives said, and one of the latter telephoned to the station.

Lieutenant Willemse said that while the three men were in the saloon he and the detectives saw Harry Brecker, 29 years old, of 304 East Eighth Street, remove six of the cases to the storeroom and later replace them on the truck. Kanzer, Goldberg and Briskman entered the storeroom a few minutes later. The detectives arrested them and Brecker. Under a couch in a rear room the detectives said that they found 100 pounds of silk, valued at $1,000, which they charged had been taken from the cases.

While they were examining the silk, Abraham Gladstone, 65 years old, of 97 St. Marks Place, entered the place. Unaware that the men were prisoners, he is alleged to have asked: "Well, boys, what have you got this time?" Then he fled at top speed for more than a block before he was overtaken.

One Killed in Pistol Duel.

Rivalry between bands of bootleggers was believed by the police to be responsible for a pistol battle early yesterday morning between Dominick Ponti, 27 years old, of 32 Oak Street, and three men in front of 134 Pearl Street, which resulted in the death of Ponti.

According to a statement made by him, he started to enter the cellar of the building 24 men in policemen Tienken and Garrick later found ten barrels of wine. Ponti was confronted by three men, who began to shoot. He was struck in the shoulder and fired in return without effect. He believed the men to be agents of the drivers after arrested Tony Cascone, 35 years old, and Tony Lodato, 36 years old, who said they drove to nothing in front of which the shooting took place. Cascone, the policeman charged, had a loaded .38-calibre pistol in his pocket which had not been discharged. Ponti said that he had had a quarrel with the two prisoners.

When George Wilson, 30 years old, a negro employed as a porter by the Italian Company, pleaded guilty yesterday before Judge L. D. Gibbs in the Queens County Court to the charge of stealing sheets valued at $25, it became known that within the last three months the company had suffered losses of the kind totaling $1,000. Judge Gibbs sentenced him to eighteen months in Sing Sing.

Joseph Anetrano, 31 years old, of 405 West Thirty-ninth Street, was held in $5,000 bail when arraigned before Magistrate Edgar J. Frothingham in the Jefferson Market Court on a charge of participating in the burglary of the True Angle Watch Company in the Pennsylvania Station on Sunday night.

Brooklyn Theatre Robbed.

Another safe robbery was reported to the Brooklyn police yesterday, when an employee of the Hooper Photoplay Theatre, Hooper and South Fourth Streets, found that burglars, between Saturday night and early yesterday, had dug through a brick wall in the rear of the theatre, forced the door of the office, and ripped open the bottom of the safe. They obtained $500.

Justice James C. Cropsey in the Supreme Court, Brooklyn, imposed sentences aggregating seventy-two years on five men convicted of murder, hold-ups, assault and extortion.

Michael Szvorenz, 35 years old, of 242 East Seventy-fourth Street, Manhattan, a hold-up man, received a sentence of fifteen years. Gaetano Faretta, 34 years old, of Worcester, Mass., received an indeterminate sentence of from twenty years to life for the murder of Salvatore Pirano on July 28, 1918; Piero Gramalia, 24 years old, of 114 Twelfth Street, Brooklyn, to twenty years for killing Piero Acuzzo on Dec. 7 last. James Walsh, 31 years old of 336 East Fiftieth Street, and Thomas Robinson, 29 years old, of 308 East Forty-sixth Street, both of Manhattan, received sentences of from seven to ten years on their pleas of guilty to posing as prohibition enforcement agents and extorting money from saloon keepers.

W. H. Phillips, President of the Devoe & Reynolds Company, paints, varnishes and oils, 101 Fulton Street, reported to the police that thieves had broken open a warehouse of the company at Smith and Centre Streets, Brooklyn, making off with thirty-three cases of China bristles valued at $15,300.

When Miss Mary Stewart French returned last evening to her studio apartment on the third floor of 154 East Thirty-seventh Street, she found that burglar proof locks, installed on the doors earlier in the day, had been ripped apart and clothing and jewelry taken valued at more than $500.

GOVERNOR OF KENTUCKY ASKS DRY ENFORCEMENT

Appeals to Conscience of People to Suppress Open Moonshining and Bootlegging.

FRANKFORT, Ky., Jan. 24.—Governor Morrow issued a proclamation today addressed to "The People of Kentucky," calling upon them to assist in suppressing moonshiners and bootleggers, whose operations, he declares in an accompanying letter to peace officers, amounts to a flaunting challenge to the State's power to enforce the prohibition law.

The Governor asserts that the prohibition law is being brazenly, notoriously, impudently and openly violated in Kentucky, and that moonshiners and bootleggers and those allied with them are determined to make their will superior to the law, which "strikes at the source of all public authority."

COAL MEN OFFER RELIEF.

Tell Senators They Will Meet All Justified Complaints.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 24.—Pennsylvania anthracite producers who are independent of the railroad corporations which control the bulk of production in the industry put before the Senate committee considering the Calder Coal Regulation bill today a statement indicating their willingness to take steps to meet all justified consumers' complaints.

"The record of the anthracite industry is that it has attempted to distribute coal equitably among users," the statement as read by W. J. Thompson, representative of an association of 104 collieries, declared. "It has attempted to modify prices to meet the views of the Department of Justice. It comes before the Senate committee now with the suggestion that, if these several lines of action are not sufficient, it will do whatever else may seem to be desirable, if the Senate committee will indicate what further it believes should be done."

NEW CHICAGO CRIME SPURT.

Gang Robs Street Car Fare Boxes—Women in Pistol Battle With Police.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Ill., Jan. 24.—There was a marked recrudescence of crime in Chicago late last night and early this morning, several running battles with police being chronicled.

Two men and two women, at the end of a night of celebrating, fought a rattling revolver battle in the Wilson Avenue district early today with two policemen who identified their automobile as one reported stolen. In a noisy, high speed pursuit the policemen wounded one of the men in the car, but all the occupants escaped.

A citizen who undertook, singlehanded, to tame a youthful bad man was saved from death by a button. Matt Collins was walking in Jackson Boulevard, when a youngster driving a car pulled up at the curb and asked for a match.

"Now, stick up your hands," the boy said, drawing a revolver. Collins looked him over and decided not to be frightened by the gun. When Collins jumped at him, he fired. The bullet went through Collins's overcoat and inner coat and then was deflected by a trousers button. The shock was enough to knock Collins from the running board, and the young gunman escaped. Collins walked home.

Police and detectives are searching for four automobile bandits who, carrying army automatics, held up three street cars in rapid succession and escaped with $53.30 taken from the conductor.

SAYS BEDFORD NEEDS GIRLS

Women's City Club Hears Address by Superintendent Anna H. Talbot.

Mrs. Anna Hedges Talbot, Superintendent of Bedford Reformatory for Women, told the members of the Women's City Club at a luncheon at the Hotel McAlpin yesterday that the greatest needs of Bedford was "more girls."

Mrs. Talbot said that she believed that drug addicts and convalescents could be well cared for at Bedford, and that while they now had in the institution 153 girls and 15 babies, they could, with a few additional officers, accommodate 450 girls and take care of them for a much lower sum per rata. She said that house mothers were needed to solve the cottage system, which was of greatest importance to the girls many of whom had never known homes, and that more was accomplished. She added that the taking away of privileges was the only punishment at Bedford, and that she wished it could be called a training school.

Judge Henry W. Herbert of the Court of Special Sessions said it was "the grandest thing in the world" that Judges had an institution like Bedford to send their worst cases because they knew how to handle them, and from the first had had the best results. He said that discipline must not be relaxed because of maudlin sympathizers. Charles H. Johnson, Secretary of the State Board of Charities and member of the State Commission on Mental Deficiency, also spoke.

A resolution opposing the bill for the reorganization of the State Industrial Commission was signed by a large number of the women and will be sent to Albany.

KRUPP'S INCREASES CAPITAL

BERLIN, Jan. 24.—The new Krupp stock issue of 250,000,000 marks has been oversubscribed. This means that the existing capital has been doubled. Those who applied for shares in Germany's great munition works can receive only a small proportion of the allotment they asked for.

Until the present issue of capital Krupp's was practically a family concern, all of its shares being in the hands of half a dozen people. The company has acquired a controlling interest in one of the principal mines of Westphalia, and the new capital was required for the acquisition of other coal mines in the Ruhr area.

ASKS ANGLO-SAXON AMITY.

British Consul Wants Our Ties With His Country Strengthened.

Captain Gloucester Armstrong, British Consul here, made a plea to members and guests of the Canadian Society at a dinner last night in the Biltmore to use their influence in furthering friendship between England and the United States. He expressed confidence that they would do everything possible to offset the propaganda of those who seek to "destroy the present amicable relations between the two great English-speaking nations."

"In England we regard the Declaration of Independence just as we do our Magna Charta," he said. "When all is said and done, it is but a continuation of the Magna Charta. We claim your poets just as you are entitled to ours."

MAJOR'S LOVE NOTES READ IN COURT

THEY TALK OF 'GOOD TIMES'

Wife Found Them in the Major's Office Desk, and Had Them Translated.

Julian C. Smith, who was a Major in the American Expeditionary Force in France at Headquarters at Angers, is plaintiff in an action now on trial before Justice Faber, in the Queens County Supreme Court, against his wife, Mrs. Elizabeth C. Smith, in which he demands an account of funds that he placed in the keeping of his wife while he was abroad.

Mrs. Smith has counterclaimed, in which she has alleged that her expenses while her husband was abroad were far more than the money he provided, and she had to make up the difference. She has also introduced in evidence letters from "Jane," a French girl, who wrote to the Major after his return. These letters resulted in a separation between Major Smith and his wife. He is now living at 347 West Fifty-seventh Street and his wife at Riverside Drive and 141st Street.

According to Mrs. Smith's testimony, the Major did not work much before he went to camp, as he had made money. Mrs. Smith recently inherited a fortune from a relative. She testified that some time after the return of Major Smith, April, 1919, a letter came to her home in Douglaston. It was written in French, and she had it translated. She went to Major Smith's office desk, and there she found a number of letters. They were in French. Then came the separation. Mrs. Smith introduced two of the letters in evidence. They were in part:

My Dear One—Yesterday morning I received your sweet missive and that which it contained. I am overcome by so much bounty and I would be happy if I could thank you in person. But alas, you are ready to leave for America and without hope of seeing you again, without my being able to tell you goodbye—I am desolate and put my whole heart in this letter, as a souvenir of the good times passed with you and which I shall never forget. * * * I think that this kind of correspondence between us will be quite original. You will write to me in English, which will be very agreeable to me, and I will write you long pages in French. * * *

I regret greatly not being able to embrace you again before your departure, my poor friend, how far you will be from me and how alone I shall be. However, I shall live in the hope of seeing you again. * * * I will send my letters to your office because at your home I fear that they will go to another recipient than you. I wish you a good voyage and good luck.

I am your very affectionate and always your little JANE.

Friday, 17 January.

My Dear One—This morning again I received a long and good letter from my good Julian. It is truly kind of you to think of me in this way, but in your letter you almost regret having known me. Oh, why, wicked one, do you say all those things to me?

You say that you would like to do something to make me detest you. Well, my dear, do all you wish, say what you please to annoy me—I shall remain impassive, for my affection for you will remain always sincere and true. You might well know, my dear one, that after such good days passed together it would be difficult to forget you. * * *

Why, in your letter, do you say that I will think that you love to drink? I know that you are a steady man. You drink when you are with me. I love you when you have drunk a little cognac. * * *

I await your dear visit. Sunday will be the last. JANE.

Major Smith alleged that he left $2,248 in the Battery Park National Bank. He charges that his wife drew out $1,351 and he is asking judgment against her for that amount. Mrs. Smith alleges that Major Smith left debts of $417, and the taxes and assessments on their home unpaid when he left, which she paid. The case will be continued today wit. Mrs. Smith on the stand.

RIGHT TO SEIZE GERMAN SECURITIES IS UPHELD

WASHINGTON, Jan. 24.—The Supreme Court today upheld the authority of the Alien Property Custodian to seize securities deposited in this country by the German insurance companies to protect American policyholders. The court said there could be no doubt that the Trading with the Enemy act authorized such seizure.

Suits were brought by the Metropolitan and Central Union Trust Companies of New York and by James Speyer, Frank A. Vanderlip and others, as trustees, to determine the question of the Alien Property Custodian's authority. The appeals were based on the ground that the securities constituted a trust fund which was in the hands and under the exclusive control of Americans, for the protection of Americans, and further that the deposit of the securities had been required under the laws of various States.

SAYS SPIRIT ACCUSED BOY.

Father of Girl Found Shot Has Philadelphia Youth Arrested.

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 24.—Charles Edwin King, 21 years old, was arrested today charged with the killing of Arline May Stout, 17-year-old high school girl, who was found dead in her home Oct. 10 with a bullet wound in her shoulder.

The warrant for the arrest, sworn out by Freeman M. Stout, the girl's father, charges King with homicide. King was arrested in Bristol and brought to this city.

King today declared that he was innocent. He said he had been with her the afternoon before her death, but had left her early and had heard of the shooting at Bristol the following day.

Miss Stout was found on a couch by her father. She was clad in a nightdress. An army revolver, which Stout kept in a desk drawer in the hallway, lay beside her with one cartridge discharged.

At a hearing before the Coroner, King was held in $3,000 bail for an inquest next Monday. The bond was furnished by his attorney.

A vision at the side of his daughter's grave, Mr. Stout said, led him to have the warrant issued for King's arrest.

"I went to my daughter's grave on Saturday," he said. "While I stood there a vision appeared over the grave and Arline stood there. 'Father,' she told me, 'go to see Edwin. He can tell you all.'

"She told me she had gone to Edwin several times and tried to induce him to tell the truth."

At the time of Miss Stout's death the police expressed the belief that she either had committed suicide or killed herself accidentally.

GUATEMALA CITY, Jan. 23.—Illiterates are forbidden to participate in political contests under the terms of a bill approved by the Congress of Guatemala today.

FAMOUS ENGINEER COMMITS SUICIDE

Max Everhart Smith, the inventor of the escalator, committed suicide yesterday in his home at 10 East Fifty-eighth Street. The police of the East Fifty-first Street Station, after an investigation, found that failing eyesight appeared to be the only motive. Detectives said that the suicide was discovered by the engineer's wife, Mrs. Mary Smith, who heard a shot and found her husband's body lying across a bed. A 32-calibre revolver, with two shells exploded, was found on the floor. Mrs. Smith sent for Dr. Guile of 2 West Eighty-eighth Street, who said that the engineer had lived only a few seconds after the shots had been fired. This statement was confirmed by Dr. Gonzales, Assistant to the Chief Medical Examiner, who reported the death as suicide.

George P. Smith, son of the dead man, was summoned from his home in Morristown, N. J. He could assign no reason for his father's act except possibly worry over gradual dimming of vision. He said that his father had retired the night before seemingly in excellent health and spirits. His father, he added, had been associated in the design and construction of the Eads Bridge at St. Louis and also in the construction of the Eads jetties below New Orleans at the mouth of the Mississippi.

Mr. Smith left two notes, one to his wife and the other to his son. They gave instructions for the disposal of his property and, according to the police, advised them not to disclose his suicide, but to say that he met death in an automobile accident.

A member of the American Society of Civil Engineers, Mr. Smith was born seventy-two years ago in Germany. He had been an American citizen for fifty years. In 1918, while President of the Continuous Transit Securities Company, he offered a moving platform, an adaptation of his escalator invention, as a remedy for subway congestion in the Times Square station. The Public Service Commission found the platform impracticable, however.

ACCUSE MAINE PHYSICIANS.

Country Dwellers Say They Refuse to Attend Childbirth Cases.

Special to The New York Times.

HOULTON, Me., Jan. 24.—All Northern Maine is deeply stirred by the refusal of physicians of Aroostook County, organized as a so-called trust, to respond to calls from the outlying sections in cases of childbirth.

In consequence, babies are being born without the presence of a physician or nurse, neighbors and relatives meeting the situation as best they can. Particular complaint is registered against the physicians of Houlton, seven in number, who, it is charged, have bound themselves not to answer calls in maternity cases in rural homes.

The physicians, it is explained, have requested that the women be brought to the hospitals. It is stated that this is literally impossible in a large number of cases. Conditions in the outlying sections are described as worse than those in the new and crude frontier communities of the West from fifty to seventy-five years ago.

At least one baby is said to have died at birth as a result of lack of expert care.

SEEK JOY RIDERS IN RIVER.

Chicago Police Believe 4 Men and 2 Women Drowned in Auto.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Jan. 24.—Dragging of the Chicago River will be resumed tomorrow for the bodies of four men and two women believed to have plunged to their death Saturday night in one of two automobiles recovered from the river today.

A night watchman reported he had seen a party of "joy riders" dash toward the river at high speed Saturday. The car believed to have been driven into the river belonged to Royal H. Myers, a barber, who says it was stolen from his garage between Friday night and Saturday morning. The second car was said by Oscar Lustig, a dry goods merchant, to have been stolen from him in April, 1918. It apparently had been in the water many months.

Aeronautics Committee Report Sent to Congress, Wilson Approving.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 24. — President Wilson transmitted to Congress today, with his concurrence, a report from the National Advisory Committee for Aeronautics, recommending continuance of the air mail service.

The report, which was voluminous and accompanied by a brief letter of transmission, declared that the air mail service, which the House recently voted against, provided "a necessary means for the development of the civil aircraft activities of the nation."

WILL HEAR JAGER EVIDENCE.

Assembly Sub-Committee Will Meet Here Saturday.

ALBANY, Jan. 24.—The sub-committee of the Assembly Judiciary Committee, appointed to investigate the eligibility of Assemblyman Henry Jager, Socialist, of Kings, expects to sit in New York next Saturday to take evidence, it was announced tonight by Chairman George H. Rowe, Republican, of Erie.

Reports were current at the Capitol tonight that Assemblyman Charles Solomon, Socialist member from Kings, also is in danger of being expelled for a third time. It was said that ninety Assemblymen had signed a round robin demanding his expulsion.

witness in a divorce action of William Schwank against Emily Schwenk. The policeman testified that he was a member of the raiding party which obtained the evidence. He was pressed for a long time by Justice Mullan to explain why he had done detective work of this variety. The detective finally admitted that he was not acting "in the interest of the City of New York."

"In my opinion," said the Justice, "this policeman used his office for pay or 'pull' or otherwise. He would not have been admitted to the houses on this occasion except for his use of his shield. I am going to refer this matter to ex-Governor Whitman for investigation."

Counsel for John Bohan, who is suing Inspector Dominick Henry for malicious prosecution, sought to prove in the trial of the case before Supreme Court Justice John M. Tierney yesterday that a record of the West Sixty-eighth Street station had been tampered with. An attempt was made to show that erasures and changes on the blotter had been made after the original entry. The blotter showed that Bohan had been arrested on June 23, 1919, for aiding and abetting a disorderly resort. Lieutenant Thomas Farrell testified that he had made the entry. He denied that he had made a later change.

"Did you make that erasure?" he was asked.

Lieutenant Farrell said that he was not sure that any erasure had been made. The book was marked in evidence and presented to the jury to form their own conclusions whether it was tampered with or not. Bohan asks for damages on the ground that he was arrested without warrant and that a case against him was manufactured later.

SLAIN AS BURGLAR ON WAY FROM PARTY

LEGION MEN DEFEND HIM

Whether John Joseph Smith of 113 Dean Street, Jamaica, was shot and killed by Paul Laudman in the latter's saloon at 330 Sutphin Road, a few blocks from Smith's home, yesterday morning was actually bent upon robbery or whether the shooting was unprovoked, as Smith's daughter insists, is a question which the police of Jamaica are trying to solve. So far as is known, Smith, under the influence of liquor, was on his way home from a party in Manhattan and carried neither a weapon nor a burglar's tool of any kind. He awakened Laudman and his brother Frank, who live above the saloon, by smashing a pane of glass. The Laudman brothers descended the stairs and, according to the story told the police, Paul called to Smith and an unidentified companion to hold up their hands. When they refused, he fired three shots, two of which struck Smith.

Smith was a member of the Yorkville Post of the American Legion and was identified by his membership card. He had been stationed at Fort Wadsworth with the Eighth Coast Artillery during the war. A younger brother, Peter, who fought in the Twenty-seventh Division, is a member of the same post.

Harry J. Frank, President of the Yorkville Post of the American Legion, is so positive that Smith was not a burglar that he has called an Executive Committee meeting for tonight to take up the shooting and clear Smith's name. Frank, who said he knew Smith for several years and always found him to be "straight," said he had spoken with about twenty members of the post, and all agreed that a grave mistake had been made. The meeting will be held at 185 East Seventy-sixth Street.

On Sunday night, Frank said, a number of the members, including the dead man, attended a christening party in the neighborhood. Smith, intoxicated, was placed on a Jamaica car on the New York side of the Queensboro Bridge at midnight by two of the members. They instructed the conductor to get Smith off at the end of the line, which is a few blocks away from his home. Frank, who was also at the party, was able to trace Smith's actions only that far.

According to the story Laudman told the police, he retired following a dance in a hall under his living room. Later, he was awakened by the crashing of glass. He aroused his brother Frank, and with revolver in hand tiptoed down the stairs. By the moonlight, he said, he saw two figures. When he called to the men to hold up their hands, he said, they advanced on him threateningly, and he fired. Smith's companion is alleged to have jumped from the window. Laudman immediately telephoned to the police.

Peter Smith, the victim's brother, insists that Smith had gone into the saloon for another drink. His brother, he said, was quiet and unassuming and was never in trouble in his life. He was a raincoat salesman, he said, and made a good living.

Magistrate Conway, in the Jamaica Court, held the Laudman brothers without bail for examination tomorrow. Both said they had never seen Smith before.

ENRIGHT PREDICTS TROUBLE

Says City Needs More Police for Threatened Garment Strike.

Police Commissioner Enright, speaking last night before the Catholic Young Women's Club, 641 Lexington Avenue, predicted serious trouble next month as a result of the threatened strike of garment workers.

"We have received information that both sides are hiring thugs and gunmen," said Mr. Enright. "Both sides are prepared to fight to a finish. The unions say they are going to hold out and the employers are equally firm. We are on the verge of great industrial troubles."

Mr. Enright said the city must have more police immediately. The 500 additional men recently provided will not be enough to cope with the situation, he declared.

BONAPARTE CAUSES STIR.

BALTIMORE, Md., Jan. 24.—Charles J. Bonaparte, former Attorney General and Secretary of the Navy, almost tied up traffic on Baltimore Street this noon when he came downtown with Mrs. Bonaparte to get the air and do a little shopping.

The interest was caused by the rig in which Mr. and Mrs. Bonaparte traveled. It was a handsome old victoria, drawn by two handsome chestnut horses.

To complete the picture there were the negro footmen in the Bonaparte livery, black, with edges of the coats piped in red, high silk hats with gold bands and the little cockade on the side. The footmen were as stiff and pompous as the footmen of 1900.

the five bandits climbed into the car and robbed the passengers and crew of their money and valuables.

Believe Band Had Auto.

The motorman of the second car had observed an automobile standing at a cross road about two blocks west of the scene, and, he later told the police that he believed the bandits got into the car after they had robbed his passengers.

There was no final warning to the motorman of the second car because the bandits ran in the direction of the automobile as soon as they had hopped off the rear platform. The motorman telephoned to Captain Murphy at Police Headquarters in Summit as soon as he reached the first store in the outskirts, and in a few minutes Captain Murphy and policemen in automobiles and on motorcycles were racing in the direction of the spot where the held-up took place.

Captain Murphy also gave orders to call the signal boxes in the surrounding communities, warning policemen to guard all the roads leading to Springfield and Summit. Detectives were sent to the car barns of the trolley company, where they obtained a description of the robbers from Charles Dukin and Henry Dunnell, motorman and conductor of the first car, and from several passengers.

The detectives said that the robbers obtained about $800 in money and jewelry from the passengers and crew of the first car, and about $1,200 from those on the second car. It also was learned that the thieves took with them the coin box on each car.

MRS. ROCKEFELLER JR. TO AID HOOVER DRIVE

Will Head Y. W. C. A. Committee to Raise Funds for Europe's Starving Children.

Mrs. John D. Rockefeller Jr. yesterday accepted the chairmanship of the committee of the Young Women's Christian Association in this city for the campaign to gather subscriptions for the $33,000,000 child-feeding fund of the European Relief Council. Her acceptance follows closely upon the announcement last week that Mr. Rockefeller had given $1,000,000 to the fund for the relief of children in Central and Southeastern Europe.

The Y. W. C. A. has designated Tuesday, Feb. 1, as "Invisible Guest" day in all its cafeterias, and the proceeds of luncheon on that day will be given to the Hoover fund. More than 300 invitations have been sent out by Mrs. Rockefeller's committee to business men to take luncheon that day in the cafeterias, and in the afternoon teas will be given so that the total of the fund may be increased. Some of the women who have announced their intention of giving luncheon parties on that day are Mrs. Cleveland H. Dodge, Mrs. Willard Straight, Mrs. Robert de Forest, Mrs. William Fellowes Morgan, Mrs. James S. Cushman and Mrs. Arthur Curtiss James.

Motion picture actors will appear in many theatres here tomorrow to urge audiences to attend the matinees on Saturday, Jan. 29, when performances for school children will be given in the morning, with the proceeds going to the European Relief Fund. It is expected that $150,000 will be gathered for the fund in this city on that day. Philadelphia has challenged the Motion Picture Theatre Owners' Association in this city to race for honors in total subscriptions, and the challenge has been accepted.

'CAVE MAN' SEIZES GIRL; MAULED AND ARRESTED

Nineteen-year-old Milton Philips picked himself out a pretty girl from those trooping back to the public school in Stapleton, S. I., yesterday afternoon and tried some "cave man stuff" to win her.

"I want you," the youth said imperiously to Myrtle Griffin, 15, of 224 Targee Street as she passed him at Broad and Centre Streets with a group of fellow pupils. She attempted to ignore him and hurry on with her companions. Thereupon he seized her.

"Stop," said Myrtle in classic phrase.

"Come," said the boy with the air of a conqueror and started ruthlessly dragging her away.

Myrtle's boy and girl companions, not understanding Philips's little attack of atavism, pulled and pummeled and scratched and kicked and kept the boy so much engaged he did not see the approach of Patrolman Foley, summoned from the entrance to the school at Broad and Brook Streets until the hand of the law was upon him.

In the Stapleton Police Court Philips would tell nothing about himself except that he formerly boarded at 125 New York Avenue, Clifton. After the object of his sudden affections had told Magistrate Croak she never saw the boy before and other pupils said he had been lurking near the school several hours, he was held on a charge of assault.

DROPS PASSENGER TRAINS.

Pennsylvania Road Discontinues Eight in the Pittsburgh District.

Special to The New York Times.

PITTSBURGH, Jan. 24. — Although eight passenger trains and several express trains to and from Pittsburgh over the Pennsylvania system have been discontinued and the routes of five local trains shortened by a schedule which became effective yesterday, commuters will not be inconvenienced. Changes have been made in such a way, the railroad announced this morning, that those residing in towns adjacent to Pittsburgh will be able to enter and leave the city at customary traveling time. The changes were made in accordance with the retrenchment program adopted some time ago.

At Derry, within the last week 200 men, including train crews, trackmen and employes of the Supervisor's department, were laid off. The number of Pittsburgh employes laid off was not announced. At Altoona 325 employes in the shops received today notices of furloughs due to lack of work. The total in the Altoona district either discharged or furloughed is 2,500.

The Baltimore & Ohio Railroad has made considerable reduction in its forces. An order has been issued suspending operations in some of the largest repair shops. A temporary furlough to be given to Baltimore & Ohio men will involve about 1,000 at Glenwood. Over the entire road, it is understood, between 7,000 and 8,000 men will be affected.

BRINDELL SAFES ORDERED TO COURT

though the payments were charged to the Cunard project, the first "service" rendered by Brindell was to call off a strike on the Guaranty Trust Building then in the course of construction.

Robertson admitted Brindell did not give any help in buying lumber and said he would have done about what he did in the purchasee of lumber without Brindell's advice.

Q. (by Mr. Untermyer)—Isn't it a fact that what you were looking for was his influence and not his advice? A.—I was looking for his help.

Q.—By help you mean influence? A.—Yes.

Q.—What you were paying for was what he called strike insurance? A.—Yes.

Q.—You knew that what he meant was that he could prevent strikes? A.—Yes.

Q.—You knew that what you were buying was Brindell's influence? A.—Yes.

Q.—You knew no part of the money was going to any labor organization? A.—I didn't know what he was going to do with it.

Q.—You knew you were buying him.

Mr. Littleton's objection was sustained by the Court, "as the witness has already answered it."

Robertson, in answer to other questions, said he never had heard anything about a scheme of insurance by insurance companies to protect builders against strikes, and that he did not expect anything of the kind from Brindell. When he showed Brindell his elaborate plans for the $35,000,000 series of docks for the Cunard Line, he said, the labor leader made no suggestions regarding alterations or any report on it.

Pressed by Mr. Untermyer to say why he wanted Brindell's help, he said he wanted information available to all the members of the Building Trades Employers Association regarding labor agreements which were not available to him, as he was not a member of the employers' organization. Robertson said he paid in cash and not by check because he did not want "to attach any publicity to it."

After he paid Brindell the workmen on the Guaranty Trust Company job showed "greater efficiency," Robertson asserted, and when questioned further Robertson finally admitted that he did not get increased efficiency as a result of his payment of $32,000 of the $50,000 promised. He further admitted that the "preventing of strikes" was the "type of strike insurance" he got when he paid his money.

William Waikel, a house wrecker, head of the Garden City Wrecking Company, testified in paying $2,000 in two payments of $1,000 each to Brindell after he was forced to engage inefficient Council workers, instead of men in the old line Zaranko union who were ejected.

Sir John Fraser Discovers America

Can't Live Without Ice

"The first thing you do in the morning is to drink iced water. At all meals, whether at a lunch counter or at the Ritz, you are supplied with a glass of water with pieces of ice in it. The last thing you do at night is to have the servant bring you a pitcher jangling with lumps of ice. The ice chest is an institution in every household. Ice is delivered each day the same as milk."

Thus Sir John Fraser writes in the London Standard. For New York he might have said Knickerbocker Ice. Knickerbocker is delivered each day the "same as milk" to the leading hotels, restaurants, clubs and homes.

COLD TO WILSON'S APPEAL ON RUSSIA

Comment Made in Paris That He Might Try to Prevent Soviet Aggression.

ALLIES INDISPOSED TO ACT

By EDWIN L. JAMES.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Jan. 24.—President Wilson's note to the League of Nations, suggesting that the European powers take a solemn engagement 'not to attack or countenance any attack upon Russia, is received in Paris perhaps more coldly than any other communication he has ever cabled across the Atlantic.

Coming to the French capital on the day of the opening of the interallied conference, it gained considerable notice. The general sentiment appeared to be that 'it would not receive a great deal of serious official attention, largely because of the wish not to embarrass in any way the relations between the European Governments and the next American Administration. Comment heard in several quarters was that if Mr. Wilson wished to act in the interest of European peace, he would do well to cause the Soviets to give some assurance that they would not commit any attacks on Poland, Rumania or any other border State.

As a matter of fact, the coldness shown toward the Wilson note seems slightly far-fetched. In the first place, he was writing in connection with a task which the League of Nations, controlled by the allied powers, asked him to undertake, and in the second place, the principal allied powers are already committed to the policy he advocates. Great Britain is pursuing a policy of peace toward Russia, and Premier Briand declared to the French Chamber only three days ago that Bolshevism was the business of Russia so long as it remained within the Russian borders. Certainly no one would accuse Japan or Italy of planning attacks against Russia.

Anxious to Drop Armenian Burden.

With respect to President Wilson's complaint that the League has not been in a hurry to co-operate in Armenian mediation, it is pointed out officially that the Assembly of the League, whose President, Paul Hymans, Mr. Wilson addressed, is not in session and neither is the Council, which, however, will meet in Geneva Feb. 21. Of course, it is possible for the League leaders to advise him if they wish to do so, but there has always been room to doubt the allied powers' devotion to the proposal of mediation for Armenia by America and there has always been room for the suspicion that in asking the American President to assume the task the Council of the League was seeking to rid itself of a knotty problem.

The Journal des Débats tonight expresses great surprise over the Wilson note, observing that the rejection of the Peace Treaty by America appears to mean nothing to the President and that he thinks America can join the League for five or ten minutes whenever it wishes something and then get out before it is called on to assume responsibilities. The paper says:

"The action of Mr. Wilson remains naturally entirely personal and cannot in any way bind either the present American Government or the coming American Government."

However true it may be that President Wilson's note is coldly received in Paris, it may be noted that Russia has suddenly been added to the agenda of the Allied Conference, and since the ways of diplomats are sometimes beyond all understanding, who can tell what result it may have?

Says Our Policy Weakens Note.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Jan. 24.—Commenting on President Wilson's note on Armenia and Russia, The Westminster Gazette says tonight that it "contains much sound sense on the Russian question, but its force is weakened by one serious fact. It is quite true that the Armenian question, like all questions concerned with the States bordering on Russia, has been prejudiced by the futility of the allied policy toward Russia herself. It is also true that the border States would not attack Great Russia unless they were encouraged by promise of support from the stronger powers. But when President Wilson asks the Allies jointly to guarantee the territorial integrity of Russia, we are compelled to remark that America refuses to share not only in that guarantee but in a guarantee of the integrity of other European States which are members of the League or of safety for Armenia herself.

"If America were prepared to undertake a mandate for Armenia she would have a very strong lever with which to secure acceptance of her terms."

Russian Liberals Commend Note.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 24. — President Wilson's declaration in his Armenian note to President Hymans of the League of Nations Assembly is expected here to have a far-reaching influence upon the attitude of the powers toward the Russian problem.

The President's appeal to the powers not to sanction the further invasion of Russia, either by themselves or by others, has won endorsement in Russian Liberal circles and elsewhere in Washington among thoughtful students of the Russian situation. The President's position in his latest note is a reaffirmation of the policy announced in Secretary Colby's note of Aug. 10 on Russia, in which there was an appeal for unity of allied action in respect to that country.

Following that note, however, the Allies, it is held, tacitly acquiesced in a violation of Russia's territorial integrity in the Bessarabia affair, and at least one of the powers encouraged Poland's attempt to push her territorial aggrandizement at the expense of Russia. Consequently there is much speculation among diplomats in Washington regarding the answer which the powers will make to the President's note.

The State Department has furnished copies of the note to the allied powers and also to the Polish Government. There is no doubt that copies will be brought to the attention of Armenia and other countries contiguous to Russia, and that the note will unofficially reach Soviet Russia itself.

The note was timed, although not by design, to have an effect upon the gathering of Russian Liberals at Paris under the call of Alexander Kerensky, former Provisional President of Russia, which is to be attended by Boris Bakhmeteff, who sailed for France on Jan. 20.

American Government officials today reiterated their belief that the Soviet régime would topple if it found no excuse for the maintenance of the Bolshevist army, and that the army could only be maintained so long as Russia was threatened from the outside. It is not believed that the Russian people as a whole would support the Bolsheviki in an offensive war, but that they would support the Bolsheviki or any other defenders of the integrity of Russian territory so long as defense was needed against foreign aggressions.

It is the belief of officials here, and this view is shared also in Russian circles, that the population of Russia will not have a real opportunity to combat Bolshevism through the natural operation of internal processes so long as the great powers, excepting only the United States, make it appear that the only champions of the rights of Russia are the Bolsheviki. It is asserted that the whole nation, anti-Bolshevist as well as communist, rallies to the support of the Soviet régime when it professes to act or is afforded excuses for seeming to act in the national interest.

SAYS WILSON KEEPS PLEDGE.

A. J. Sack, Director of the Russian Information Bureau in the United States, representing the anti-Bolshevist democratic forces, issued the following statement last night:

"President Wilson's note addressed to Paul Hymans, President of the Assembly of the League of Nations, is but a development of principles expressed in Secretary Colby's note of Aug. 10. The Russian democratic anti-Bolshevist forces, Liberal and Socialist alike, unanimously greeted Secretary Colby's note and will undoubtedly greet the latest note of President Wilson devoted to the Russian situation.

"Both these documents are a fulfillment of the President's promise to 'stand by Russia.' The time for superdiplomacy and super-delicacy has gone. The Russian situation is too critical and must be treated with the utmost frankness.

"President Wilson justly contends that the struggle against Bolshevism should not take the form of a struggle against Russia. Lloyd George's well-known unfortunate utterance that it is not in the interest of Great Britain to see the re-establishment of a strong and united Russia gave the Bolsheviki a great deal of comfort, fired with patriotism the ranks of the Red army now built upon principles of universal compulsory service, and thereby strengthened the Bolshevist rule. The Polish offensive in the Spring, combined with the Polish demand, besides territory of Russian Poland, for nine additional Russian provinces where the Poles constitute not more than 5 per cent. of the entire population, produced the same effect.

"The Bolsheviki must be deprived of the pose of national defenders of Russia and of the possibility of referring to foreign foes as the reason for keeping a large Red army. The Russian people who are still continuing their struggle against Bolshevism must be given the possibility of concentrating their effort upon the internal factor that destroys Russia's life without any fear of foreign intrigue and invasion behind their backs."

DENIES REPORTS OF RUMANIAN RISINGS

ATHENS, Jan. 22.—Nicholas Mishu, former Rumanian Minister to London and now Master of Ceremonies of the Court in Bucharest, said today that frequent reports of Bolshevist and other disorders in Rumania were wholly untrue. He declared there now were only 45,000 Bolshevist troops along the Dniester, and Rumania, which at present has a large and powerful army, does not fear them.

The greatest problem facing the country, M. Mishu said, was the lack of locomotives and railroad material and the depreciation in Rumanian currency.

MOSCOW SOVIET DENIES LENIN IS DEAD

LONDON, Jan. 24.—The reports of the death of Premier Lenin of Soviet Russia and of a recent attempt to assassinate him by means of a bomb are characterized in a Moscow wireless dispatch, received today, as "fantastic rumors."

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Jan. 24.—According to a special dispatch from Helsingfors a secret conference is being held in Moscow of the People's Commissaries to consider action against the anti-Bolsheviki. Lenin is not present and it is rumored that he is dead, and that the fact is being kept secret for political reasons. It is said that the two Berlin doctors who were recently called to Moscow to treat a prominent member of the Government were informed before they reached the Russian border that the patient was dead. The doctors therefore returned home.

The Moscow paper Pravda says Lenin has not taken part in the last meetings of the Government, which have been presided over by Leon Trotsky, the Minister of War.

REPORTED STIFF NOTE TO MEXICO ON OIL

United States Said to Have Demanded Inquiry Into Invasion of Concessions.

MEXICO CITY, Jan. 24.—The United States Government through George T. Summerlin, the Chargé d'Affaires here, has, according to semi-official information, presented an emphatic note to Mexico regarding the alleged invasion of American petroleum concessions and requesting an immediate investigation with a proper adjustment.

The Foreign Office in its usual press statement tonight did not mention the reported note, and confirmation of its delivery was lacking at the American Embassy.

POPE URGES AID TO AUSTRIA

Asks Gasparri to Call Situation to Attention of the Nations.

ROME, Jan. 24.—A letter addressed by the Pope to Cardinal Gasparri, Papal Secretary of State, dilates on the terrible situation in Austria. The letter, which appears in the Osservatore Romano, the Vatican organ, abstains from practical proposals, but suggests it is the duty of other countries to rescue Austria.

Cardinal Gasparri is instructed to acquaint the diplomatic representatives of the facts, so that they may invite their respective Governments to examine the situation and adopt measures of relief.

Copyright, 1921, by The Chicago Tribune Co.

LONDON, Jan. 24.—The Duke of Manchester, who married Helena Zimmerman of Cincinnati, was sued today by Vere Ker-Seymour, a friend, for a $1,000 loan made a year ago. The Duke asserted that the sum was paid as a part of a business transaction, but the court held that it was a loan and gave judgment against him.

BRITAIN PREPARES TO RECOGNIZE SOVIET

Formal General Treaty Forecast in Stipulations of the Proposed Trade Agreement.

PROPAGANDA IS BARRED

Specie or Bullion Imported From Russia to Be Safe From Seizure in England.

LONDON, Tuesday, Jan. 25 (Associated Press).—The terms of the British-Russian preliminary agreement which Leonid Krassin, the Soviet representative, has taken to Moscow for consideration officially, have been made public. The most important terms follow:

Each party agrees to refrain from hostile action or propaganda outside its borders against the other's institutions. The Soviet particularly agrees to refrain from any encouragement of Asiatic peoples to action against British interests, especially in Asia Minor, Persia, Afghanistan and India.

British subjects in Russia and Russians in Great Britain will be permitted to return to their homes if they so desire.

Each agrees not to impose any form of blockade against the other or any discriminations against trade not imposed on other foreign countries.

Ships in the other's harbors shall receive the treatment usually accorded foreign merchant ships by commercial nations.

The agreement provides for the clearance of mines from the Baltic and the approaches to Russia and the exchange of information regarding mines.

It provides for the admission to both countries of persons appointed to carry out the agreement, with the right to restrict them to specified areas and the exclusion of any who are persona non grata, and also free communication and exemption from taxation.

A renewal of telegraphic and postal facilities, including parcels post, will be arranged.

Great Britain agrees to refrain from attaching any gold securities or commodities, not identifiable as British Government property, which may be exported from Russia as payment for imports, or securities for payment, and to refrain, as well, from legislation against the importation of specie or bullion from Russia, and from requisitioning such.

The preamble sets forth that the agreement is necessary "pending the conclusion of a formal general treaty between these Governments, whereby their economic and political relations shall be regulated in the future."

The agreement shall continue in force until the treaty is arranged, except that either may after a year give six months' notice of its termination. Infringement by either Government frees the other from its obligations, but the aggrieved party shall give the other a reasonable opportunity of explaining or remedying the default.

The Government recognizes in principle that it is liable to pay compensation to private persons who have supplied goods or services to Russia. All claims of either Government or its nationals against the other in respect of obligations incurred by existing or former Governments shall be equitably dealt with by the treaty.

The proposed agreement is declared by The London Times to be "a complete surrender to Soviet sentiment."

The Times says the document differs in letter but not in spirit from the earlier draft, and adds: "It will in no wise make the business community less hostile than it has persistently shown itself to any treaty with the Soviet authorities."

The phraseology with reference to recognition of the Russian State debts and other obligations, The Times declares, is "so vague that it affords no ground for any sort of satisfaction. Debts are not recognized as such, but simply as instituting claims to compensation."

A dispatch to The London Times from Constantinople, dated Saturday, says arrangements have been completed for a conference in Moscow in February of representatives of the Middle Eastern States, including Turkey, Armenia and Persia, for a settlement of boundary disputes.

The newspaper adds that delegates from Moslem States have just ended a conference at Sivas under communist auspices, held for the purpose of forming a solid Pan-Islamic union.

packers or "unreasonably affecting the price for creating a monopoly," in the buying, selling or dealing in live stock or live stock products.

Furthermore, packers are forbidden to conspire, combine, agree or arrange for the apportioning of territory among persons in the packing industry, the controlling of prices, or to apportion purchases of any live stock or live stock products. It is also made unlawful for packers to engage in any course of business or to do any act the purpose of which is to prevent other persons from carrying on a competitive or similar business in commerce.

It is provided that after two years from the date the bill becomes effective "no packer engaged in commerce shall own or control or have any interest in, directly or indirectly, by community of stock ownership or otherwise, any stockyard, unless the commission shall determine that such packer has been unable, despite due diligence, to dispose of such ownership or control of or interest in such stockyard, in which case the commission may, by order, extend the period during which such ownership, control or interest may continue."

Must Make Reports to Commission.

Packers under the bill are required to keep such records and statements of account, or make such reports and returns, as the commission may require, this data, which must be submitted under oath, fully and correctly to disclose all transactions as well as the true ownership of the property involved. For violation of the provisions of the acts packers or their agents may be fined from $1,000 to $10,000, or may be sent to prison for terms of from one to five years, according to the nature of the violation.

The right to review rulings and decisions of the Livestock Commission is granted the Federal courts.

A system of registration of packers and stockyards is also provided for in the bill. An amendment to the bill which exempts stock raisers and livestock associations from the provisions of the bill was adopted, as was also another amendment requiring sessions of the commission to be held in public.

As passed by the Senate, the bill creates a commission of three persons, the Commissioners to be nominated by the President with the advice and consent of the Senate. The salary of each Commissioner is fixed at $10,000 per annum.

CUBA FILES A PROTEST ON HIGHER SUGAR DUTY

Contends Increased Tariff Would Ruin Industry and Hurt Trade With Us.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 24.—Cuba has filed a protest with this Government against the proposed increase to almost 4 cents a pound of the import duty on Cuban sugar either under the Emergency Tariff bill now before the Senate or any future tariff law.

This protest, it was made known today, is based on the claim of the Cuban Government that a higher duty on sugar would cause great hardship, if not ruin, to the Cuban sugar industry. Futhermore, it is Cuba's contention that it would affect adversely trade relations between the two countries. During the last fiscal year Cuba purchased $470,000,000 worth of goods in the United States.

In addition to the losses which it is argued that American manufacturers would sustain through Cuba's decreased purchases in this country, attention is called by the Cuban authorities to other losses, which, it is alleged, might result to American interests, including that to American capital invested in the sugar business in Cuba, transportation and railway freights.

HARDING AT ROCKLEDGE AFTER LEISURELY TRIP

ROCKLEDGE, Fla., Jan. 24.—President-elect Harding reached here this afternoon in his cruise on a houseboat down the Florida Coast and spent the night as the guest of Mrs. Harding's brother, Clifford Kling, who is a Winter resident.

The Victoria took her time during the day's sailing down the sleepy reaches of the Indian River and did not arrive here until after 4 P. M. Mr. Harding and his companions played a round of golf, however, before dinner.

Thus far the party has done no fishing and that part of the vacation program may be postponed until the houseboat leaves Miami next week on her way back to St. Augustine.

After his speech before a conference of business men in Atlanta the latter part of this week, he will go to Asheville, N. C., to rest until the middle of February. He will leave here today for Atlanta.

GEST TELLS OF THREATS.

Says Ticket Speculatprs Predict He'll Leave Chicago in a Hearse.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Jan. 24.—"A pleasant greeting! Threatened with death and a return trip to New York in a hearse if I don't let the ticket speculators rob the people who want to see 'Mecca.' But they can't scare me," said Morris Gest soon after his arrival here today from New York.

"I am told over the telephone," continued Mr. Gest: "'My dear little Mr. Gest, remember you are in Chicago now, and not in New York. Unless you let up on us speculators you will go back to New York in a hearse'—and he rang off when I told him I wanted to see him.

"Chief of Police Fitzmorris has promised to assign a policeman to protect me in my efforts to be fair and square with the Chicago theatre-goers. We will double the number of detectives watching the ticket lines, if necessary, to keep tickets out of the grafting hands of the speculators," said Mr. Gest, who has aroused the hostility of Chicago ticket speculators by announcing that all tickets sold by them will be refused at the Auditorium during the engagement of "Mecca."

DIPLOMATIC BUDGET IS CUT $3,440,198

House Appropriations Committee Ignores Requests for Larger Salaries.

ONE EMBASSY ELIMINATED

Only Ministers for Austria and Hungary—Bill Raises Peking to Embassy Rank.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 24.—In conformity with the policy of economy, the Committee on Appropriations today reported to the House the Diplomatic and Consular Appropriation bill, with great reductions made in the estimates submitted by the State Department. It carries recommendations for an expenditure of $8,543,650.79 for the fiscal year 1922. This is $3,440,198 less than the amount requested in the estimates and $826,887 less than the appropriations made for this service for the present fiscal year.

To the surprise of many who advocated increases in salaries for diplomatic secretaries and legislation intended to improve the foreign service, the committee ignored these requests, declaring, in effect, that the need for saving compelled extreme economy. It was also pointed out that many of the suggestions required new legislation and therefore could not be provided for in an appropriation bill.

The bill raises the legation in China to the rank of an embassy and abolishes the office of Ambassador to Austria-Hungary and provides for two Ministers to represent this country in Austria and Hungary, which become separate countries under the Peace Treaty. The embassy in Turkey is reduced to the rank of a legation.

The principal reductions made in the 1922 estimates are:

Salaries of Ambassadors	$17,500
Salaries of Ministers	5,000
Salaries of Secretaries in the diplomatic Service	68,275
Secretaries of clerks at embassies and legations	280,090
Salaries of interpreters at embassies and legations	10,200
Contingent expenses of foreign missions	450,000
Emergencies arising in Diplomatic and Consular Service	200,000
International Boundary Commission, United States and Mexico	45,210
Alaska-Canada boundary line	18,500
International Institute of Agriculture	8,900
International Joint Commission, United States and Great Britain	22,600
Salaries of Consular Service	0,000
Salaries of consular assistants	,425
Postal allowances	55, 000
Clerk hire at United States Consulates	600,000
Contingent expenses, United States Consulates	500,000
Expenses of Passport Control act	400,000

The principal items of reduction under 1921 appropriations are:

Salaries of Secretaries in the Diplomatic Service	$56,575
Clerks at embassies and legations	180,000
Interpreters to embassies and legations	8,700
Contingent expenses foreign missions	100,000
Purchase of embassy in Chile	130,000
Emergencies arising in the Diplomatic and Consular Service	300,000
Alaska-Canada boundary line	18,500

TO AID MILITARY TRAINING.

Baker Orders Designation for Efficiency of Honor High Schools.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 24.—Secretary Baker, to stimulate a competitive spirit among junior units of the Reserve Officers' Training Corps in institutions not rated as essentially military, has ordered the commanding general of each army corps area to designate Honor High Schools.

This commander will, not later than June 1 of each year, report to the Adjutant General for designation as Honor High Schools those in his area, not to exceed 10 per cent. of the total, which are most advanced in training and discipline and worthy of such rating. Selection will be based on reports submitted by the corps area reserve inspecting officers. The names of honor schools will be announced by respective Corps Area Commanders. Specially selected essentially military schools will be known as Honor Military Schools.

DEFEND HARVESTER PRICES.

Company Officials Say They Welcome Congressional Inquiry.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 24.—Investigation of complaints that the International Harvester Company had announced its intention of increasing the price of some of its farm machinery products was called for in a resolution introduced today by Representative Jones, Democrat, of Texas. The resolution directs the House Interstate Commerce Committee to conduct an inquiry and if prices have been increased to find out why.

CHICAGO, Jan. 24.—Officials of the International Harvester Company here, when told of the resolution introduced today in the House by Representative Jones of Texas, calling for an investigation of complaints of increased prices, issued the following statement:

"While we have no detailed information about the resolution, we will welcome any inquiry along the lines, being satisfied that the only result will be to convince the public of the fairness of our prices.

"Our prices are now and always have been based solely on the cost of production. Our current prices are practically the same as for the last ten months. There have been some slight increases on some machines and reductions on others, with the result that, considering our line as a whole, the price level for 1921 is substantially the same as for 1920."

STEEL MEN REJOICE AS PLANTS RESUME

WAGE RATES ARE LOWERED

Eastern Textile Factories Also Reopen After Operatives Accept Reductions in Pay.

Special to the New York Times.

CHICAGO, Jan. 24.—Five steel plants in the Calumet-Indiana sector put more men to work today in what was the largest resumption of operations noted since the slump hit the mill district. The Inland Steel Company put on 1,000 men in its plant at Indiana Harbor, in the structural iron department and the sheet mills. It reopened six open hearth furnaces, while continuing two out of three blast furnaces. The company now has 2,500 men at work. Those put back today returned on a wage reduction ranging from 18 to 25 per cent. Normally the company employs about 7,000 men.

Six hundred workmen at the plant of the Interstate Iron and Steel Company at East Chicago were jubilant when the company announced full resumption of activities. Since the middle of November the men had been working only a few days a week until a fortnight, or so ago, when the plant was shut down.

At Indiana Harbor the General American Tank Car Company, which has been going ahead, put on 300 extra men. It has large orders for tank cars.

The Steel and Tube Company of America, also at Indiana Harbor, announced it was now running at 75 per cent. of its usual number of workers. The men are said to have accepted a wage reduction averaging about 15 per cent.

The Hubbard Steel Foundries Company, which for some time has been operating its East Chicago plant at about 20 per cent. of capacity, announced today that it would resume full force about the middle of the week.

The Gary plant of the United States Steel Corporation reported it was running at between 80 and 90 per cent. of normal, and the Illinois Steel Company at South Chicago said it was running at 90 per cent. of normal.

In general, the Independents, who are now back to a competitive basis, have put into effect wage reductions of between 15 and 25 per cent., while the Steel Corporation, it is claimed, has not made cuts so far.

Passaic Woolen Mills Reduce Wages.

PASSAIC, N. J., Jan. 24.—Approximately 9,000 woolen workers received announcement today from the Industrial Council of Passaic Woolen Manufacturers of a general reduction in wage scales in the plants of members of the council. The council acts in industrial disputes for six large woolen mills, normally employing 18,000 workers, and which now are working at about half capacity.

The reductions announced include the loss of the $3 weekly bonus for adults and $2 bonus for minors, which has been paid since June, 1920; a reduction of 7½ per cent. in the regular wage scale, and a reduction from 1½ to 1¼ time allowance on all overtime work.

The plants involved are the Botany Worsted Mills, Forstmann & Huffmann Company, Gera Mills, Passaic Worsted Spinning Company, Garfield Worsted Mills and New Jersey Worsted Spinning Company.

There were no indications today of any intention on the part of the workers to resist the reduction.

BENNINGTON, Vt., Jan. 24. — Every textile mill here was in operation today for the first time since Christmas. One of the six underwear mills of the H. E. Bradford Company had been shut down for two months.

The underwear mills reopened under a new wage scale, making reductions ranging from 12 to 16⅔ per cent. One of the two hosiery mills is running on a schedule of five days a week and the other three days.

WORCESTER, Mass., Jan. 24.—The George E. Duffy Manufacturing Company resumed operations in its Cherry Valley woolen mills today, when 100 employes returned to work after a three weeks' shut-down, at a reduction of 17½ per cent. in their pay.

BRIDGEPORT, Conn., Jan. 24.—Operation of the Remington Arms-Union Metallic Cartridge Company, employing 3,500 persons three days a week, with a cut in wages, was resumed today. Warner Brothers, corset makers, with 3,000 employes, increased their time four hours weekly under a wage cut. The Locomobile Company cut wages 10 per cent., but continues on regular time schedules for 400 hands.

HUNDREDS STRIVE FOR JOBS.

Special to The New York Times.

BALTIMORE, Jan. 24.—Two thousand men struggled today for the 100 laboring jobs at 30 cents an hour which the city is offering through the Municipal Employment Bureau in an effort to relieve the unemployment situation.

Long before the bureau opened for its first day's business, the sidewalk in front of the door was packed by lines of men on both sides for half a square, even spreading out into the highway. Blacks and whites were in equal numbers.

When the door opened, five white and five colored men were admitted at a time. Those waiting struggled with one another in good nature, but none the less fiercely, to get in. Three policemen were flattened against the door and barely prevented the job-seekers from breaking it down and mobbing the office.

WHO PAYS THE BILLS? DEMANDS HILLMAN

Amalgamated Head Says Makers Are Not Footing Clothing Trouble Expenses.

A general meeting of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers of America will be held in Madison Square Garden on Thursday afternoon, the union announced yesterday. The speakers will include Frank P. Walsh, ex-Chairman of the War Labor Board; Abraham Cahan, editor of the Jewish Daily Forward; Frank Bellman, editor of the Amalgamated's Italian weekly organ; Joseph Schlossberg, editor of The Advance, another union weekly, and Sidney Hillman, President of the Amalgamated. In addition to the speeches an entertainment for the unemployed unionists will be provided.

"Developments have now brought the facts in the clothing controversy out where the public can see them," Mr. Hillman said yesterday. "But there is one question still which is not answered, and that is, who is paying the money to keep this lockout going? The facts of record cited by the Impartial Chairman prove that the lockout was engineered by a small group for the purpose of smashing the union, not for the purpose of producing clothes. The hold of these adventurers on the New York association is slipping. Who, then, is paying to keep up the campaign?

"The present leaders in the association remarked to a clothing manufacturer several days ago: 'Somebody else is paying the expenses. The Manufacturers' Association is not paying them. Some other interests are putting up the money.' What the public should know and what we certainly would like to know is, who are the other interests?

"It is announced that the Manufacturers' Association has expelled two members. These members were expelled for working, for opening their shops, for making agreements with the Amalgamated. What the manufacturers did not publish were the names of a dozen more of their own members who have come to agreement with the union. In a short time the Manufacturers' Association may have to expel its entire membership."

KILLED WHILE OUT ON BAIL.

"Big Bill" McGovern, Chicago Saloon Keeper, Struck by Truck.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Jan. 24.—William E. McGovern—"Big Bill," as he was known to patrons of his Liberty Inn cabaret at Clark and Erie Streets—stepped into the path of a mail truck today and received injuries from which he died two hours later. He was 55 years old.

McGovern, who is said to have accumulated a fortune of $500,000 since the advent of prohibition, had been sentenced to serve two years in the House of Correction for violation of an injunction issued by Judge Landis against liquor sales, and had been placed under bonds of $20,000 on other charges of violating the prohibition laws. He was released from custody a week ago, pending an appeal.

The irony of fate, exemplified by his death under a Government truck was commented on by Government and police authorities with whom he had come in contact dozens of times in the last twenty years. It took the State authorities five years to place him in the House of Correction for sixty days in 1912. At the time of his death he was under indictment in connection with two cases, and had been sentenced in two others, yet was still out on bond.

GIVE $25,000 IN AN HOUR.

Albany Citizens Respond to Hoover's Appeal for Starving Children.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, Jan. 24.—"I'd rather have the American flag planted in the hearts of those three and a half million starving children than on any citadel in Europe," Herbert Hoover told an immense audience tonight in Chancellor's Hall of the State Educational Building. The campaign to raise funds in Albany for the starving children of Europe netted about $25,000 within an hour.

Mr. Hoover said the nation was asked to give the price of one battleship. The country was spending $9,000,000 a year for battleships and for defense.

CUTS TROLLEYMEN'S WAGES

United Traction Company of Albany Tells of Heavy Losses.

ALBANY, Jan. 24.—Notices of a reduction in wages from 60 cents to 45 cents an hour, effective Jan. 29, were served on street car employes of the United Traction Company today. The company operates in Albany, Troy, Rensselaer, Watervliet, Waterford, Cohoes and Green Island.

The company says it suffered a loss of $327,256 in operating expenses for the last six months of 1920 and asserts that the recent decision of the up-State Public Service Commission will further decrease its gross revenue by not less than $50,000 a year.

Harding to Use Lincoln Stand.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 24.—The small stand first used at the inauguration of Abraham Lincoln and at every inauguration since except when William Howard Taft became President, will be used on March 4 when Warren G. Harding takes the oath of office. The exception in the case of Mr. Taft was because the ceremony took place in the Senate chamber on account of the weather. The stand is in the posession of Watson S. Clark of this city, son of the architect of the Capitol.

UNTERMYER SPURNS A LIMITED INQUIRY

Says if Present Investigators Cannot Be Trusted Legislature Should Appoint New Ones.

SHOULD NOT BE SHACKLED

Blames Big Financial Interests for Real Estate Board's Attack on the Lockwood Committee.

Samuel Untermyer, chief counsel to the Lockwood Committee, in a letter to Senator C. C. Lockwood, made public yesterday, declared flatly that he would not be a part to the committee's inquiry into the life insurance companies and savings banks if the Legislature curtailed the powers of the committee so that "the resourceful gentlemen from whom the information is to sought . . . are offered a loophole for refusing to answer questions," and so converting the investigation "into a series of lawsuits that would last long beyond the life of the committee." "It would be worse than idle to waste the money of the State by proceeding on any such lines and I for one will not be a party to it," he said.

"If, after the experience the Legislature has had with this committee and its counsel," he said, "and the ample evidence of its integrity with which they have hewn to the line, they cannot be trusted, the Legislature should appoint another committee and other counsel whom it can trust but we ought not to proceed further with shackles upon us that may destroy our usefulness.

"I have, as you know freely, given of my time and money and am willing to continue to do so in the interest of this important inquiry but I cannot spend my life at this business. It is a choice between limited powers that may be questioned in the courts at every turn, and broad powers that we are expected to use with justice, judgment and restraint.

"You will remember that I have predicted to you again and again from the beginning that as soon as we reach this branch of our inquiry we would meet with the powerful opposition that now confronts us, always operating under cover. Those gentlemen always find peril lurking behind every effort to investigate their affairs, however constructive and well intended may be the real purpose.

"The novice would be tempted to suspect that if they had nothing to hide they would be less timid, but I happen to know that they are temperamentally suspicious and that their attitude does not necessarily imply that they have anything to hide. But whatever may be their purpose we cannot proceed without the power, and I wish you would make this plain to the committee at your meeting tomorrow night. The success or failure of the investigation now rests with the Legislature."

Mr. Untermyer made an explanation of the attack on the committee by the New York City Real Estate Board. In part he said:

"Within the last week the committee has prepared and sent to the owners of the principal office and loft buildings in the City of New York, a comprehensive questionnaire calling upon them for balance sheets of the operations of their buildings and particularly for lists of leases recently made by them and the rents reserved in these leases as compared with rents of previous years. The obvious purpose of this information is to ascertain to what extent these gentlemen have been profiteering in rents. So long as the inquiry was confined to the small owners of tenements and to residential properties the committee had the earnest support of the big men, but since it appears that they may be affected, the tide is turned. You see, it depends on 'whose ox is gored.'"

Asserting that the big financial interests dominated the Real Estate Board, he added: "With such men on the board as our esteemed friend Mr. Walter Stabler of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company and men of his type constituting the Board of Governors, one need not look much further to realize that the financial interests are a potent factor in the deliberations of this board and that whatever course the financial interests decide to pursue would be reflected in the action of the board."

Protesting against the two questionnaires sent to owners of office buildings by the Lockwood Committee, Stewart Browne, President of the United Real Estate Owners' Association, said yesterday that he was advising all who received the questionnaires to refuse to furnish the information.

"The sending of the questionnaires is the most disgraceful and impertinent thing I have seen for years," he said. "The committee is acting without warrant of law. It has no power to go into the office building situation and is limited to the housing investigation. I am going to protest to the Speaker and the Senate leaders that this is a wilful misuse of public funds.'

"There are today tens of thousands of square feet vacant in business buildings in New York City, and there will be more by May 1, owing to the depression in business. Instead of making maximum rent laws, there should be minimum laws for business property, as such rents are rapidly falling."

31 BRONX PLUMBERS HELD.

Bail for Individuals Indicted With Hettrick Fixed at $2,000.

Pleas of not guilty were entered yesterday before Justice McAvoy in the Criminal Branch of the Supreme Court by the thirty-one firms and individuals, members of the Bronx branch of the Master Plumbers Association who were indicted last Friday for violating the Donnelly act. Bail for the individuals was fixed at $2,000 except in the case of John T. Hettrick, originator of the Code of Practice among various trade groups. His bail of $100,000 was continued. This is the fourth indictment against Hettrick. The plumbers reserved a week in which to make any motions deemed necessary or to change their pleas.

The blanket indictment alleges that prior to Dec. 1, 1919, the defendants were engaged in selling and installing plumbing supplies and materials in the Bronx and were competitors. It is charged that on Dec. 1, 1919, they entered into an agreement to refrain from competing with each other.

The indictment further charges that all bids exceeding $250 had to be approved by Hettrick and whenever Hettrick requested they would raise the amount of any bid they proposed submitting before it went to the purchaser.

Those indicted are: V. F. Berneaser and V. F. Berneaser, Inc., 1,156 Hoe Avenue; Patrick Mularkey and Mularkey & Co., Inc., 927 Southern Boulevard; John Richman and John Richman Plumbing and Contracting Co., 1,739 Topping Avenue; Barnet W. Rod and Barnet W. Rod Company, 733 East 161st Street; Patrick R. Tully and P. R. Tully Plumbing Company, Inc., 157 East Ninety-sixth Street; Joseph W. Rowman, Edwin Maliphant and Rowman-Maliphant Plumbing Company, Inc., 342 East 176th Street; Morris Marcus, William Barkin and Marcus-Barkin, Inc., 454 East 168th Street; Samuel Glass, Benjamin Weiss, and Glass & Weiss, Inc., 542 Brooks Avenue; Joseph Donahue, 1,335 Washington Avenue; John Goeltz, 1,335 Washington Avenue; Michael Litvin, 4,175 Third Avenue; Mark Litvin, same address; Albert F. Delschel, 384 East 162th Street; Eugene Duklauer, 221 East Fifty-eighth Street; Charles Muller, 1,114 Garrison Avenue; Sam Minskoff, 1,312 Clinton Avenue; Henry Salzman, 3,480 Third Avenue; Albert Beyrodt, 759 Hewitt Place; Jacob P. Muller, 408 East 146th Street, and John T. Hettrick.

Justice McAvoy yesterday denied the motion to inspect the Grand Jury minutes in the cases of the fifty-two members of the Master Plumbers Association in Manhattan who were indicted for a similar alleged violation of the Anti-Trust law. He also denied the motion made by counsel for Herbert Smith, William J. Doran and William H. Chapman and John T. Hettrick, under separate indictment, for conspiracy to inspect the Grand Jury minutes.

'MY LADY'S DRESS' IS NOW REFORMED

The American Dress League, a new organization for dressing the woman of today in a way that will be decent and pretty at the same time, and inexpensive and easy to get into, held its first public meeting at 23 West Thirtieth Street last night and had a very good time.

It began with speeches and good principles, and ended with a perfectly lovely exhibition of gowns. It was a women's party, and a few women wearing a new design gown which the league considers desirable were present, as well as other women who do not wear it but who will, it is hoped. Before the evening was over the women with the gowns were standing on tables and turning around like manikins, taking off the uppers and showing the unders to a chorus of excited questions and answers, and every one was happy.

The new gown, which may be made of any kind of material, and which looks "individual" on every woman who wears it, consists of a satin blouse and knickerbockers, and over these a simple drapery affair which snaps together with a couple of fasteners at the shoulder and the waist.

Mrs. Owen Kildare was the speaker of the evening and told the women that it was time for them to throw back the insults of men who talked about the indecency of the dress of American women.

"It will reduce the cost of living and we will eliminate a great deal of crime, for which they say the immodest dresses are responsible," she said.

Then the dress review began. One plump woman who had traveled all over Europe wearing the model dress, with a brush and comb, an ironing board and an electric flatiron in a suitcase, said that the new gown did away with pressing except in traveling.

"You see," she said, "when I am home I slip off the upper part like this"—she pulled at the four snaps fastening the upper part—"and here I am just in my knickerbockers with nothing on to rumple."

"Oh-o-o-o-o!" gasped the women in delight.

There were all grades of figures wearing the model gown. Mrs. Owen Kildare, small and plump, was in a pretty little flowered frock that one would only know was model because she showed the little knickerbockers beneath, and little Miss Kildare was also in a knickerbockered gown, which makes a fine skating suit.

The new gown is said to promote good Americanism, and the women who joined each signed a pledge that they would not repeat gossip. Dr. Anna Brown took exception to the gossip part of the pledge.

"It is too much," said Dr. Brown. "I have no more desire to gossip than any one else, but I don't see why I should promise not to gossip just because I am wearing a certain gown."

DISAGREE ON MORAL DRESS.

Clergymen Condemn Women's Present Styles on Ground of Health.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 24.—A jury of nearly 1,200 clergymen, asked by the Women's Dress Committee to judge the clothes of the fair sex, has disagreed. Although the majority do not flay feminine fashion as being immodest they say that if women do err they do so against health rather than against morals.

"Women's waists should cover their necks," unless they want to get pneumonia," advises the Rev. M. G. Kyle, Professor of Xenia United Presbyterian Seminary, St. Louis. Skirts that do not gather up the dirt of the streets are favored by the Rev. Herbert E. Benton, pastor of the Universalist Church of the Messiah. "But such abbreviation of the skirt should be guided by good judgment," he adds. "It can be and usually is done in such a manner as to warrant no charge of immodesty."

POLICEMAN TESTIFIES.

Manchester Turns Livingston Divorce Trial Into Defense of Himself.

The trial yesterday of Mrs. Mamie Livingston's divorce suit against Harry Livingston, owner of a chain of stores, in which he counterclaims against her, was turned by Police Lieutenant Edward J. Manchester into a defense of his actions in the case, as a result of which he had been brought up on charges before the Police Commissioner. When asked by George B. Hayes, attorney for Mrs. Livingston, if he had been employed by Livingston, he said:

"Don't you dare say I was employed by Mr. Livingston. That term, so far as I am concerned, is a product of your imagination."

Police Lieutenant Manchester, testifying for the defendant on his counterclaim, was asked about a letter he wrote to Mrs. Livingston, in which he said, "I am not writing this letter to scare you, for I am no squealer. Anything you have told me is safe with me."

"Did you tell those things, as you allege, to Mr. Livingston?" asked Attorney Hayes.

"Not until she made a false complaint against me," said the witness.

HITS CHICAGO "TAMMANY."

Rabbi Wise Compares Republican Gang There to Democratic Here.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Jan. 24.—The Democratic Tammany Hall in control of New York politics was likened to the Republican Tammany Hall in control of city politics in Chicago by Rabbi Stephen S. Wise of New York in an address before the City Club today.

"There are two secrets to the control which the corrupt political machines of the two biggest cities in the United States exert over the majority, constituting the honest and non-grafting populace," said Rabbi Wise.

"The fight for good government in American cities is losing ground because the masses are weary of the futility of anti-graft negation and unsatisfied even with the technique of improved city administration. They are weary of fighting the Murphys in New York and equally corrupt bosses of equally corrupt political machines of both parties in Chicago. They are after bigger game. They are after the scalps of Murphy's bosses in New York, powerful, privileged, corrupt, outwardly respectable and arrogantly posing as leaders in the city's life.

"Is not Chicago situated in the same way? It has become difficult to stir the masses to fight the little grafter while the mighty grafters go unwhipped. The high brows are against the low-brow grafters, but the low brows are cool to the crafty high-brow 'reformers.'

"New York's Hylan and Chicago's Thompson are because the Tammany Halls of both cities are dead in earnest and the good government folk are in earnest dead.

"We shall have the end of the Hylans in New York and the Thompsons in Chicago when we shall have an end of the old partnership—the tripartite combination of the political party, the Police Department and the criminal classes."

To Recount Ballots for Justice.

In the application by former Supreme Court Justice Edward J. McGoldrick for a recount of the ballots cast at the last election for Supreme Court Justice, it was agreed yesterday to recount the ballots cast in Manhattan and the Bronx. Justice Finch, to whom the matter was referred, will sign the order tomorrow after the attorneys have determined the manner of recount.

Publisher, Returning From Europe, Says British Regard Revolt as Issue Nearing Settlement.

S. S. McClure, the publisher, who returned yesterday on the Carmania after spending several weeks in England, France, Germany, Austria and Switzerland, said that leading men of England regard the Irish question as a dead issue and seek now to improve economic conditions at home.

He said that former Premier Venizelos, whom he saw at Nice, gave him the impression that he did not contemplate returning to Greece in the near future, while the view of informed men in Europe is that his country will need his services and recall him.

In an interview with President Heinisch of Austria, in Vienna, Mr. McClure said he was informed that the present conditions in that country were so tragic that they could not continue long, and, while the Austrian people were grateful to America for her help, what they really wanted was not charity, but aid to carry on.

Mr. McClure said the President was a tall, fine looking man, in the prime of life, who appeared to be equally at home in discussing either agricultural or industrial questions. The two great Americans in the eyes of the Austrians, Mr. McClure said, were George Washington and Herbert Hoover. He added that if Austria was not rescued from her present position soon she would be forced to become united with Germany, which would cause trouble with France and Czecho-Slovakia.

In speaking generally upon conditions in Europe, Mr. McClure said:

"The statement so low in Germany that American money will enable you to live and travel there for one-third to one-half of what it is in the United States. The German Government is printing 30,000,000,000 marks per year. Their taxes do not pay more than a sixth of their Government expenses. The remainder comes from this printed money.

"The railroads are losing 8,000,000,000 marks a year. All the railroads in Europe are being operated at heavy loss. German railroads have twice the number of employes they had before the war.

"Fuel is one of the most vital questions in Europe. When I interviewed President Ebert, he spoke first of the lack of coal. Ebert gives the impression of a man who would be the head of some small enterprise. He is a quiet, intellectual man. In Germany there is little business activity in the industrial regions. This is not because mills and mines were not able to operate on full time and even on the holidays.

"Austria is cut off from its supply of coal, and what by tariffs and the lack of everything to buy with. Furthermore, the railroad system of southeastern Europe has broken down. These conditions combined with the hostility of our delegates really put Austria in a state of blockade, almost as complete as Belgium's during the war.

"The people of Austria see no way out of their present misery. Some of the natural barriers are removed. If Austria could get the food sent from America for the 300,000 children, the task would be infinitely worse.

"The economic conditions of Ireland are so much better than those of parts of Europe that one almost thinks there can be no serious Irish problem. As a matter of fact there is less anxiety on the part of British statesmen in regard to Ireland than to the questions arising out of the war and questions of unemployment. It is generally believed that the Home Rule bill will result in settling the Irish question."

In conclusion Mr. McClure said that reports about his having lost the use of his hands for painting were untrue.

Negroes Lynched by 'Unknown Persons,' Says Warrenton (N. C.) Coroner's Jury Verdict.

WARRENTON, N. C., Jan. 24.—All efforts to apprehend members of the mob which last night broke into the jail, removed two negroes held there after an armed clash with whites early Sunday and shot them to death, were set aside today in the anxiety of authorities to forestall a recurrence of violence.

Seven of the nine negroes left in the jail by the mob were today hurried to Raleigh for safe keeping, and this afternoon five additional arrests were made and the prisoners also rushed to Raleigh. Four other negroes for whom warrants are out have escaped.

The Warrenton Home Guard, ordered out by Governor Morrison last night, was under arms all day, and the Henderson Home Guard also stood in readiness to respond to any call. However, tonight no further outbreak was regarded as probable.

The Coroner's jury held an inquest this morning and quickly returned a verdict of "death at the hands of unknown persons." All the witnesses testified to their inability to identify any members of the mob.

CHICAGO CLAIMANT DEAD.

George W. Streeter Fought Many Years for Part of Lake Front.

CHICAGO, Jan. 24.—Captain George Wellington Streeter, chief figure in one of the most picturesque legal struggles ever staged in Chicago, concerning the ownership of a parcel of land on the lake front known as the billion-dollar triangle, died Saturday night on a houseboat moored at a dock in the East Indiana Harbor Canal, it became known today. The houseboat had been Streeter's headquarters for campaigns against the City of Chicago in his repeated efforts to gain the lake shore property he claimed was his by right of first possession.

It was reported that his widow would continue the fight for possession of Streeterville, or "the district of Lake Michigan," as it was termed by Captain Streeter.

The site of Captain Streeter's "deestrict" is part of Chicago's famous "Gold Coast" and is now covered by more than a dozen skyscraper apartment buildings and hotels.

On one occasion 500 police besieged Streeterville. William H. Niles, Commanding General of the "district's army," proclaimed himself "military governor of the district of Lake Michigan," and, with fifty followers, erected breastworks surmounted by barbed wire, and stood off the police for several days, before desertions in the ranks so weakened the defending force that one policeman finally executed a flank attack and carried the fort.

MARINE EXPOSITION OPENS.

Exhibits Include Model of Our First Electrically Driven Vessel.

The third National Marine Exposition opened yesterday afternoon in Grand Central Palace. If the interest shown at the opening is maintained it will be the most successful exposition of its kind ever held here. P. H. W. Ross, President of the National Marine League, opened the exhibition. The opening address was made by Walter Parker, Vice President of the Mississippi Valley Association and President of the New Orleans Chamber of Commerce.

Two floors of the Palace are taken up by the exposition. Everything pertaining to ships and shipbuilding is shown in the booths. Ship models are among the most interesting features. There are more than 100 of these, and some show cross sections giving a between deck view. There is a fifteen-foot model of the steamship Olympic, said to be technically perfect. A model in operation shows the electrical apparatus driving the steamship Eclipse on her first voyage from this port. The Eclipse is said to be the first American electrically propelled merchant vessel. She is now on a voyage to India.

DENIES INSURING NAVY WITH LLOYD'S

Daniels Contradicts Report That British Thus Had Our Naval Secrets.

EXPLAINS ORIGIN OF RUMOR

It Arose From a Misunderstanding of Methods of Insuring Ships In Contractors' Hands.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 24. — Secretary Daniels and other high officials of the Navy Department, familiar with the facts in the case, today flatly denied a report brought to their attention to the effect that the United States Government had been insuring all of its naval fighting craft in Lloyd's, and that, acting as agents of Lloyd's, the British Admiralty had made inspection of American warships and as a result of such alleged inspection was in complete possession of all the facts about this country's naval construction and naval forces.

This report has been circulated from time to time and in its latest form carried the assertion that American naval officers had protested against "putting our naval condition in the hands of our only naval rival," as well as the declaration that the practice had been continued. Secretary Daniels denied unequivocally that American warships were insured in Lloyd's, or that the British Admiralty, acting as agents for Lloyd's, made inspections of American warships. Other officials of the department supported the Secretary in his denial of all the allegations made.

It was explained that the report, which had been cropping out in one form or another, was the result of an unfortunate expression used in a speech about a year and a half ago by the president of an American shipbuilding concern which has had contracts for the construction of American naval fighting craft. In this speech reference was made to the insurance of American fighting craft, and the impression was created that these ships were being insured in the British Lloyd's.

It was explained at the Navy Department today that for a number of years the Navy Department, although this was not the practice, had required contractors engaged in the construction of certain American warships to insure them against loss during construction, which might be caused by fire while the ships were on the ways, and against damage to the vessels while they were in the hands of the contractors. This insurance, it was explained, was placed with American companies. These American companies, it was further explained, in some instances farmed out part of the insurance with foreign insurance concerns, including the British Lloyd's, German, Austrian and other companies.

But it was stated that even while this practice was in vogue, no inspection of the vessels during construction, or after, by agents of the insurance companies, or by British or other Admiralty officials, was made. The only time that any inspection was made, it was explained, was when ships so insured were damaged by fire or otherwise in the course of construction. The inspection permitted them, it was explained by Navy Department officials, was limited to an examination of the particular part of the vessel damaged and not of the entire ship.

It was stated that no completed naval vessel for the American Navy had ever been insured with the British Lloyd's or other foreign concerns, and that none of the insurance ever covered the vessels as marine risks after their completion. It was stated that no injury had been done to an American warship in launching for a period of twenty years, and that the number of instances where there had been damage by fire during building could be counted on the fingers of one hand.

GETS PHILADELPHIA BONDS.

Local Syndicate Bids $102.9199 for $5,000,000 Issue at 5 Per Cent.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 24.—This city's credit was carried to a new high level today by bids for a five-million-dollar thirty-year 5 per cent. bond issue, the highest, $102.9199, being submitted by a Philadelphia banking investment syndicate against strong competition. The issue was oversubscribed nearly five times.

The high bid for all or none was made by a group composed of the Franklin Securities Corporation, Elkins, Morris & Co., Edward B. Smith & Co., Biddle & Henry and the Commercial Trust Company.

The bids opened in Mayor Moore's office at noon were in striking contrast with those offered for the last municipal bond issue of $7,000,000, which attracted many "piecemeal" bids, but no "all or none" offers from syndicates.

A syndicate composed of Drexel & Co., Brown Bros. & Co. and the Guaranty Trust Company offered $102.11 "subject to approval of counsel" for the entire issue.

An offer for the entire issue came from Dillon, Read & Co. and Kuhn, Loeb & Co., who offered $100.6477.

A bid for $102.32 was received from a group formed of Harris, Forbes & Co., the National City Company, Montgomery & Co. and Graham, Parsons & Co.

MINORITY DEMANDS FIGURES

Adding Machine Stockholders Want Data on Investments.

Minority stockholders of the Federal Adding Machine Corporation of 2,514 Fourth Avenue, at a stormy annual meeting in East Orange yesterday, demanded explanations of expenditures and investments of the corporation. Clarence P. King, President of the corporation, refused the request. Following the election of Directors, which the minority stockholders protested because, they contended, the meeting had not been regularly conducted, it was moved to appoint a committee of the minority to confer with the President in an effort to unite the opposing factions.

Before the resolution had been passed President King indicated persons standing near him whom he wished to serve on the committee. The persons named were not acceptable to the minority stockholders and a motion was passed to adjourn the meeting. After the meeting the stockholders refused to make any statement, but it was understood that a protest meeting would be called. Marcus Rosenthal of 489 Tremont Avenue, East Orange, is said to be leader of the minority faction.

CLOTHING CO.'S REPORT.

Hart Schaffner & Marx Show Net Profits of $2,013,055.

The annual report of Hart Schaffner & Marx for the year ended Nov. 30 shows net profits, after charges and Federal taxes, of $2,013,055, which was equivalent, after preferred dividends, to $11.87 a share on the common. In the preceding year the earnings applicable to the common equaled $13.11 a share. After all dividends the surplus last year was $1,181,075, as against $1,367,529 in the preceding year.

Inventories show a sharp reduction, this item amounting to $2,691,955 in the current report, whereas in 1919 inventories amounted to $6,048,361. Accounts and bills receivable of $11,175,923 are greater by nearly $6,000,000 than in the 1919 balance sheet. Among assets there is no listing of Liberty bonds, whereas in 1919 such holdings were placed at $700,044.

At a meeting of the stockholders yesterday the action of the Directors in writing off $5,000,000 of good-will from the assets of the company, thus reducing the item of good-will from $15,000,000 to $10,000,000, was ratified. The present Directors were re-elected. At the annual meeting of the Board of Directors, which followed the meeting of the stockholders, the old officers were re-elected and the usual quarterly dividend of 1 per cent. was declared on the common stock, payable on Feb. 28 to stockholders of record at the close of business on Feb. 19.

Philippine National Bank Expansion

Advices received by A. Kopp, New York agent for the Philippine National Bank, state that the proposal to increase the institution's capital from $10,000,000 to $25,000,000 has been passed by the Philippine Congress and that all of the new stock will be subscribed by June 1 next. In the latest available statement of the bank's condition, dated June 30, 1920, the Philippine National Bank had total resources of $118,749,138, loans and discounts of $73,084,611 and deposits of $75,143,387.

CITIZENS UNION FIGHTS ENRIGHT'S PENSION

The Citizens Union decided yesterday to begin a taxpayer's action to restrain Police Commissioner Enright from allowing himself a special pension at the same rate as that provided for a Chief Inspector in the Police Department. The action is to be brought by William Jay Schieffelin, Chairman of the Union. A statement issued by the Union says:

"Police Lieutenant Enright was appointed Police Commissioner on Jan. 24, 1918. As a retired Lieutenant of Police his pension then would have been $1,225 per year. Not satisfied with that, he obtained a special act of the Legislature designed to permit his retirement on the pension of a Chief Inspector, which is now at the rate of $3,750 per year. This rate is based in part upon an increase in the salary of the Chief Inspector, which Mr. Enright himself obtained from the Board of Estimate and Apportionment.

"Last month Commissioner Enright retired himself at the $3,750 rate.

"Dr. Schieffelin's counsel, Leonard M. Wallstein, will contend in court that the special act is ineffective to accomplish the purpose intended by the Hylan administration.

"Though the amount of money involved is comparatively small, the Citizens Union approved the proposed litigation on the Enright pension, not only because it believes that an important principle is involved, but also because it regards this as an attempted pension grab, which is but typical of the whole attitude of the Hylan police administration, in misusing the prestige and power of public office for the private advantage of favorites."

OFFER $30,000,000 BONDS.

Lee, Higginson & Co. heads a banking syndicate which offers $30,000,000 in American Agricultural Chemical Company twenty-year 7½ per cent. first refunding mortgage sinking fund gold bonds at 97¾ to yield about 7¾ per cent.

The bonds are callable, as a whole or in part, at 105 prior to Feb. 1, 1926. During the next five years they will be callable at 103½, during the third five-year period at 102½, during the next four years at 101 and in the final year before maturity at 100½. The Old Colony Trust Company of Boston is trustee for the issue.

The proceeds of these bonds will be used to retire, by call or purchase, the outstanding $5,035,900 convertible debenture bonds of the company, due Feb. 1, 1924, and to provide additional working capital for the increasing demands of the company's business. This financing will increase the company's net working capital to more than $55,000,000, as compared with about $30,000,000 on June 30 last.

Total net assets of the American Agricultural Chemical Company based on the June 30 last balance sheet, but including estimated proceeds of present proposed financing, are said to be valued at $113,254,547. Net profits applicable to interest charges for the fiscal year ended June 30 last, after deducting $2,308,351 for depreciation and depletion, were $7,164,793.

DRY ACT ACQUITTAL.

Jury Find Cafe Proprietor and Waiter Had Whisky for Years.

Jacob Grab, proprietor of a café, restaurant and dance hall in Mechanic Street, New Rochelle, and Herman Hamburger, a waiter, were acquitted of a charge of violating the Volstead act by a jury before Judge Learned Hand in the United States District Court yesterday. Hamburger was charged with having sold a glass of whisky to Isidore Linstein, a prohibition enforcement agent, on Sept. 27 last, and Grab was accused of the illegal possession of eighty-eight bottles of wine.

Einstein, who said he was disguised as a telephone lineman, testified that he seized the wine in Grab's cellar after he had bought a drink of whisky from the waiter. Grab and Hamburger denied the sale of the whisky, and Grab testified that the wine had been in his cellar for several years.

E. G. GRACE TRACES SCHWAB'S VOUCHER

Corporation, according to the testimony of Mr. Grace, who explained that while Mr. Schwab still retained his place as Chairman of the Board of Directors of the Bethlehem Steel Company, the controlling organization, he did not pass on any contracts of the Shipbuilding Corporation.

The witness was asked by Chairman Walsh who passed on these contracts and he explained that he did so himself because Mr. Grace further explained, it was his duty as President of the Bethlehem Steel Company.

"After Mr. Schwab became Director General of the Emergency Fleet Corporation did he participate in any way in the affairs of the Bethlehem Steel Corporation in so far as they related to ship work?" asked Chairman Walsh.

"He severed himself entirely from our activities," replied Mr. Grace.

"Did he issue any instructions or give any orders to officials?"

"Absolutely not," replied the witness.

"Do you know whether Mr. Schwab is barred or debarred from the Shipping Board or Emergency Fleet Corporation or from the Treasury of the United States any payment by way of salary or in reimbursement on account of expenses incurred by him as Director General of the Emergency Fleet Corporation?"

"Mr. Schwab's salary as Chairman of the Bethlehem Steel Corporation was never changed," replied Mr. Grace.

"I misunderstood my question," said Chairman Walsh, who repeated it, in reply Mr. Grace said:

"As told me by Mr. Schwab, he never did receive any reimbursement on account of his expenses as Director General."

"Did you ever see this voucher which has been brought to the attention of the committee?"

"I did and approved it for payment," replied Mr. Grace.

"Were those expenses of Mr. Schwab which appeared on the face of the voucher expenses with which the Emergency Fleet Corporation was charged?"

Not Charged to Ship Construction.

"Not a penny of them. Nor were they ever asked on our part to assume one penny of that expense."

"Did you know what the vouchers cover?"

"I do in a general way."

"Were they entered upon the books as a charge apparently to ship construction?"

"$100,000? No, they were not entered as a charge against ship construction—no part of them."

Mr. Grace was asked if the $100,000 was ever entered in such a way as to appear as a charge against ship construction, and he answered in the negative.

He explained that an analysis of the Bethlehem Shipbuilding Corporation's expenses for the month of October, 1918, included the item of $100,000. It was but one of many items in the administrative and general expense accounts submitted to the auditors of the Emergency Fleet Corporation with the understanding that those items, which carried no supporting data, should be thrown out.

"Was there any reason why the General Controller of the Emergency Fleet Corporation should not know about this item, until February, 1920?" asked Chairman Walsh.

"The General Controller certainly did know about it in December, 1918," replied the witness.

Chairman Walsh then suggested that there might have been a different General Controller in 1918 from that in 1920, and Mr. Grace continued with the explanation that his company had a complete understanding with the Emergency Fleet Corporation that any item disallowed would not be claimed by the company.

Voucher Traced Through Books.

The witness explained that in distributing the item of $269,543 among the various departments of the business the item of $100,000 was charged to the Bethlehem Shipbuilding Corporation, the Bethlehem subsidiary in charge of shipbuilding, and not to the cost of ships, as had been testified by Colonel Abadie.

"As a matter of fact, the Bethlehem Company never claimed this $100,000 as an item of cost against the Government ships," said the witness, "the amount having been charged to profit and loss."

Photostat copies of the various vouchers and other papers, showing the history of the item, were submitted by Mr. Grace, who explained them to the committee. He first placed in the record a photostat copy of the original $269,543 voucher of the Bethlehem Steel Company, covering the expenses of C. M. Schwab. It was dated Nov. 30, 1918, was made out to Mr. Schwab, whose address was given as 111 Broadway, and the voucher indicated that the sum was to cover "special expenses." It bore the O.K. Mr. Grace, who signed with his initials, and F. A. Schick, who affixed his signature similarly.

The next exhibit was a photostat copy of the Bethlehem Steel Company's journal-entry voucher, transferring $100,000 of the $269,543 to the Bethlehem Shipbuilding Corporation. The number of this document was 1049, and its serial number was B-44-B.

Mr. Grace also placed in evidence a photostat copy of the Bethlehem Shipbuilding Corporation journal-entry voucher, charging this item of $100,000 to their general expense account.

The last exhibit was a photographic copy of the Bethlehem Shipbuilding Corporation's statement of general expense items for November, 1918, entered on its general books, but not included in the items of cost billed against the Emergency Fleet Corporation contracts. In this list appears the $100,000 item.

"From the foregoing," said Mr. Grace, "it clearly appears that no part of the $100,000 was ever charged against the Emergency Fleet Corporation contracts or ever claimed by the Bethlehem company as a charge against those contracts."

Grace Tells of Morse Dispute.

The dispute with the Shipping Board, growing out of the Bethlehem Shipbuilding Corporation's unwillingness to have its books audited by Perley Morse & Co., was explained by Mr. Grace, who was asked by Chairman Walsh:

"Early in 1920 did Perley Morse & Co. have men at your plants making audits?"

"They did," replied Mr. Grace.

"Had they been in your plants prior to this audit?"

"They were auditing in our Fore River plants."

"Had they been in any other plants?"

"Not to my knowledge."

"Did you see them in the Bethlehem plant?"

"Not to my knowledge."

Mr. Grace then said the presence of the auditors in the Bethlehem plants was perhaps called to his attention by the company's general controller, F. A. Schick.

"Did you take any steps to have this audit terminated?"

"We did."

"Whom did you take it up with?"

"The Shipping Board," replied the witness, who went on to explain that he did not personally go to see officials of the Shipping Board, but wrote a letter on the subject to the officials of the Emergency Fleet Corporation.

Mr. Grace was asked if he had ever written an unsigned letter to any official of the Shipping Board, such as had been described by Colonel Abadie as "insidious propaganda." He said he had not, but approved the efforts of his representatives trying to halt the audit. He told his men to take this matter up with the Shipping Board.

Mr. Grace explained that soon after the audit was started by Perley Morse & Co. his people complained about it, and said they were suspicious of that particular firm of certified public accountants. They were afraid the auditors were out to get information, he said.

"Do you know why the audit was stopped, and did the officials of the Emergency Fleet Corporation or the Shipping Board notify you?" asked the Chairman.

"I do not think they did," replied Mr. Grace. "I presume it was stopped because of our opposition. The auditors were not seeking co-operation or explanation from our people, and our people felt strongly, for they were not being asked to supply enlightening information.

Morse and Aids Testify.

Preceding Mr. Grace at the night session, William F. Tanner and Irving M. Kutner, employes of Perley Morse & Co., were heard. Mr. Tanner said he saw the charge of $100,000 entered on the books of the Bethlehem Shipbuilding Corporation, but he did not see the voucher for $269,543. He testified that he saw a balance as of Dec. 31, 1918, showing the item of $100,000 had been paid for overhead and charged to ship construction.

Mr. Kutner said that at the time he was informed that the item of $100,000 had been disallowed, he was not told that it was eliminated by auditors of the Emergency Fleet Corporation. He swore he had discovered the voucher for $269,543, and assumed that the $100,000 included in it was charged to the cost of ship construction because it was so entered in the books, although the explanation of its disallowance had been made.

The committee will continue the hearing this morning at 9 o'clock, when Mr. Grace will resume his testimony.

Mr. Morse was on the stand most of the day. Toward the close of his testimony he was asked whether he had been in communication with officials of the Bethlehem Shipbuilding Corporation following Mr. Schwab's testimony last Friday that he had never received a penny from the Government for personal expenses incurred while Director General of the Emergency Fleet Corporation. He admitted he had been in communication with both Mr. Schwab and Eugene G. Grace, President of the Bethlehem Steel Corporation at the St. Regis Hotel.

"How did you happen to communicate with him?"

"A friend of Mr. Schwab's told me it was a mistake (referring to the testimony of Colonel Eugene H. Abadie, former General Controller of the Shipping Board, concerning the voucher) and asked me to go there to meet Mr. Schwab and Mr. Grace," replied the witness.

"Who was this friend?"

"Mr. Wildman."

"What time was it?"

"Between 3 and 4 o'clock on Friday."

"Was that interview at your suggestion or his?"

Schwab to Be Called Again.

"Mr. Schwab stated very definitely that he never got the $100,000, but that he had gotten the $260,000—but suppose you ask Mr. Schwab."

"We are going to ask him," interjected Mr. Foster.

Mr. Morse said Mr. Schwab had told him he did not know how the voucher was charged up on the Bethlehem books.

Throughout his testimony Mr. Morse insisted that the voucher, discovered by one of his accountants, showed the expenses of Mr. Schwab had been charged to ship construction against the Emergency Fleet Corporation. At times the witness was handled with severity when he failed to answer directly the questions put to him, or to communicate with the members of his staff who sat around him.

Early in his testimony Mr. Morse said that since accounting the existence of the voucher to Colonel Abadie he had made a detailed report to the Shipping Board.

"As a matter of fact," asked Chairman Walsh, "did you learn whether any part of this voucher (the $269,543 Schwab payment), was charged to ship construction?"

"All I can say," replied Mr. Morse, "is that the voucher was there and it appeared in the books. I have the pages of the book. The voucher was seen by one of my accountants who had it in his hands. Another accountant saw the entry in the books. There is no question as to the voucher. The only question in my mind exists as to the procedure that took place after we were refused access to the Bethlehem books.

"The witness could learn nothing further of the voucher after his audit was called off by the Shipping Board, which later reinstated it in a modified form. He testified, however, that on Dec. 31, 1918, when a trial balance was struck, the voucher still appeared on the Bethlehem books under administrative and general expenses.

Mr. Morse said he, personally, had never seen the voucher, but a copy of it had been made by this accountant.

"The question of the existence of this voucher," he said, "can be proven as easily as rolling off a log. Why doesn't the committee ask that the books be produced or go to the Bethlehem Shipbuilding Corporation and examine them?"

Later the witness said his accountant had been informed by a Bethlehem official that the item of $100,000, contained in the voucher, had been disallowed following an investigation by Shipping Board auditors. He then was asked to explain why, with knowledge that the item had been disallowed, he had reported in a telegram to Colonel Abadie, dated Feb. 24, 1919, that the audit had resulted in the discovery of serious irregularities, and that it was to the interest of the Government that the audit should proceed.

The witness said he regarded the discovery of the voucher of serious import. He said it was not the practice of accountants to accept verbal explanations without confirming them from the books. Inasmuch as the audit was called off, Mr. Morse said his firm had never been able to find out how the expenses carried on the voucher were finally distributed.

"I am satisfied," he said, "that the facts as to the voucher were as I have stated. What they are today I cannot say."

The memorandum describing the voucher, which Mr. Morse tried to read into the record, was written on a yellow sheet of paper, which thereafter was referred to by members of the committee as "the yellow sheet."

"Yellow Sheet" Read Into Record.

Eventually it was admitted to the record, and it read:

Voucher, numbered C-44-B, General, the designation referring to the shipbuilding account number. The voucher number was 699. The only description that it contained was as follows: "Proportion of B-44 expense. (B-44 is the Bethlehem Steel administration and general expense account.) Amount $100,000."

Our accountant looked at B-44 Steel Company general expense account for an explanation of this charge and found entered therein Voucher No. 114,980, C. M. S., $269,543.53.

He then asked an assistant in the office of Mr. Hauck for this voucher. It was produced from the files, and read as follows:

"Expenses C. M. Schwab during October, 1918, $269,543.53." A memorandum was attached to this voucher stating that $100,000 was to be charged to ship construction. Mr. Tranadeu, who produced the voucher for our accountant, stated immediately that the item of $100,000 had already been disallowed. Nevertheless it was noted by our accountant that it was included in the total of account C-44 posted to "distribution of general expenses, Book C, November, 1918."

The last sentence of the memorandum was not read into the record by Mr. Morse, but was disclosed from the document itself by Representative Foster, who read:

And therefore, it was apparently included in the cost of ship construction for the Emergency Fleet Corporation."

Listed Among "Misplaced Items."

Mr. Foster then took up a report of Perley Morse & Co. of Dec. 31, 1920, showing this and eight other "misplaced items," totaling $339,239. An explanation attached to this report, however, said the accountants could not certify that these items had been charged to the cost of ship construction. Mr. Foster pointed out the discrepancy between the last sentence of the memorandum and the statement in the report, but the witness said he stood by his testimony as it appeared in the record.

Mr. Morse admitted having appealed to Bernard M. Baruch to straighten out the controversy resulting from the audit. He supposed Mr. Baruch had spoken to Martin J. Gillen, former special assistant to Chairman Payne, and Benson about the audit prior to its reinstatement in a modified form.

George S. Burgess, associated with Mr. Morse, testified that he knew nothing about the voucher.

"I saw a trial balance taken by one of our men of the books of the Bethlehem Shipbuilding Corporation as of Dec. 31, 1919. It is my recollection that that trial balance showed that the total of that voucher was carried on the books up to that time."

PUSSYFOOT CHEERED BY 400 CLERGYMEN

Protestant Ministers Adopt Resolutions Endorsing Dry Law Enforcement.

PRAISE MILLER AND HYLAN

If America Fails Prohibition is Dead for a Century, Says Mr. Johnson.

After hearing an address by William E. (Pussyfoot) Johnson yesterday morning in the Marble Collegiate Reformed Church, at Fifth Avenue and Twenty-ninth Street, more than four hundred Protestant clergymen of New York City and nearby towns adopted seven resolutions endorsing measures to enforce prohibition. These resolutions were presented by William H. Anderson, State Superintendent of the Anti-Saloon League of New York.

The Rev. Dr. David J. Burrell, pastor of the Marble Church, who is State President of the league, presided and the other speakers were the Rev. Samuel L. Hamilton, Superintendent of the Metropolitan District of the league, and Miss Adella Potter, Superintendent of Organization for the league. A resolution calling on churches not to advertise their Sunday services in newspapers that did not support prohibition was also adopted. This resolution was introduced by the Rev. Dr. William H. Matthews, pastor of Greenwich Presbyterian Church.

The resolution offered by Mr. Anderson and adopted commended Governor Miller for his proposal of a State enforcement measure and Mayor Hylan for his declaration that he would enforce such a law. Certain New York newspapers were condemned for encouraging disobedience to the prohibition law. The Chairman was requested to appoint three ministers to represent the meeting before the State Legislature and the Board of Aldermen.

Mr. Anderson placed THE NEW YORK TIMES third in his list of the relative standing of New York newspapers regarding prohibition. The TIMES ranking was based on its "fair, intelligent treatment of the specific enforcement issues in its news columns, without committing itself to prohibition per se." He placed The Mail first and The Evening Post second in his list.

HYLAN "BOOM" MISSING.

Dinner in Mayor's Behalf Not Held, Though Invitations Went Out.

A "boom" for the renomination of Mayor Hylan was reported missing in Brooklyn yesterday. It was announced last week that the Business Men's League, which was responsible for the first nomination of the Mayor, would hold a reorganization meeting and dinner at the Imperial Restaurant last night, and it was supposed that another movement for the Mayor would be started. Invitations were signed by Charles L. Stengle, Secretary of the Municipal Civil Service Commission.

Last night no attempt was made to hold the dinner. The proprietor, Joseph Schmidt, said that no one had engaged the restaurant and that he knew nothing of the proposed meeting.

NO WASHINGTON BEQUEST.

Talk of Big Fund for Conservatory of Music Unfounded.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 24.—The Treasury Department today denied renewed reports of the discovery of an untouched bequest of George Washington of $40,000 for the establishment of a national conservatory of music. Mrs. Flournoy Rivers of Denver, who believed in the existence of the fund, had said she elicited the interest of President-elect Harding and his wife and several leaders in the musical world. She believed the fund had grown to $2,500,000 through accumulated interest and that the conservatory could be established on a large scale.

It was explained at the Treasury that Washington once set aside fifty shares of the Potomac Company for the purpose, but Congress took no action in line with his recommendation, and the shares reverted to the estate.

RAISES RENT TO STUDENTS.

Massachusetts Technology Notifies of Increase in March.

BOSTON, Jan. 24.—Massachusetts Institute of Technology joined today the long list of landlords who have found it necessary to raise rents, students being notified that with the beginning of the next term in March an increase of 10 per cent. in their dormitory rates would be charged.

If the law of supply and demand held rents might range even higher, as there are 400 men on the waiting list for rooms and hundreds of others living outside for lack of quarters.

PREACH LESS, LIVE LONGER.

But Methodist Bishop Says More Revival Meetings Should Be Held.

BOSTON, Jan. 24.—Methodist ministers live longer nowadays because they preach less, according to Bishop Edwin H. Hughes, who spoke at a meeting of the Interdenominational Institute of Evangelism today. The increase in their years became marked about the time that interest in church evangelistic campaigns began to decrease, he observed.

The Bishop urged the need for the old evangelistic campaigns, with a sermon every night, as the only solution for present-day problems.

JUDGE BARS FAMINE PLEA.

Orders Ten Chinese Deported Despite Starvation at Home.

CHICAGO, Jan. 24.—Ignoring a plea that 40,000,000 people already were starving in China, Federal Judge Page today ordered the deportation of ten Chinese for violation of the Chinese Exclusion act. Some of them had been in this country for fifteen years.

The defendants offered testimony that in going back to China they would be subjected to famine conditions, but Judge Page refused to consider this evidence.

WAR CRIPPLE SAVES BABY.

Legless Soldier Pushes Wheeled Platform in Front of Motor Car.

MIAMI, Fla., Jan. 24.—Bob Steele, who lost both legs in the World War, saved the life of a baby girl on the beach here yesterday by pushing his wheeled platform in front of a motor car to hurl her out of the way.

The machine knocked Steele over, but he escaped with slight injuries.

Beaux Arts Waiter Held.

Alfred Baranselli, headwaiter at the Beaux Arts Restaurant, West Fortieth Street and Sixth Avenue, who was arrested by prohibition enforcement agents on Sunday night on a charge of violating the Volstead act, was arraigned yesterday before United States Commissioner Samuel M. Hitchcock and held in $1,000 bail for the Grand Jury. Baranselli, who was accused of having sold the agents a half pint of whisky in a pharmacal water bottle for $5, waived examination.

Ford's Net Gain is Now 2,344.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 24.—At the end of today's recount by the Senate committee of ballots cast in the 1918 Michigan Senatorial election, Henry Ford had a net gain of 2,344. The recount included 1,074 precincts out of 2,232 in the State. Senator Newberry's plurality was 7,568.

'WILD' PAIR ARE TAME SAYS RED CROSS WOMAN

She Asserts Couple Are Parents of Child—Reported to Her Weekly.

JACKSON, Miss., Jan. 24.—Mississippi authorities who have been attempting to uncover the history of Albert Parsons, alleged "wild man"; his wife, and two-year-old baby girl, who strayed into the village of Lux last Friday with a strange story of life in the wilds along the Leaf River, today received a statement from Miss Floyd Mabry, a Red Cross worker, which may clear the mystery.

Miss Mabry asserted that the girl is the child of the couple, and also asserts that Parsons and his wife had reported to her weekly.

The couple on arriving at Lux said they had lived on roots, fruits and game in the river bottoms for some years. Parsons said he caught the woman in a bear trap twenty-three years ago. She explained the loss of an eye by saying it had been scratched out by a wild cat. He gave his age as 70 and she said she was 50.

The authorities are investigating Miss Mabry's statements and in the meantime the trio are being cared for at the County Poor House at Ellisville.

WIFE STOPS HIS GAMBLING.

Kittanning Woman Blows Up Resort Where Husband Went Too Often.

Special to The New York Times.

KITTANNING, Pa., Jan. 24.—A well-known gambling house here is in ruins as the result of an irate wife's desire to put a stop to her husband's visits to the place after ten successive nights.

While ten men were gathered about various tables early this morning a dynamite bomb was exploded in one corner of the building, shattering every window, throwing the gamblers to the floor and showering them with broken glass, tearing off the roof and depositing it in the yard and demolishing the corner of the building where it was planted.

Local police, although claiming to know the identity of the woman, have made no arrests. It is said her identity will not be revealed unless the owner of the house insists on prosecution, in which event he, too, probably will be prosecuted.

Occupants of the house fled in confusion when the blast occurred, several narrowly escaping being crushed under the roof as it crashed to the ground. The majority of the men are said to have been well-known local residents, who frequented the place almost nightly. Last night the games lasted later than usual, and it is the police theory that the woman suspected of the bombing, becoming impatient at her husband's long absence, planted the bomb herself or hired some person to do it. A time fuse was used, the police determined, which allowed plenty of time for the lighter to escape before the blast occurred.

WANTS CONTESTS LIMITED.

Fess Is Opposed to Wholesale Grabbing for Democratic Seats.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 24.—Belief that Republican members of the next House would "lean backwards" in considering the claims of Republican contestants for the seats of Democratic representatives was expressed today by Representative Fess of Ohio, Chairman of the Republican Congressional Campaign Committee.

Mr. Fess was commenting on the contest filed by J. I. Campbell, Republican, for the seat now held by Representative Doughton, Democrat, of the Eighth North Carolina District, who on the face of returns was re-elected.

Representative Fess said that his committee had authorized him to give support to Campbell if he made out a "prima facie case," and this support he had furnished in the nature of a loan to Campbell to aid in his contest. He added that his committee felt that Republican contestants should have a good basis for their claims before any support was given them, inasmuch as the Republicans would have a large majority in the House, and did not want to be accused of using their power arbitrarily.

Contests are pending in several districts in the South, in which the Democratic candidates received only a small plurality on the face of the returns.

Twenty Newark charitable institutions were named as beneficiaries in the will of the late John Henry Eastwood, wire manufacturer of Belleville, filed for probate yesterday in the Surrogate's office, Newark. Mr. Eastwood, whose plant was said to be the largest of its kind in the world, died Jan. 11. His estate was estimated to be worth between $2,000,000 and $3,000,000.

To his widow, Mrs. Margaret Spence Eastwood, he left his homes in Belleville, New York City, Bay Shore, L. I., and Miami, the furnishings, automobiles, yachts, and jewelry and an income of $25,000 a year. Several employes received bequests of $2,000 and $5,000. Servants received $1,000 each. Calvin H. Neally, general manager, was bequeathed 1,600 shares of common stock and an option on 2,000 shares of preferred. If Mr. Neally buys the preferred he will receive an additional gift of 500 shares. He will have control of the company. Mr. Eastwood left $30,000 to found a library in Chatham as a memorial to his late father and his friend, Fred Lum. The total of the charitable bequests was estimated at $600,000.

GRIFFIN ADJUDGED SANE.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Jan. 24.—J. Ellsworth Griffin, stock and bond promoter, was ordered released from an insane asylum today by Judge Joseph B. David, but was ordered held in custody that he might be placed on trial for the killing of William C. Bryan, his business associate, in a drunken brawl in their office in the First National Bank Building on April 13.

Griffin was to have been tried for murder last Fall. On Sept. 14 he was taken to the Psycopathic Hospital by the police on complaint of his wife. He was adjudged insane and committed to Kankakee. It was declared that he was suffering from alcoholic deterioration of the brain tissues.

ASKS JAIL FOR AGED SPOUSE.

Wife, 72, Has Alimony Dispute With 79-Year-Old Husband.

Special to The New York Times.

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y., Jan. 24.—Mrs. Ottillie Gorn, 72 years old, asked Supreme Court Justice Morschauser today to jail her husband, Herbert Gorn, 79 years old, for non-payment of alimony. The couple, who had been married for fifty years, separated some time ago when Mrs. Gorn received a separation decree for cruel and inhuman treatment.

The lawyer asserted that Mr. Gorn owed $251 back alimony and had transferred property in Pleasantville to his two daughters to escape its payment. Justice Morschauser refused to send him to jail because of his age, and it was finally arranged that Mr. Gorn should pay his wife $25 a month until the back alimony was settled.

I cannot recall having found in a magazine a wider variety of carefully chosen fiction than that which appears in the February number of a variety which involves, in addition to timeliness, a diversity of locale no less than of appeal. The opening editorial of the issue is a thought as useful as a good sermon and among the generally excellent illustrations there are some of real distinction.

Booth Tarkington

"The Magazine of a Remade World"

THE RED BOOK MAGAZINE

February Issue at all News Stands

Price 25 cents

The famous author of "Penrod," "Seventeen," "The Magnificent Ambersons" and "Clarence," bases his judgment of The Red Book Magazine for February, as here expressed, upon fourteen counts—each count a feature of the issue. Thus:

"Beauty," by Rupert Hughes, is a novel of today's extravagant luxury, by a master of the modern novel.

"Conflict," by Clarence Budington Kelland, is a novel of the great north woods, by the man who wrote "A Daughter of Discontent," and other big American novels..

"Snow-blind" is a lyrical novel of the vast open spaces of our own land, written by Katharine Newlin Burt, author of "The Branding Iron."

Consider then the variety of scene and appeal of the short stories, each complete in the February number:

"The Heart of the Lily," by Jack Boyle, the famous creator of "Boston Blackie," is a story which serves to link China to America.

"The Girl Who Took the Bumps," by Lawrence Perry, is a story of the world's newest industry, and the achievement in it of an American man and woman of our immediate day.

"The Reckoning" is another of the whimsical adventures in Europe of the irrepressible Mr. Cray of the U. S. A., by E. Phillips Oppenheim.

"The Gold Woman" takes you to the enchanting Islands of the South Seas. It is by Mildred Cram, whose distinguished work is familiar to the magazine's readers.

"The Caution of Abner Rowland" swings the reader back to the Great Lakes in a singularly appealing story of faith and sacrifice, by Harold Titus.

"Never Deal With a Woman" is another of Mrs. Woodrow's stories of Achison, lawyer extraordinary, to whom the evasion of the law affords the Great Adventure.

"Ruler the Persistent" is the sort of story of the out-of-doors, by Warren H. Miller, that has made The Red Book Magazine read wherever men gather to tell their stories of the hunt.

"Slobsy the Magnificent" is Albert Payson Terhune's story of an old miner's quest for the glories of dead days, and his awakening to a realization that today is today and not yesterday.

"The Get-away" is another of O.F. Lewis' remarkable stories of the Gray Brotherhood that abides within a prison's walls—a story that you will never forget.

"On the Extravagance of Carrying Enemies in Stock" is Bruce Barton's opening editorial that is like a "good sermon."

In the light of all this, is it to be wondered at that Mr. Tarkington should express himself as he does concerning The Red Book Magazine for February?

THE GOVERNOR AND FAIR FARES.

Governor MILLER's position in respect to the local transit problem is the reverse of that held by those who recently have been in official charge of the business, in that they have wished that conditions would get worse, as a means of helping them toward a settlement in accord with their preconceived notions. Governor MILLER has broad and clear ideas; so different from a policy of drift and muddle that they make the ideas of the local authorities seem childlike in a financial or economic sense. He sees that the housing and transit questions are intimately related, and that the best hope of remedying a congestion of population, with all the ills which follow in its train, lies in increase of transportation facilities. That is impossible if the nickel fare is retained; there would be no hope of obtaining the $550,000,000 more officially estimated as necessary for that purpose. That half billion more is not to be had by either taxes or nickel fares. Already those who are riding, they think, for a nickel are paying unawares the interest on $200,000,000 of city bonds. It is easier and saner to increase the fare bill than to increase the tax bill. That is the point where the Governor and the local authorities start on opposite paths.

The Governor believes that the transit question should be treated as a whole, by a single State authority. Now the public interests are subordinated to politics. Fares are regulated by everything except economical considerations. The result is a deficit from operation of ten millions for the last year officially reported, an increase in a single year of two millions. The message has not a word about a nickel fare or an eight-cent fare or any other fare. The Governor's position is the same as that of Governor HUGHES in his two-cent-fare message, and is destined like that to be historic, because both are right beyond dispute. It will be remembered that the railway rate and fare question in 1907 was in that stage when it was thought that the reduction of what shippers and riders paid was the object of regulation. Governor HUGHES then was almost alone in thinking that inquiry should precede action, and that action should be on the merits as the inquiry disclosed them. The country required further education through loss and suffering, but finally came to the view of Governor HUGHES.

Our transit situation may require further education of the public. In that case the object lesson must proceed, but it will be a costly process. The difference between the two cases is that the State has tried the method recommended by Governor HUGHES and that Governor MILLER reports that it has broken down in administration, but not in principle. The reasons that court receivers are cutting down transit accommodations are that the commissions have not done their duty in the matter and that the services must be restricted to what the fares will provide. If the subway fares provided the interest on the $200,000,000 subway bonds the city would have $200,000,000 more available for schools and other popular uses. Under such administration as we have recently suffered it may be that the nickel fare has been a blessing in disguise in preventing such uses as would have been made of that amount of money.

NEGOTIATIONS WITH JAPAN.

The speeches of Prime Minister HARA and of Foreign Minister UCHIDA on the treaty negotiations at the reopening of the Japanese Diet on Saturday were quite in the vein of the remarks made by Ambassador MORRIS on the same day in this city. The Prime Minister said that the exchange of views between Baron SHIDEHARA, the Japanese Ambassador, and Mr. MORRIS were proceeding "in a most friendly spirit for an amicable adjustment of the question." Mr. UCHIDA declared that the question raised by the California Land law "has a long history and a complex one, and is not susceptible of solution from the standpoint of one side alone." That is the true spirit of sound diplomacy. Japan restricts the rights aliens may enjoy in her territory, but those restrictions apply to all aliens, not to Americans alone, while the California laws are admittedly directed against the Japanese, since they withhold the right to acquire, inherit or hold land only from aliens not eligible to citizenship. This discrimination based upon ineligibility to citizenship is what the Japanese complain about. On the other hand, the Japanese and our Government must take account of the sentiment of the people of California, where the restrictive law was approved in the referendum vote taken in November by 668,483 against 222,086. Japan obviously would not by treaty attempt to override the will of her own people so decisively expressed.

The adjustment reached in the treaty must be, as Viscount UCHIDA says, "compatible with the honor and interests of both countries." The problem is to respect the interests and the wishes of the people of California, as we should respect those of the people of Japan, while removing the special discrimination about which the Japanese complain. The friendly relations of the two countries, which both Governments are resolved to preserve unimpaired, are, in the opinion of the negotiators, a guarantee that the differences will be satisfactorily adjusted.

TRAINED OFFICERS THE BEST INSURANCE.

It is often said that in the event of a sudden emergency of war the United States would have the services of all the competent regimental officers needed for a great army, because, in addition to the complement of the Regular Army, there would be available many thousands of veterans of 1917-1919, men who had fought in France and men who had been trained for the organized units that never left the country. It is true that such is the plan of the Army Reorganization act, approved June 4, 1920, which was a General Staff amendment of the National Defense act of June 3, 1916. The amendatory legislation has been acclaimed as a model of its kind, for the first time assuring a scientific defensive force adapted to modern warfare. Unless Congress supplies the money for that purpose, there will be no national army after all. There may be an efficient Regular Army and a National Guard, such as it is, but nothing more. Organized Reserves, an Officers' Reserve Corps, a Reserve Officers' Training Corps and an Enlisted Reserve Corps would be mere paper organizations. Where would be the training camps that the Secretary of War is authorized to maintain?

Without appropriations the fabric of insurance would fall to the ground. There are not enough officers in the Regular Army and the National Guard for more than a force of, say, 350,000 men at the outside, and the point need not be emphasized that the graduates of the Plattsburg camps and the product of other officer-training institutions who served in the war period even now need furbishing up to be as good as they were in 1917-1919.

Congress will make a great mistake if it fails to grant adequate appropriations for the maintenance and further schooling of the Officers' Reserve Corps and the Reserve Officers' Training Corps. To neglect or dally with the Summer training camps would be a stupid blunder. Equipment, material and transportation should be provided for, not piecemeal and sporadically, but on a uniform and comprehensive plan. What is the value of a Reorganization act if only a reduced Regular Army is to be maintained? The system of reserve officers must be kept up.

THE BISHOP OF NEW YORK.

An unwary public might fear that tomorrow's convention to elect a Bishop of New York, in succession to Dr. BURCH, will savor of the methods of worldly politicians. This impression would be given by the utterances of certain ecclesiastical disturbers of the peace. If it is notoriety they seek, verily they have their reward. But they do not at all speak for the body of clerical and lay delegates, who will undoubtedly approach their task with a due sense of its importance. The office which they have to fill is one of a dignity and usefulness which overpass the boundaries of any Church. The Bishop of New York often has been a great public figure. When his personal weight goes happily with the prestige of his position he becomes a symbol of much that is rich and deep in our community life.

It is fortunate that the candidates most often mentioned are all clergymen of standing and ability and approved service. None of them, perhaps, stands out before the city for exceptional gifts of pulpit eloquence, or for uncommon force and magnetism, but not one of them is without the fundamental qualifications. Whichever of them is finally chosen may be counted upon to continue worthily the high tradition that attaches to the Bishop of this great diocese.

With ill-judged attempts to decry that office there should be scant sympathy. The Bishop of New York is far more than a "decoration" for public ceremonies. He has heavy duties of administration; he has to be the official guardian of hundreds of parishes, in city and country; he is looked to as a spiritual leader; he cannot shrink from civic responsibilities. Any man invited to undertake such varied and exacting labors might well ask: "Who is sufficient for these things?" Whoever is elected Bishop, however, may be sure that his hands will be held up not only by those of his own faith but by a city always glad to number Church dignitaries among its honored citizens.

POLITICAL INVESTIGATION.

Certain Republican "leaders" in this city have a lofty view of government and politics and of the intelligence of the community. There is a general belief and considerable evidence that the present Municipal Administration is incompetent and inefficient. If it is, the people of New York are entitled to know the facts to the uttermost. A thorough investigation should be made, accompanied or followed by a constructive report. Is the city well or ill governed? If it is ill governed, how can misgovernment be checked and good government be substituted? Mayor HYLAN and his associates are mere transient figures. The fortunes of political parties or political candidates are of no account.

Yet sundry Republican "leaders" are considering this cardinal question of good or bad government for the city as merely accidental and subsidiary. To them the election of a Republican Mayor is the linchpin of things. If an investigation is to be made, they want one warranted not to expose Mayor HYLAN too much. They want to scotch, not kill, him. They don't want anything produced, if anything can be produced, that will prevent his renomination. They want the Democrats to renominate him. They want a weak Democratic candidate so that they can realize their golden dream of a Republican Mayor, whereas a too severe investigation might prove too much. The Democrats might nominate former Governor SMITH, whose power as a vote-getter fills their prophetic souls with fear.

These Republican "leaders" are monstrously deceived if they imagine that the people of this city are longing for a Republican Mayor. They do want an honest and a capable City Administration. How can they hope to get it from men whose first interest is not in an upright, effective and economical administration, but in a Republican administration; who can see in an investigation only "campaign material," and who want only so much of that as is consonant with their picayune political hopes and plans? The Republicans can make no grosser blunder than to sacrifice a searching, comprehensive and impartial inquiry into the Municipal Administration to a distorted view of partisan advantage. The partisan advantage would be on the other side. The inexorable bugbear, "'AL'" SMITH, would be more terrible than ever. His hold on the community comes from the independence, energy and single-mindedness which he gave to the affairs of the State. His example seems to have been lost upon the Republican "leaders."

FIX THE INDEMNITY NOW.

On the decisions made at the meeting of the Premiers of the Allied Powers now going on in Paris the whole economic future of Europe may rest. Until the indemnity is settled Germany will not know what she is expected to do and will have a plausible excuse for continued refusal to pay anything more than the barest minimum. France will not know exactly how much of her extraordinary expenses can be met by Germany and Europe at large will be unable to plan the restoration of credit and commercial relations which must be based for the next thirty years largely on the payments made by Germany to her creditors. There is criticism in France of the British tendency to regard the restoration of German economic life as the most important part of the problem. The French ought to regard it as still more important than the British. Germany must not be restored at the expense of France, but unless Germany is restored—with safeguards—the recovery of France will be much more difficult.

There is talk of a payment of $60,000,000,000, extending over forty-two years. So enormous and apparently impossible is this sum that there is suspicion that it is discussed purely for moral effect. At any rate, say its French proponents, it represents only a capital value of $21,000,000,000 with interest at 8 per cent. and 1 per cent. for amortization. The treaty provides that interest on the indemnity shall be computed at 5 per cent., but the Reparation Commission is authorized to alter that figure, and the French think that so long as they have to pay 8 per cent. for money the Germans ought to do the same. But if indemnity payments once begin to come in France will no longer have to pay 8 per cent. Moreover, the treaty says that the indemnity is to be paid off in thirty years, not forty-two.

That this proposal is recognized as impracticable is indicated by the much discussed suggestion of charging the Germans $750,000,000 a year for the next five years and then announcing the total amount to be paid. Why not announce it now? The French have had more than two years to compute their losses; the Reparation Commission has had a year and a half to investigate Germany's capacity. If that commission has done its duty there ought to be little danger of underestimating the amount that can be obtained.

It may well be that the real reason for putting off the assessment of the sum is the fear of French statesmen that they cannot get anything like the sums they have expected, and their unwillingness to break the news to the public. Will it be any easier to break the news to the public in 1926, when more billions have been added to the extraordinary budget every year in the hope of recovering great sums from Germany? There could be no greater temptation to extravagance and irresponsibility in French financial management than this five-year postponement; there could be no greater provocation of sabotage, evasion and perhaps revolution in Germany.

A FRUITFUL PILGRIMAGE.

Bearers of that torch of Erebus, the cigarette, are too rash, too unadvised and sudden when they chuckle because Miss LUCY PAGE GASTON, missionary of the Anti-Cigarette League, has left Kansas for Iowa. The loss of Kansas is Iowa's gain. The war against paper cigars will be waged relentlessly in the region of the Iowa Idea. And Miss GASTON has done a noble work among the Sunflowers. How much they needed it wasn't known until the Smith bill was introduced into the Kansas House of Representatives. This measure, reciting the abuses which it seeks to remedy, is a shock to millions who have believed that Topeka was the capital of the Perfect Commonwealth. It prohibits any person from smoking "cigars, cigarettes or any form of "tobacco in or about any church or "school building or any yard or place "adjacent thereto belonging to the "public." It also forbids those engaging by-products of the unholy weed nicotian dear to Hannibal Chollop and his tribe, to manifest themselves "on the furniture, appliances, floors, walls or carpets" of any church or school building.

Of all men are Kansans so wedded to the Virginian bane as not to be able to abstain from it in school or church? Who could, who can, believe it? Yet Mr. SMITH's bill seems sufficient evidence. Bravely he is resolved to eradicate this fell blot upon the glory of a glorious State. Not in vain did Miss GASTON go on her mission among the Kehze.

QUALITY IN EDUCATION.

In placing a limit upon the size of the Princeton undergraduate body, President HIBBEN takes an important step in American education. Hitherto the tendency has been to lay chief emphasis upon size. The greatness of a university has been estimated by the numbers of students and teachers, the range of the courses of instruction, the acreage of museums and laboratories. Football victory has been welcomed by many Faculties as a means of swelling the freshman class. From time to time the virtue of small colleges has been heralded; but, as Dean BRIGGS of Harvard once remarked, the outcry too often masked an effort to make them grow big.

Only at a few institutions, among which Princeton is pre-eminent, has there been a steady and consistent effort to work for quality rather than size. The system of preceptorial instruction instituted by President WILSON was an effort to secure a more intimate contact between teachers and taught. Likewise the once famous plan of "quads," or residential units within the college, was intended to organize college life and make it an efficient socializing influence. Both ideas have found favor at other institutions, the freshman dormitories at Harvard being a distinct advance upon the Princeton practice. Now President HIBBEN is attacking the problem at the root. No more students are to be accepted than can be adequately taught and assimilated in the body of undergraduate life. Princeton is to be "not a big university, but a great university." Presumably, entrance tests are to be severer, as also the weeding-out process among those already in residence. As yet the college register is 184 short of the proposed limit of 2,000; but the time is at hand when life at Princeton will be on the competitive basis—unless, indeed, the endowment should be very sensibly increased.

Princeton is not alone in experiencing a marked growth since the war. At Dartmouth the applicants for entrance actually quadrupled last year, and at the present rate will quadruple again this year, reaching the amazing total of 3,000. The maximum, for whom accommodation can be provided is 550. A drastic weeding process is inevitable and the need of greater endowment is manifest. Some of this growth is doubtless due to the new ambitions of the war-made rich. A larger part is attributable to an increased respect for education, which was one of the undoubted benefits of the war. In this there is nothing esoteric or mysterious. College men as a rule were officers, while those without an advanced education generally remained in the ranks. It was an object lesson little likely to be lost on the American mentality.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

Reds and Those Who Would Keep Their Jobs. A wholesome sign of the times is reported from Lawrence. Italian employés of the woolen mills held a mass meeting to protest against the misrepresentations of agitators who have caused it to be believed that all Italians are Reds, thus making it difficult or impossible to hold a job. Their deliberations were interrupted by the entrance of 200 men, said to be members of the Amalgamated Textile Workers, who sang the "Internationale" and otherwise attempted to cast upon the occasion the brand of Bolshevism. Some of the men present fled by the windows; but many remained and, with the help of a number of policemen, carried the fight into the streets. The meeting was not resumed; but, as actions speak louder than words, its purpose was triumphantly achieved.

It is an object lesson that may be profitably studied by our own Amalgamated Clothing Workers. When every man has a job, talk of "expropriating the expropriators," of the workers "taking possession of their industry" and of "driving out the loafers and wasters" may tickle the ear and delight a leisure moment. But the unemployed live in a different world, the real world. Like the Irishman of anecdotal fame who talked socialism until it was narrowed down to his two pigs, the possession that really interests them is the possession of their jobs.

Nobody pretends that the industrial world is an ideal world. It is, in fact, capable of vast betterment; and it has already been materially bettered by labor organizations. But it is subject to laws that are as yet beyond human power to control. The present unemployment is a result of the working of these laws; and for the time being the one important consideration for any man is his job.

Vigilance of Our Police. Commissioner ENRIGHT, in his statement in Sunday's TIMES, spoke with justifiable pride of his effort to keep the city not only safe but pure. He seems to be having a good deal of success, to judge from the records of Saturday night. It was a large night, and if the vices of New York seem strange and unfamiliar to the reminiscent reader, the change is only what might have been expected as a result of prohibition.

Some ninety persons who appeared in Jefferson Market Court on Sunday morning charged with disorderly conduct were discharged by a Magistrate unsympathetic with Mr. ENRIGHT's crusaders. Twenty-seven of the offenders, according to the police, had been heard snapping their fingers. In one case detectives who raided the room where fingers were being snapped discovered a deck of cards in a table drawer, and this corroborative evidence was enough to give the finger-snappers a night in jail. In another quarter forty negroes were arrested because they had indulged in loud talking. They, too, were discharged, but they had all had a night in jail as a warning against raising their voices hereafter. And it appears that whenever more than three people meet in an uptown apartment in these times they are suspected of being an unlawful assembly convoked for the purpose of betting on the races.

While numerous detectives were thus busy on Saturday night suppressing loud talking and the snapping of fingers there occurred a certain number of robberies, burglaries, assaults and homicides. But Mr. ENRIGHT may well argue that you can't do everything, and that the whole moral tendency of these times is to regard crime as unimportant by comparison with vice. New York is a clean city, even if it is a little unsafe for those who talk loudly, snap their fingers or are suspected of having money in the cash register.

Treating the "Mad Mullah" Rough. The "Mad Mullah" had always been sane enough to worry the British in Somaliland, evade their camel corps and swell the military budget until they hunted him from the air, as a hawk does a rabbit or a mole. So often did the "Mad Mullah" thwart the most ingenious British manoeuvres to curb and contain him that he came to be regarded by the professional humorists as a sympathetic subject. Bales of verse, free and otherwise, had been written about him. He seemed destined to go on forever and to succeed himself under his popular name—one mad mullah after another. He defied identification. He was like the Ahkoond of Swat, except that he was not mortal.

When the flying men swooped down on him he caved in and fled for his life in the most unheroic manner. He had no anti-aircraft guns or ammunition; besides, he was superstitious, and thought the new war upon him diabolical. The airmen spied out his strongholds and threw bombs into them. He could not retaliate, he had no defense, he could only dodge and run. It seemed like a mean advantage to take of a ragged native chieftain who had so long defied John Bull and mocked him. So the "Mad Mullah" passes out of the chronicles of the time and off the comic page. Making war upon savage people in a desert with bombing planes has become a safe and inexpensive occupation of the civilized nations.

Best Fun With Best Minds. The West is notoriously impatient with fussy greatness. It is always ready, as LOWELL wrote, to clap CAESAR on the back and call him "Old Hoss." But one would scarcely have expected even a Western newspaper to display such irreverence toward the best minds that so long infested Marion, Ohio, as that which we find in The Kansas City Times.

Masking its satiric intent under the guise of sympathy for Mr. HARDING, it declares that he is entitled to a long rest after the exhausting endurance test through which he has just passed. "He has grappled with the most powerful minds that ever oscillated in a rocking chair." They have closed in upon him from all directions, and have laid before him "more conflicting views than would be thought possible by anybody not familiar with the operation of leading minds." The net result has been to put such a strain upon the President-elect that it will now be a "supreme joy" for him to gaze upon "the vacant face of an Indian River fish, which has no mind at all."

This is excellent fooling, but it also conveys a certain amount of truth. In the multitude of counselors there is wisdom—sometimes—but there is likewise weariness and vexation of spirit.

Ku Klux Klan Alarmed.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I notice in an issue of your paper under date of Jan. 12 an article headed "Hylan to War on Ku Klux Klan." I am sure that the Ku Klux Klan in New York must be in great fear and trembling, as Mayor Hylan is reported to have sent the famous "bomb squad" that made such a brilliant success in the recent Wall Street explosion after the Ku Klux Klan.

ARMENIAN SETTLEMENT.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In commenting upon my letter which appeared in THE TIMES Jan. 9, Isya Joseph makes some statements in your issue of Jan. 16, under the title of "Armenian Tangle." First of all, he holds the Turkish Armenians responsible for identifying their cause with that of their coreligionists in Russia. This is not the case. From the very beginning there were two Armenian delegations at the Peace Conference in Paris, one headed by Mr. Aharonian of the Armenian Republic in the Caucasus, and the other by his Excellency, Boghos Nubar Pasha, representing the Turkish Armenians. It is true that these two delegations joined in a petition at the Peace Conference for the creation of a united Armenia, consisting of both Russian Armenia and Turkish Armenia, but these two delegations have up to the present time maintained separate identity. Now that the Republic of Armenia in Russia has been forced by the logic of events to accept a Soviet form of government, naturally the question of Russian Armenia, for the time being at least, must be eliminated from consideration; but the question of the redemption of Armenians from Turkish tyranny comes strongly to the fore, and the Allies, or the powers mediating, in dealing with this question have to treat with the Armenian national delegation, of which Boghos Nubar is the Chairman.

Mr. Joseph would like to have the world believe that the claims of the Armenians in Turkey to the six Armenian vilayets and Cilicia are based on mythology, and makes the statement that President Wilson in drawing the boundaries of Armenia left out practically all of this territory. As a matter of fact, in President Wilson's delimitation of the boundaries, Armenia is given practically all of the four Armenian vilayets, and if he did not include the other two and Cilicia it was for the reason that the Allies in asking him to draw the limits of new Armenia had stipulated that the boundaries should be confined to the vilayets of Erzerum, Trebizond, Van and Bitlis. The claims of Armenia to the six vilayets and Cilicia have been again and again recognized by international treaties, and the Armenian character of these States was acknowledged before the war even by the Turkish Government itself. And there has been no change of attitude on the part of American statesmen. Senators Lodge and Borah have publicly expressed themselves in defense of the claims of Armenia to this territory, and the Allies have been denounced for depriving Armenia of the best part of her homeland, and then asking the United States to take a mandate for that country.

Mr. Joseph's solution of the problem, namely, that the Turkish Armenians unite with Mustapha Kemal and "express their willingness to join in forming a government of all, by all and for all of the peoples without distinction as to race, creed and language," sounds very well, but the correspondent does not seem to realize that this experiment which he suggests has been tried for 400 years, and with such disastrous results that it is folly to try again what has been proved to be an impossibility. What guarantee is there that the Bolshevized Young Turk Kemal will be more humane and just than the Germanized Young Turks were? As a matter of politics Mustapha Kemal may have deplored to General Harbord the injustice done Armenians, but as a matter of fact since the armistice he has been carrying on massacres against Armenians right along, even in such cities as Marash, occupied by the Allies. Surely Turkey has forfeited all right to rule any Christian people, least of all the Armenians, whose bitter experience during the World War should convince all that the ideals of the Mohammedan Turk and the Christian Armenian are incompatible and that the Armenians will no longer submit to Turkish rule, whether it be the rule of the old Turk, young Turk, Germanized Turk or Bolshevized Turk; all additions are equally unfit to rule in this twentieth century. The Armenians of Turkey, therefore, are asking that the Allies keep their word and deal with the Turks in accordance with the terms of the armistice, and to enforce the Treaty of Sèvres.

Acid Fumes From the Jersey Shore.

Referring to the death of Dr. William J. O'Sullivan as a result of the public work he did in the acid fumes nuisance when he was investigating the factories on the New Jersey shore, the West End Association has been persistently active for several years in endeavoring to prevent these chlorine and other gases being carried across the river. It has been stated time and again by physicians that these gases are not only obnoxious but may cause, and have caused, illness to many west side residents.

Persistency will soon have its reward, as it was announced at the last meeting of the West End Association, through Franklin P. Duryea, Chairman, that the leading offenders, certain factories along the Edgewater shore, are installing devices in their plants which will effectually do away with these fumes. It is hoped that the air will be cleared, so to write, by Feb. 1.

Prohibition Enforcement.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Governor Miller makes a very common mistake in saying that the failure to enforce the Volstead law is no better reason for repealing that measure than the fact that men continue to rob and kill would be for repeal of the laws against theft and murder. The essential difference in the two cases is that murder and stealing are crimes in themselves, while the manufacture or use of alcoholic beverages is only criminal when it is made so by law. No right thinking person believes that it is a crime to crush apples and allow the juice to ferment and form hard cider. Yet under the Volstead law this is a punishable offense against the peace and dignity of the United States. When perfectly harmless acts are made crimes by statute, public sentiment is not and never will be favorable to the enforcement of the law.

ENJOY TODAY.

If life be love, then life's a cheat,
And all of us must play and lose;
Because, for each day love makes sweet,
A period of pain ensues.

Oh, is it just that this must be—
That life's supremest joys are those Which must result unfailingly,
By law of fate, in blackest woes?

The joy of friends and family,
The highest things love seeks and gains,
Suspended by life's thread must be—
That thread must break, then what remains?

So seize the moments while you may.
What comes must come, what's past is past.
Forget all else; enjoy today
The slightest pleasures while they last.

FORCES THAT MAKE THE LEAGUE INEVITABLE

Developments at Geneva Have Brought It Into Close Harmony With the Idea in the Republican Platform.

By A PRO-LEAGUE REPUBLICAN

SECOND ARTICLE.

SAFEGUARDING NATIONAL SOVEREIGNTY.

If the Republican platform has been misjudged because of the generality of its terms, the Paris Covenant has been equally misconstrued in spite of its greater detail—in part also as a consequence of it. As the League has passed from the sphere of discussion to the sphere of action, members of the Council, even the Director of the Legal Section, have already reversed themselves. That, if anything, should persuade American disputants to be charitable toward one another. To pro-League Republicans the fact is of especial significance, for under the active test the League is apparently shaping itself, though quite unconsciously, in harmony with what they have held right and possible.

At the San Sebastian meeting of the Council in August, 1920, and even before that at Rome, members took cognizance of an apparent vagueness in the Covenant with regard to the respective powers of Council and Assembly. They seem to have assumed that they were authorized, with the advice and consent of the legal section, to delimit the overlapping spheres. That they did not make the attempt is reported to have been the result of advice from Mr. Balfour. He apparently harbored no doubt as to their right to determine procedure, or even to amend the Covenant; but he gravely doubted the wisdom of doing so. According to a dispatch from Charles A. Selden in The Evening Post of Aug. 4, he perceived that such action was likely to be resented by the Assembly and so to make trouble, rather than avoid it, at the coming joint session in Geneva. But the alternative course which he urged raises an equally surprising question.

It was Mr. Balfour's idea that "both branches should be unhampered by a written code"—that, in true British fashion, they should "meet each question as it comes, thus building up a body of unwritten law based upon actual experience and precedent." Apparently he did not stop to consider just how this could be done by an organization whose sole authority was conferred by a Covenant written, signed and ratified. No more did the Director of the Legal Section, Dr. J. Van Hamel of Holland, who rendered a similar opinion: "The lines of division [between Council and Assembly] must be established by common understanding, by unwritten conventions, by general practice, by a sense of mutual co-operation between the two bodies and by the acknowledgment, on the part of each, that the character of the other specially qualifies it for certain duties." Sweet reason and millennial hope could scarcely go further together.

At Geneva, as it proved, the Assembly was in a mood very far from the millennial. Representing forty-odd nations as against nine in the Council, it claimed to be more fully qualified to speak the voice of mankind and it raised a cry of world democracy. Articles III. and IV. of the Covenant describe the general powers of the two bodies in identical terms: they may both "deal at [their] meetings with any matter within the sphere of action of the League, or affecting the peace of the world." Yet when the instrument proceeds to details, effective action on the part of the Assembly is very largely blocked by specific powers granted to the Council. The Assembly may "deal" with anything, but it is the Council that takes the tricks. To the impartial observer the Assembly's powers are considerable, and especially the power of public discussion. The meetings of the Council alone, which are necessarily in a large measure private, never attracted a tenth part of the celebrity which the Geneva meeting commanded, nor exerted a tenth part of the influence in developing world opinion. But the Assembly felt impotent and was proportionately enraged. With the merits of this controversy we are not now primarily concerned. The present point is that under the assaults of the Assembly the Council very soon discovered the virtue that lies in a written constitution. It entrenched itself behind the set terms of the Covenant. The Assembly then demanded that the Covenant be amended. By this time the Council also was in an unmillennial mood and procured the postponement of amendments until some future session. That was the end of all "common understandings," of all "unwritten law based on actual experience and precedent."

It was the beginning, however, of a new and vividly illuminating insight into the Covenant. It had been commonly said by newspaper correspondents, and was apparently the prevailing view at Geneva, that the Covenant could be amended by a unanimous vote in the Council and a majority vote in the Assembly—in brief, that it could be amended on the spot. But under any strict interpretation of Article XXVI. authority is vested, not in the representatives of the member nations, but in the nations themselves.

> Amendments to this Covenant will take effect when ratified by the members of the League whose representatives compose the Council and by a majority of the members of the League whose representatives compose the Assembly.

Puzzled American observers cabled to Geneva for information. The question was referred to Dr. van Hamel, and he now rendered a verdict strictly in accord with the terms of the Covenant. Only the powers that signed it can amend it.

The process is analogous to that by which the Constitution of the United States is amended—that document, as we know, having been closely studied by the authors of the Paris Covenant. Congress cannot amend the Constitution. The most it can do is to frame an amendment which to become "valid" has to be "ratified by the Legislatures of three-fourths of the several States." Similarly the Council and the Assembly of the League of Nations may (presumably) frame an amendment; but in order to "take effect" the amendment has to be ratified by all the nations that have representatives in the Council and by a majority of those that have representatives in the Assembly. The right of amendment, in short, abides with sovereign nations, and is exercised through the same power—the treaty-making power—by which the Covenant was originally ratified. If the League had an independent power to make itself over it would be by way of becoming a superstate.

This view of the Covenant, which had never been stressed before the Geneva session, threw a new light on the document as a whole. In many or most articles the strict safeguarding of national sovereignty is manifest. Meticulous fairness to Mr. Balfour and Dr. van Hamel might suggest that their advocacy of unwritten law related only to matters of procedure and not to any vital change. But the Covenant forbids even that. Matters of procedure, even to the appointment of committees, are regarded as functions not of the representatives at Geneva but of the member nations. The second sentence of Article V. reads:

> All matters of procedure at meetings of the Assembly or Council, including the appointment of committees to investigate particular matters, shall be regulated by the Assembly or by the Council and may be decided by a majority of the members of the League represented at the meeting.

The bar to "unwritten law evolved through practice and precedent" could scarcely be made more absolute.

The first sentence of Article V. is, from the point of view of the pro-League Republican, one of the most vitally significant:

> Except where otherwise expressly provided in this Covenant or by the terms of the present treaty, decisions at any meeting of the Assembly or of the Council shall require the agreement of all the members of the League represented at the meeting.

As regards "decisions," the sovereignty of the member nation is absolute, except in a few specified cases. Among the nations represented in both Council and Assembly there must be unanimity. A single nation can block decision.

A strict reading of this sentence throws a flood of light upon a certain episode of the Geneva meeting which has puzzled not a few champions of the League. On Nov. 26 several of the correspondents at Geneva cabled that a member of the Organization Committee, Mr. Rowell of Canada, proposed that the Council and Assembly should be declared to be acting not in any individual capacity but as responsible representatives of their nations. In this he was supported by M. Viviani. Their purpose was that decisions might be made "binding on the home Government." One of Mr. Rowell's reasons for urging the declaration was that if the League assumed such responsibility it could gradually take over much of the work which is now being done by the Supreme Council and the Council of Ambassadors at Paris. All this was accepted, both at Geneva and in the United States, as "entirely changing the complexion of the League." Ex-President Taft, writing for The Public Ledger of Philadelphia, said: "If Mr. Rowell's view is correct, then it must be admitted that the Covenant means something very different from what its supporters in this country have thought it to mean, and that the fears of its opponents as to its effect are better founded than the American supporters of the treaty are willing to admit." In the anti-League press this admission was widely commented upon and always in the accents of triumph. Confessedly the League was a superstate, leading the member nations by the nose!

Seldom has there been a better example of getting the cart before the horse. All along Mr. Rowell had contended that his view was not revolutionary, but only a strict interpretation of the Covenant. He was apparently justified. In order to make decisions binding upon the member nations, the representatives at Geneva would be obliged in any matter of importance to consult the responsible authority at home and gain its consent. Its "decisions" would thus be precisely similar to those of a Council of Ambassadors. Instead of making the League a superstate, Mr. Rowell's proposal is, as he contended, in harmony with a strict interpretation of the Covenant and thus a recognition of the sovereignty of the member nations.

The point was vividly illustrated at the time of the Armenian crisis. M. Viviani had come to Geneva with instructions from M. Leygues to do all he could for the admission of Armenia into the League. So he launched a demand for negotiations with Mustapha Kemal, foreseeing that if the Assembly agreed to this the delimitation of the boundaries of Armenia and its admission into the League must follow. He persuaded the Assembly to take action which resulted in the plan for mediation by President Wilson, Spain and Brazil. But overnight, as it happened, the status of Armenia was transformed. Between the devil of Mustapha Kemal and the deep sea of Bolshevism the Armenians were obliged to accept conditions inconsistent with the character of a member of the League. On the eve of Viviani's success instructions came from London that the matter be dropped. "Being controlled by the big powers," as Mr. James cabled THE TIMES, "the Committee [of the League Council] has decided against Armenia." The changed situation required a different line of action. There could scarcely be a clearer example of the manner in which the decisions of the Council or Assembly are "binding on the home Government." They are binding because they are the expression of the several sovereign wills of the member States.

Under the clauses of the Covenant thus far quoted, in short, the League is merely a development and extension of the idea of a conference of Ambassadors, which, as Mr. Root pointed out in his letter of March 29, 1919, to Will H. Hays, is an established and most useful but hitherto imperfectly organized practice of diplomacy. The Covenant organizes it and makes it permanent, thereby vastly enhancing its power for good.

The justice of this organic scheme has been called in question by representatives of the smaller nations in the Assembly. In their view, world democracy is based not upon the mass of individual citizens but upon a vote by nations. This view assumes that merely because the people of certain portions of the earth are split up into a large number of States they are entitled to a decisive power. It takes no note of the fact that the nations permanently represented in the Council are vastly the largest and the most dangerously threatened by war—and have thus the greatest stake in the preservation of peace. It takes no note, moreover, of the admirably flexible plan by which the Covenant provides for the representation of small nations in the Council. On this point President Lowell of Harvard has spoken with admirable lucidity:

> "Now the responsibility for carrying out the objects of the League rests mainly upon the five large nations. On their co-operation its effectiveness depends. Without them it would be powerless. They must be kept constantly in close touch with one another, and hence in the small body which meets most frequently and in which the most intimate conferences take place they must always be present. But although that body possesses no legal authority to direct the action of the members, yet, if it were composed exclusively of the representatives of the five large nations, these five could, if they agreed together, exert such an influence as practically to rule the League and, in fact, the whole world.
> "It is important, therefore, that the smaller States should be represented on the Council, and that the States having seats there should not always be the same. To accomplish this result the Assembly is empowered to select from time to time the States that shall be represented; and since in the Assembly the small States will far outnumber the large ones, and each State has one vote, the States to have seats will practically be selected by the smaller members of the League.
> "In order, moreover, that important action affecting any smaller State shall not be taken in its absence, it is further provided that in such a case the State shall be specially invited to attend. Thus effectiveness by the presence of the larger States is combined with fair consideration for the smaller ones."

The strict regard for the sovereignty of nations which is enjoined under Article V. extends through the major portion of the Covenant. No decision can be made except as to present matters actually in hand, and no action can be taken without the explicit consent of member nations. In one provision, that for arbitration and for judgments under international law, sovereignty is slightly, but only slightly, abated—in the stipulation that nations shall submit to a certain delay before going to war. Article XXIII., which covers a number of minor League activities, makes a highly illuminating distinction between those that are more important, as to which "members of the League" reserve their authority, and two less important matters which they "intrust to the League." This article is well worth the study of those who doubt the extreme conservatism of the major portion of the Covenant.

Yet it is not without reason that Article V. begins: "Except where otherwise expressly provided." Two sections in the Covenant are so different in spirit as to suggest that they are the work of other hands—those providing for the economic blockade and for the use of military and naval force. With regard to these, recent events at the Geneva Conference are, to pro-League Republicans, of particular interest and moment.

FIGHT MORGAN HOUSE GIFT.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 24.—Some opposition has developed among Republicans and Democrats of the House to acceptance by the Government of the London residence of J. Pierpont Morgan as a permanent home for the American Ambassador, but leaders predicted that this would not be strong enough to cause defeat of the Senate resolution authorizing acceptance.

Chairman Porter of the House Foreign Affairs Committee has introduced a resolution which would permit acceptance of all such gifts, including Chile's offer of an embassy, in connection with the movement to acquire better accommodations abroad for American diplomats. But since the Senate has already acted on the Morgan offer, House leaders said they would call up the resolution from that body and put it through.

Facts bearing on the Morgan proposal were revealed today in publication of hearings before the House Appropriations Committee on the Diplomatic and Consular bill. The offer was first made to the Secretary of State nearly two years ago and transmitted to Congress by President Wilson without comment. Under-Secretary of State Davis told the committee that there was a question of policy involved in acceptance, which was exclusively within the jurisdiction of Congress, and that the Secretary doubtless hesitated to suggest what sort of policy ought to be followed in cases of this kind.

"I can see no reason for not desiring it," said Mr. Davis, when asked if the property would be of use.

Mr. Morgan wrote to Mr. Davis Dec. 31 that he offered his home to the State Department in May, 1919, and, not having received a reply a year later, again wrote, with the result that the matter was submitted to Congress one year and a day from the date of the first communication.

"It is not right to keep a house in London unoccupied at present, when houses are in such demand in that city," Mr. Morgan said. "I see, therefore, no alternative but to advise you, as I hereby do, that it will be necessary for me to know by March 4 next, when this Congress ends, whether my offer is accepted or declined by the Government, and that, should I not receive an answer before the adjournment of Congress, I shall be compelled to withdraw the offer."

Henshaw-Hamilton Wedding Feb. 1.

The wedding of Miss Margaret Hyde Hamilton, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Herbert Hamilton of 449 Park Avenue, and Sydney Parker Henshaw of this city will take place on Feb. 1 at the Central Presbyterian Church at 4:30 o'clock. The reception following will be very small, for the family and intimate friends, and will be held at the Hotel Gotham.

Mr. Henshaw is giving his farewell bachelor dinner on Thursday evening, preceding the wedding, at the Harvard Club. The same evening Mrs. George de Forest Lord is to entertain for Miss Hamilton and some of her friends.

SOCIETY GIRL WEDS POET.

Priscilla Pardridge of Chicago Marries Lester Cohen in New York.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Jan. 24.—Priscilla Pardridge has given her wealthy father, A. J. Pardridge, real estate operator, another surprise. This time she has married, her husband being Lester Cohen, champion poet of the Dill Pickle Club.

Word reached here today and was relayed on to California, where her parents are spending the Winter, that she and Cohen were married two weeks ago in Greenwich Village, New York City, and were living somewhere west of Washington Square.

Miss Pardridge, after she graduated into the sub-deb and débutante class, went on the stage, but her father snatched her from the footlights. Then she surprised society by accepting a position in a Denver department store.

Mrs. Cohen announces that she will return to the stage.

Bridge for Vacation Association.

One hundred tables have been sold for a charity bridge to be held this afternoon in the ballroom of the Ritz-Carlton for the benefit of the Vacation Association, of which Miss Gertrude Robinson Smith is President and Miss Anne Morgan, Treasurer. Mrs. Daniel Guggenheim is Chairman of the committee in charge of the bridge, and has been assisted in making arrangements by Mrs. G. Barton French, Mrs. Harry I. Miller and Mrs. Prescott Slade. The cards to be used have all been donated by the whist clubs in the city, as have the twelve prizes to be awarded for the highest scores.

Alfred Cortot, French Pianist, Plays.

Alfred Cortot, the French pianist, who first appeared in America during the tour of the Paris Conservatoire Orchestra in 1918 and found a welcome individually thereafter, returned last evening at Carnegie Hall in a solo recital of but three works, with certain "additions," from three composers of music's "romantic" age. Mr. Cortot was heard in Liszt's B-minor sonata, Chopin's "Preludes," comprising twenty-four sub-titles, and Schumann's "Etudes Symphoniques," twelve familiar studies, supplemented with five discovered among Schumann's papers after his death. It was regrettable only that a recital so stimulating to intelligent musical interest, apart from mere "prettiness" or personal effect, must be passed with a mention today instead of with appreciation of its content and design, such as a considerable audience evinced on its own behalf last evening.

Rudolph Polk, Violinist, Heard.

Rudolph Polk, violinist of this city, a student abroad with Marteau and, in composition, with Paul Juon, appeared at Aeolian Hall last night for the third time in his career, having played here twice last season. With Richard Hageman at the piano, he was heard in Nardini's E-minor concerto and the "Scotch Fantasie" of Bruch, with arrangements by Wilhelmj, Kreisler and Louis Saar; a "Tarantelle" by Sarasate, and a novelty descriptive of "California" by Arthur Loesser.

Knight MacGregor, Baritone, Sings.

Knight MacGregor, a young baritone and not bass, though his earlier announcements said both, appeared in a matinee recital yesterday at Aeolian Hall, displaying a voice of musical quality and power in its upper range, less well supported in deeper tones requiring sheer weight of physique, though his singing was at all times of a broad and sturdy style. He gave airs of Handel, Mozart and Arnold, songs in English by Schumann and Mendelssohn, and also in a good translation Hugo Wolf's "Zur Ruh" as well as a Rachmaninoff melody. He had others by Floridia, Koeneman, Kramer, Russell, Harty and Martin, assisted at the piano by Francis Moore.

READY TO NOMINATE BISHOP CANDIDATES

"DARK HORSE" IS RUMORED

Arrangements were completed yesterday by the friends of three local rectors for their nomination tomorrow at the special convention of the Episcopal Diocese of New York to elect a successor to the late Bishop Charles S. Burch. Two of the clergymen will be nominated by the brethren that presented their names at the convention of Sept. 17, 1917, at which Bishop Burch was elected.

The Rev. Dr. William T. Manning, rector of Trinity Church, will be nominated by the Rev. Dr. John P. Peters, rector emeritus of St. Michael's Church, now Professor of New Testament Exegesis in the University of the South, Sewanee, Tenn. The nomination will be seconded by Justice Vernon M. Davis, a vestryman of Trinity Church, who is a parishioner of St. Agnes's Chapels, Trinity parish. It was Dr. Peters who nominated Dr. Manning before, and it was Justice Davis who seconded the nomination.

Because Trinity parish has eight chapels it will have four votes, whereas single parishes have but one lay vote. The vestrymen who will represent Trinity in the convention are H. H. Cammann, who is Senior Warden; Justice Davis and S. Edward Nash.

The Rev. Dr. Charles Lewis Slattery, rector of Grace Church, will be nominated by the Rev. Dr. H. Percy Silver, rector of the Church of the Incarnation. It was Dr. Silver who nominated Dr. Slattery at the last special convention. It is understood the vestrymen from Grace Church will be J. Montgomery Hare, J. S. Melcher and W. W. Skiddy. It could not be learned last night who would second Dr. Slattery's nomination.

The Rev. Dr. Ernest M. Stires, rector of St. Thomas's Church, will be nominated by the Rev. Dr. Leighton Parks, rector of St. Bartholomew's Church and his nearest neighbor. It was not settled up to late last night who would second the nomination. It is understood the vestrymen from St. Thomas's will be William H. Truesdale, President of the Lackawanna Railroad; Charles Steele of the firm of J. P. Morgan & Co., and Robert B. Dodson.

The Right Rev. Nathaniel S. Thomas, Bishop of the missionary district of Wyoming, will be nominated by the Rev. John McV. Haight, rector of Christ Church, Pelham Manor. The Pelham rector served under Bishop Thomas for some years. The nomination of Bishop Thomas will be seconded by the Rev. Melford L. Brown, rector of the Church of the Ascension, Mount Vernon. A local rector, who is backing the Bishop Thomas candidacy is the Rev. Dr. Theodore Sedgwick of Calvary Church and Vice President of the Standing Committee of the diocese.

There is a persistent rumor that a "dark horse" in case of a deadlock between the three local rectors will be the Rev. Frank W. Crowder, rector of St. James's Church, Madison Avenue and Seventy-first Street.

Dr. Crowder came here from Grace Church, Providence, R. I., where the late Bishop David H. Greer was rector before he was called to St. Bartholomew's Church, this city, and from which sixteen years later he was elected Bishop. Dr. Crowder until a few years ago was a clergyman of the Methodist Church. A number of his vestrymen are prominent in the convention, including Stephen Baker and Edmund L. Baylies.

There is a possibility that Dean Edmund S. Rousmaniere of St. Paul's Cathedral, Boston, will be nominated. He is being advocated by the Rev. Dr. George Clarke Houghton, rector of the Church of the Transfiguration.

The canon law says that a Bishop must be elected in executive session, but this was waived at the last convention on motion of Justice Davis. The diocesan authorities, however, want visitors excluded because of lack of space. If all the delegates are in their places, there will be 873, and Synod Hall does not seat more than one thousand.

It is now practically certain that the Rev. Dr. Harry P. Nichols, rector of Holy Trinity Church, Harlem, will be nominated for Chairman. He was Chairman of the last special convention. The delegates will be called to order by the Rev. Dr. Charles K. Gilbert, Secretary of the diocese.

A prominent layman will introduce a resolution that nominating speeches will be permitted. It is likely these will be limited to ten minutes and perhaps to five minutes. No speeches were permitted at the last election.

Until a Chairman is elected the oldest Presbyter in the diocese wil act as Chairman. This is the Rev. Dr. Stephen F. Holmes, rector emeritus of St. John's Church, Pleasantville. He is more than 80 years old.

The convention will open at 10 o'clock with a celebration of Holy Communion in the Cathedral of St. John the Divine, at which the Right Rev. Edwin S. Lines, Bishop of Newark, N. J., will officiate. There will be a memorial service for Bishop Burch.

TWO RECTORS REPLY TO DR. CARSTENSEN

Two of the three clergymen who were assailed by the Rev. Dr. Gustav Carstensen in his sermon on Sunday answered the rector of Holyrood Episcopal Church yesterday. They were Dr. Karl Reiland, rector of St. George's, and the Rev. Dr. William Norman Guthrie, rector of St. Mark's-in-the-Bouwerie.

Despite the prompt rejoinders of his fellows in attack, the Rev. Dr. Percy Stickney Grant preserved silence. At his office he was reported "out of town," the first call at the rectory of the Church of the Ascension discovered him "making his calls," while last night the housekeeper ventured the opinion that Dr. Grant intended to ignore the whole thing.

Not so Dr. Guthrie. He described Dr. Carstensen as "a human volcano, a jackass and a sorehead." He also remarked that the rector of Holyrood wanted to get his name into the newspapers on the eve of the election of a successor to the late Bishop Burch.

"Carstensen is down on me for opposing him in the last Church Congress," he said. "He attacked Dr. Grant on the forum issue there, but I defended Grant and had the meeting behind me. Dr. Carstensen was laughed down, and now he is trying to get back at me. He is anxious to get his name advertised."

The reporter and the rector then discussed what Dr. Carstensen had said on Sunday morning. There was that bit about an "unfrocked priest," Dr. Algernon S. Crapsey, playing "Harlequin in the church," with the "little lady of the dew as 'Columbine.'" Dr. Guthrie declared that Dr. Crapsey was a reputable layman of his congregation and that he had been unjustly deposed in the first place.

And as for the "little lady of the dew?" It developed that the little lady is of stone, a statue executed by Solon Borglum. Dr. Guthrie took the reporter out into the churchyard to look at the maiden of the mist. Dr. Guthrie said it symbolized "innocence and purity," and laughed at Dr. Carstensen's allusion to it.

Dr. Reiland's retort was:

"I should not think of making any reply to what Dr. Carstensen is reported to have said, except to repudiate the implication that I am opposing Dr. Manning's candidacy for the bishopric, lest he should use a 'curb bit.' I count Dr. Manning my very good friend. We may not agree in our views on some ecclesiastical questions, but I respect him and I hope he respects me.

"The distinction of the Protestant Episcopal Church is that it is catholic enough to include many schools of thought, and it is my hope that the next Bishop of New York may be a wise and statesmanlike spiritual leader who will lead and not 'drive,' or ride with 'bit and bridle.'"

Dr. Carstensen said that he had nothing to supplement his sermon. He was questioned concerning a report that he had been asked to resign from the Ministers' Association and from the post of Secretary of the Church Congress.

"This is the first I have heard about it," he answered.

SHUBERTS FORM BIG VAUDEVILLE CIRCUIT

Organize Company of $20,000,000 Capital, With 20 Theatres in the Principal Cities.

BEGIN OPERATIONS IN FALL

"Shubert Advanced Vaudeville" to Be the First Opposition Keith Circuit Has Had in Years.

Formal announcement of the entrance of the Shuberts into the field of vaudeville was made by that firm yesterday. "Shubert Advanced Vaudeville," it was declared by Lee Shubert, will come into existence at the beginning of next season with a circuit of more than twenty theatres. The new company, which will be quite independent of the other theatrical interests of the Shuberts, has been capitalized at $20,000,000, and has been incorporated under the laws of Delaware.

In theatrical circles it had been reported for months that the Shuberts were contemplating the invasion of vaudeville, but the extent of the operation and the principals in it are now announced for the first time. At the beginning the circuit will include New York, Boston, Philadelphia, Chicago, Newark, Brooklyn, Pittsburgh, Detroit, Cleveland, Cincinnati, Louisville, Atlantic City, Buffalo, Washington, Baltimore, New Orleans, Kansas City and St. Louis, and it is planned to extend operations to other cities as rapidly as possible.

The Directors of the Shubert Advanced Vaudeville Company are Lee Shubert, J. J. Shubert, Paul Block, F. J. Godsol, Jules Mastbaum, E. C. Potter, William Kline, Edward J. Bowes and Joseph L. Rhinock.

The entrance of the Shuberts into the field of the varieties will furnish the first vaudeville opposition which the B. F. Keith circuit has had to contend with in a number of years. Half a dozen or more years ago William Morris opposed them with "advanced vaudeville," and in New York the competition took the form of longer and longer vaudeville bills, so that on some occasions two or three acts held different parts of the stage at the same time. Mr. Morris, however, eventually gave up the fight against the larger circuit, and the Keith Exchange has enjoyed practically a monopoly of first-class vaudeville since that time.

Although the competition of the Shuberts may take on some of the aspects of a "vaudeville war," since the two circuits will be bidding against each other for talent, it is generally felt that the market has so broadened in recent years that two circuits will be able to operate profitably without infringing perceptibly upon each other.

The Shuberts have been engaging vaudeville performers for some months, and during the interval of preparation for their vaudeville circuit they have given these people employment in musical comedies and at special Sunday night performances. It is reported that the Central Theatre will be one of the New York houses which will be turned over to vaudeville, owing, in a degree, to its proximity to the Palace, the principal Keith house. It is also considered not unlikely that the Century Theatre will become a part of the circuit.

FINISH COMES IN 1:34:50

For slightly more than one and a half hours Earl Caddock of Walnut, Iowa, former heavyweight champion wrestler, resisted the damaging headlock of Ed (Strangler) Lewis, Kentucky grappler, who now holds the mat title, in their finish bout last night at the Seventy-first Regiment Armory. But nature in the end grimly exacted her toll in the capitulation of the well built, agile Iowan; the dread headlock had claimed another victim, and Lewis retained his coveted title.

After one hour, thirty-four minutes and fifty seconds, Caddock, spent after a glorious attempt to ward off the inevitable, lay still and inert on the mat, conquered in a manner which left not the slightest room for doubt as to the punishing effect of the hold which had brought about the defeat of Caddock once before last night's conflict. Officially a combination head and hip lock forced Caddock's shoulders to the mat, but, in the final analysis, the terrifying arm grip of the Kentuckian forced his rival to defeat. Lewis weighed 228 pounds, and Caddock 188.

It was thought for a time that the vanquished Caddock had sustained injury as he went down in defeat. The force of being tossed bodily in the air, after five applications of the dread hold, together with the punishing effects of the headlock as Lewis applies it, left the young Iowan unconscious in the centre of the mat for a full minute after his shoulders had touched the canvas. Caddock's handlers, led by Gene Melady, his manager, hopped through the ropes to the aid of their stricken idol, and worked industriously to restore him to his senses. Meanwhile a chair had been placed in the ring, near where Caddock was stretched on the mat, and after a minute he was revived and placed in the chair. A further rest and he rose to his feet, unsteadily, and gripped the proffered hand of the triumphant Lewis.

Crowd in Near Riot.

The crowd, meanwhile, went into a frenzy of excitement and a scene bordering on the riotous was enacted. The spectacle of Caddock stretched as if dead on the mat from the effects of being tossed to the floor under the bulky body of Lewis and the latter's punishing headlock transformed the gathering of about 8,000 fans into a spectacle the parallel of which has seldom been witnessed in local wrestling. Hostile to Lewis and his favorite hold from the outset, the crowd, thrown into a fury with the sight of their favorite unconscious on the mat, surged frantically about the ring in which the mat was pitched, trampling underfoot chairs and frail railings which had been thrown up to mark off floor boxes. The crowd seemed bent on inflicting bodily harm on Lewis in a demonstration which could only be attributed to a concerted objection to the headlock.

Growling and hooting the crowd advanced threateningly on the ring as Caddock's handlers worked over him in a frantic effort to restore his senses. Officials quickly jumped into the ring, together with a detail of the Seventy-first Regiment's khaki-clad members, to forestall trouble. Cries of "Kill the murderer" welled up in the arena and for a time serious trouble threatened as men fought to get near the object of their resentment. Lewis waited until Caddock had been revived and then gripped the hand of his beaten rival.

Returning to his corner, the burly Kentuckian crawled through the ropes and descended the short steps leading from the ring. The fans swarmed around him so thickly and so menacingly that the champion's seconds and several of his friends had to form a guard about him to escort him to his dressing room. The strong-arm drive through the thick knot of fans ended with Lewis clear of trouble, and he hurried to his dressing room, followed by a deafening chorus of imprecations and a sparse trail of threatening wrestling enthusiasts. Once in his dressing room Lewis slammed the door and the crowd gradually dispersed.

Cheers for Vanquished.

Caddock, meanwhile, had slowly stepped from the ring, without any visible evidence of his terrifying ordeal, and had been absorbed in a wildly cheering mob which wanted to carry him on its shoulders to his dressing room. From the start of the match Caddock was the favorite with the crowd. He was cheered to the echo when he made his appearance in the ring, a few minutes in advance of the champion. As the Iowan was introduced there was a round of applause which lasted for a full minute, or until Caddock went across the ring and shook hands with Lewis. The latter, when introduced, drew a reception in which were mingled boos, hisses and scattering applause. The hostile element was in the majority, almost to the point of drowning out the scattering handclapping.

As the match progressed, too, the crowd showed in unmistakable manner just where its sentiments rested. When Lewis attained a dangerous hold he was booed roundly, but when Caddock broke a threatening hold, escaped from a dangerous situation or applied a painful arm-lock, which was his chief hold, the crowd went into ecstacies.

The defeat of Caddock came as a climax to one of the most bitterly fought mat battles ever seen in this city. Fifteen times before the application of the decisive head and hiplock the sturdy Iowan had resisted the torture of Lewis's headlock. The champion from the outset paid particular attention to gaining this hold and plainly demonstrated that it was his only medium of victory. Caddock, with early strength and a surprising amount of it in the face of his rival's intermittent headlock applications, shook himself free of the hold time after time. The beginning of the end came like a bolt from the sky when Lewis jumped in and secured his favorite hold for the first of five speedy applications.

The men were tugging and mauling each other on their feet shortly after the "hour and a half" call when Lewis suddenly leaped upon his foe and downed Caddock in a headlock. The hold was retained for half a minute before the Iowan finally broke loose. Lewis immediately gripped Caddock's head under his arm, and again the former champion went down. Caddock wriggled and kicked free of this application, but Lewis immediately applied it for the third time and again forced Caddock down.

Caddock Applies Toe-Hold.

The crowd was in an uproar, and Caddock appeared on the verge of defeat as he broke the third successive hold. Like a flash, however, Caddock turned and, grabbing hold of Lewis's toe, twisted his rival's foot in a painful toe-hold which threatened to produce a different ending to the match. Lewis writhed on the mat, his facial contortions reflecting the pain he endured as Caddock held the grip on the champion's toe. Twice Referee George Bothner asked Lewis if he wished to concede the fall to escape the pain, but the Kentuckian grimly shook his head negatively and finally kicked Caddock from him.

Lewis was no sooner on his feet than he leaped in with his arm crooked for the headlock and Caddock was caught in the vise-like grip. The Iowan was borne down, but resisted with all his remaining strength. After half a minute Caddock broke loose, but he was groggy and dazed. Lewis quickly leaped at him again and secured the fifth of this finishing series of holds. Adding leverage from his hips, Lewis tossed Caddock through the air to the mat, where the Iowan lay still as Lewis rolled him over for the victorious fall.

Caddock's performance up to the time of the spectacular ending to the bout, was the more attractive. In every movement the Iowan reflected the easy grace which goes with perfect physical condition. He was fast on his feet, agile as a jungle cat, worked quickly and variably with his hands and legs and carried crushing power in his well-developed arms. The former champion had a variety of holds and a comprehensive knowledge of every trick in the wrestling art. Defensively and offensively Caddock was the more interesting performer.

Contrasting to this was the comparatively lumbering, burly Kentuckian, who relied almost solely on his punishing headlock. Lewis had none of the superb physical development of his rival, although the Kentucky grappler was stronger. The champion, with his headlock and the fact that he put his entire weight on his rival whenever the opportunity afforded, gradually wore Caddock down to a state where resistance was impossible. The fall, then, was easy of attainment.

Champion in Danger.

Several times in the action before the finishing series of headlocks the crowd had opportunity to yell excitedly as Caddock appeared to advantage. There were several instances when Lewis was in danger and the title seemed on the verge of changing hands. Caddock applied his armlock a dozen times, and each time brought Lewis in pain to the mat. Alternating his assault, Caddock employed a half Nelson and body scissors, a toe hold or a crotch and arm hold, as the position of his rival on the mat afforded. Up to the time of the champion's spectacular victory spurt, a decision on points, had it been rendered, would have gone to the Iowan for his clean, steady, persistent and varied work.

The wrestlers went at their work cautiously at first. Caddock kept himself moving most of the time and made it evident from the start that he intended to match the headlock with his speed and skill. Caddock, who has won the name of the man with a thousand holds, showed from the start a decided preference for an arm lock which he used frequently.

The men had been on the mat but a few minutes when Caddock clamped on an arm lock and forced Lewis toward the mat, but the big champion broke the hold before he was in serious danger. Caddock was quick to put it right back on again, and again Lewis broke loose. The champion then got his first opportunity to get a headlock.

Throwing his arm around the neck of Caddock as the latter came out of a scrimmage, Lewis put the challenger in a dangerous position. He pulled Caddock half way to the floor, when the Iowa man lifted the giant Kentuckian into the air by sheer strength and then dropped him hard enough to break the hold.

Caddock at once responded by getting another arm lock, and this time he made the champion suffer for a few seconds as he forced him slowly to the mat. Lewis was plainly showing signs of pain as he went closer and closer to the mat, at the same time throwing all his strength and weight against the hold. Finally, as he seemed about to be forced over and the crowd was on edge with excitement, Lewis suddenly made a desperate lunge, throwing his body through the air, and wriggled away from the grip of his lighter adversary.

By this time the men were working faster though they had not been on the mat half an hour. Though Lewis was tired from his narrow escape he rushed at Caddock and once more clamped on his headlock. Caddock escaped and later he hurled the champion bodily half way across the ring after rising and swinging the body of the big Kentuckian around him as he would a sack of meal.

Relies on Headlock.

At the end of the first hour both men were on their feet, and though Caddock had several times been punished with the headlock, which Lewis used almost to the exclusion of any other hold, the Iowan did not seem to show any ill effects, nor had the difference in the weights of the men seemed to tell on Caddock. He had to this point displayed far more speed than Lewis, but the latter made little effort at speed. Rather his whole plan of attack seemed to be to wait for such chances as he could get to apply the hold which had won other matches for him.

As the men neared the finish of their first hour the battle developed into a series of headlocks and armlocks, for Caddock persisted in the use of the armlock. Both men got their favorite holds repeatedly, only to have the rival wrestler wriggle free before real damage had been done.

The crowd was brought to its feet, however, just before the end of the first hour when Lewis got a headlock and held it for one minute and forty-five seconds. This was the longest time he had been able to hold his slippery rival. Caddock was in a bad way. The right arm of the big champion had been clamped about his neck and the Iowan was slowly forced to the mat. However, after resisting until it seemed that his strength must be sapped, he suddenly lurched and throwing the full weight of his body into a quick movement he pulled clear of Lewis. As Caddock straightened up and moved away from the champion there was a round of cheers from the gallery.

At the end of an hour and a half Caddock was beginning to show the first signs of tiring. It was little wonder, for in spite of his fine condition and the fact that he had several times had Lewis in danger he had himself been punished so much by the headlock that he was beginning to show signs of weakening. These signs were soon borne out when in the last four minutes of the bout Caddock was subjected to a series of headlocks which wore him down so badly that he could not longer resist Lewis, and the end came quickly.

Fred Merkle to Be Member of Rochester Club Next Season

ORMOND BEACH, Fla., Jan. 24.—George Stallings has rounded up Fred Merkle to play first base for the Rochester Internationals this year. They came to an understanding Saturday when Merkle forsook his truck farm here long enough to run up to Jacksonville and meet Stallings. Merkle was able to do this because he has the promise of outright release from the Cubs. It is his ambition to be part owner and manager of a minor league team some day, and he regarded this as a good opening wedge. It is understood he gets the same salary as in Chicago. Merkle was a hard hitter and crack fielder for the Giants for many years and has taken part in numerous world series games. He was a major leaguer from 1907 to the close of the 1920 season.

CLARKSON DEFEATS GARDNER WITH CUE

Scores Victory by 300 to 192 in First Match of Eastern 18.2 Title Play.

Playing up to his standard of other years, T. Henry Clarkson defeated Edward W. Gardner in the opening match of the Class A Eastern championship 18.2 balkline billiard tournament of the National Association of Amateur Billiard Players at the New York A. C. last night. The final score was 300 to 192.

There are five entries in the tournament this year, the others being Edgar T. and Francis S. Appleby and Dr. L. L. Mial. Ten games will be played. As David McAndless, who won the title last year, has since turned professional, the present tourney will create a new champion for the class.

Clarkson had the better control of the balls and played a steadier game throughout than did Gardner. The latter was inclined to be erratic, and overanxiousness brought some of his runs to an end. Clarkson contributed the high run of the evening with a cluster of 69, which put him so far out in front that Gardner was never able again to threaten him. Gardner made a high run of 51, but it was his only big inning of the game, and it did not suffice to put him close to his rival.

Clarkson Makes Long Run.

It took both players several innings to get warmed up to their work, and both were tied at 45 points when Clarkson went to the table for his eighth inning. Gardner had shot with the wrong ball just before this and had left the balls in perfect position for his opponent.

Clarkson proceeded to make the most of the opportunity and, exercising excellent control over the balls and playing some of the best billiards seen during the entire game, he clicked off 69 points before he missed. This run gave him a commanding lead, as he had 114 points when he went to his seat.

For the greater part of this run Clarkson kept the balls at one end of the table and seldom had to drive the length of the table to hold the balls in position. He passed the fifty mark with the balls in one of the corner squares. At one time the balls lined up on him and he had to execute a difficult massé shot, but he gained position again and continued his run. The run had entailed a number of difficult shots at various stages, but Clarkson finally missed on a very simple draw shot. He was endeavoring to land on the edge of the second object ball and his cue ball missed by a hair's breadth.

Unsteadiness Hurts Gardner.

Gardner was quite unsteady and inclined to be erratic, though playing some difficult shots with success. In the tenth inning he gathered the balls and ran 21 points, when he got all three balls so closely together that the cue ball was frozen to the red. With the cue ball between the object balls, it seemed but a simple shot to count, but the cue ball slipped on without counting. In the fourteenth inning Gardner had a run cut short at 5 points when he failed to get the balls out of balk.

Clarkson continued to count consistently, and, with runs of 20 and 30, in addition to a number of smaller ones, he had a total of 191 to 111 at the end of the eighteenth inning. His run of 30 ended when he missed on a simple draw shot, the cue ball failing to take the draw.

Gardner then stepped to the table and made a run of 51 with the best billiards he had played up to that time. He had to make several open-table shots to get the balls together, but, once he had them in position, he nursed them carefully. He missed on a one-cushion shot.

That proved to be the last stand for Gardner, for Clarkson made a run of 49 in the twentieth inning, and added to this with several smaller runs until a succession of 10 put him out in the twenty-seventh inning. Meantime Gardner had been unable to keep the balls together and missed entirely in three innings. He had 192 when Clarkson began the final run of 10 points.

The scores:

Clarkson—0 1 10 9 4 11 10 69 0 5 0 8 1 20 2 4 30 6 11 49 7 4 0 12 5 11 10—300. Average, 11 3-27.

Gardner—0 0 0 5 7 25 8 0 6 21 0 15 1 5 0 9 1 8 51 11 0 0 0 1 2 4 12—192. Average, 7 3-27.

LAYTON AHEAD OF DE ORO.

Alfredo De Oro surprised many who were present at the first session of his 300-point three-cushion billiard match with John Layton yesterday afternoon at Kline's Strand Academy, when he defeated the champion by the remarkably close score of 50 points to 49 in a game that lasted for sixty-two innings.

It was believed by many that the many times champion, who has not taken much active part in competition recently, was not in anything like his old form, but that first bank of fifty points proved to the contrary. Both players had high runs of 7, 4, 4 and 3.

At the 32d inning Layton had all the better of it, the score being 36 to 18 in his favor, but then the Cuban expert settled down to his old style steady game and managed to overtake Layton and then just edged out at the finish by a single point.

In the second bank of 50 points, which was played last night Layton turned the tables on De Oro and won by the score of 51 to 38, in a game that lasted for but 51 innings, in which Layton tallied high runs of 7, 6, 4 and 4, while De Oro had 5, 4, 4 and 3 as his high runs.

The Cuban played his old-time safety game, and along with the safety went his usual clever playing of many difficult shots, while Layton's game was of the dogged, sure style, which resulted in his winning the championship, with frequent most difficult shots added to arouse the admiration of the onlookers. The score now stands 100 for Layton and 88 for De Oro. The match will be continued today.

ROBERTS SHOWS THE WAY.

The amateur Class C 18.2 balkline tournament under the auspices of the American Amateur Billiard Association, which has been in progress for a week at Maurice Daly's academy, has reached a total of fifteen games. There are seven contestants, and a schedule of six more games will be required to finish the event.

The games played thus far have been characterized by excessive safety play, and accordingly have been replete in hard shots, many of them so original in conception that Hoppe or Horemans would hardly have attempted similar effects.

LA RUE KEEPS ON WINNING.

George La Rue took a tighter grip on the lead he has in the amateur snooker pool championship at Doyle's Broadway Billiard Room last night when he defeated Nat Lewis by a score of 51 to 33. This gives La Rue a string of four straight wins and, since he has but one more game to play, it looks as though he will be a starter in the final.

CLASS C CUE MEN PLAY.

Amateur Class C billiardists started a tournament at Fuller's Academy yesterday for the championship of the class at 18.2 balkline billiards and Dr. Tuttle proved to be the winner of the first game. He defeated Lieutenant King by the score of 150 to 82 in a game that lasted for forty-six innings.

Dr. Tuttle's high run was 13 and his average was 3 33-46, while Lieutenant King's high run was 9 and his average 1 36-46. John Lang and Fred Schwartz will play today in the continuation of the tournament.

OAKWOOD PURSE IS TAKEN BY FANTOCHE

Special to The New York Times.

NEW ORLEANS, La., Jan. 24.—The three-year-old Botheration from the stable of Ownbey & Kinney, which has been knocking at the door recently and commanding support with each start, again failed his backers at the Fair Grounds this afternoon when he was defeated in the Oakwood Purse after he had been sent to the post a heavily backed favorite. He finished second, half a length back of Fantoche, while White Star got up to take third place in this mile event, which was the feature of the card.

Botheration has been so close up in his recent races that his backers have refused to lose faith in him, and as a result he was made an even money choice this afternoon, almost to the exclusion of all the other horses. However, the horse might have shown to better advantage had he received a better ride. Roberts took him back several times and did not give him a chance to make a determined run until the stretch was reached when Botheration closed fast and easily took second from White Star, which had been setting the pace.

Fantoche suffered some interference, but had all the speed when he got clear, and rushing up in the stretch took the lead at the sixteenth pole and outgamed Botheration, to win by a narrow margin. None of the others were serious contenders except Twopair, which was up with the front runners for a part of the distance, but tired badly and retired in the stretch.

Ruth's Bat to Start Ball On Way to San Francisco

A drive by Babe Ruth, which will start a ball on its way across the continent, is to be a feature of the Knights of Columbus Annual Convention in San Francisco next August. In a specially constructed ball will be inserted a message by Ruth to his brother Knights urging action on the recent appeal of Cardinal Gibbons for Babe's alma mater—St. Mary's Industrial School of Baltimore. Babe will bat the ball in Baltimore and it will be relayed across the continent by thousands of Knights of Columbus, to be organized for the stunt. The plans for the relay will include desert and mountain country where trainmen will catch and carry the ball. The ball, started by Babe in Baltimore, will finish its travels in the convention hall of the Knights of Columbus, where it will be opened and the message read to the Knights.

Courses for Championships to Be Selected — Date Set for Women's Eastern Tourney.

The annual meeting of the New Jersey State Golf Association will be held this afternoon at the Princeton Club. Among matters to be handled at the meeting will be the election of officers for the ensuing year, and the choosing of courses for holding the two championship tournaments sponsored by the association, the amateur and junior events.

No advance intimation has been given of the probable choice for the two events, though it is known that several clubs have tendered their courses. Last year the amateur championship was held at Arcola, while the juniors staged their battle at Montclair. The 1919 events were held at Deal and Essex County respectively. Following the election of officers for the year, the new executive committee will doubtless also take up the matter of the New Jersey-Westchester team matches. It has been intimated that a change may be made to increase the membership of each team this year to twenty men.

Although the Women's Metropolitan Golf Association does not hold its annual meeting until Thursday, when it will choose a course for this year's championship, at least one other fixture of considerable importance to women golfers of the Metropolitan district has already been set. The Women's Eastern Golf Association championship tournament will be played this year on June 6-7. The Country Club of Brookline has been chosen as the course to entertain this gathering.

As is the custom the Griscom Cup matches will follow immediately on the heels of the Eastern championship, three days, June 8-10 being allotted for the playing of these triangular battles. In last year's clashes Philadelphia made a rather clean sweep of first honors. Mrs. Ronald H. Barlow won the individual championship while the Quakers also triumphed in the matches which are paramount to determining the team champions of the East.

Just how big these events will loom in the year's program for women will depend in a large measure on what comes of the proposal to send a team of women golfers abroad to battle for the British women's championship. Last year Mrs. C. H. Vanderbeck and the Misses Marion Hollins, Mildred Caverly and Rosamond Sherwood went over to compete for the British crown. This pilgrimage kept either of the quartet from being present to contest for the Eastern championship.

This year it has been reported that Mrs. R. H. Barlow, Mrs. C. H. Vanderbeck, Mrs. W. A. Gavin, Miss Hollins and Miss Caverly, together with the national champion, Miss Alexa Stirling, will make up the invading force. Should they go over neither will be able to return here in time for the Eastern championship, since the British event will not be held until around the middle of May, and following this will come the French championship, starting June 8, with probabilities strong that at least a good part of the American delegation to Britain will also enter the French event at Fontainebleau.

The absence of this bevy of stars, provided they go abroad, would leave the contest for the championship a wide-open affair. For the last ten years only four players have succeeded in winning the title. They are Mrs. Barlow, Mrs. Gavin, Mrs. Vanderbeck and Mrs. H. Arnold Jackson. Meantime there is quite an array of young talent crowding up into the front rank. This list includes Miss Elizabeth Gordon and Miss Glenna Collett of Providence, Miss May Bell of Philadelphia, Miss Kate Bomann of Plainfield, Miss Sylvia Highton of Hackensack and others.

MARANVILLE WANTS BIT OF SALE PRICE

Shortstop Says He'll Go to Pirates from Braves as Arranged if He Is "Fixed Up."

BOSTON, Jan. 24.—"Rabbit" Maranville appeared reconciled today to his passing to the Pittsburgh Pirates from the Boston Braves, with whom he has won fame as a shortstop.

"While I'd rather remain in Boston, I'll be tickled to death to go to Pittsburgh if things are fixed up satisfactorily by both clubs," said the Rabbit at his home in Springfield today in discussing the deal.

Bill Southworth and Fred Nicholson, outfielders, and Walter Barbare, infielder, are the players who come here in exchange.

Manager Fred Mitchell, in making the announcement of the trade for President Grant of the Boston Club, said no money was involved. Barney Dreyfuss, owner of the Pittsburgh Club, was reported to persist in the statement that in addition to the three players Boston received a sum in cash, said to be $25,000. President Grant is at present in New York.

Maranville said today that he had heard nothing officially from the Boston management and would have no definite statement to make until he was notified of the trade by the club. "If they fix me up I'll go," he said, intimating that he wanted a share of any purchase money.

Although Maranville is popular here, many fans expressed satisfaction today over the trade, which was not unexpected. Although loth to see the diminutive shortstop go, they feel that the Boston team has been materially strengthened by the deal. Nicholson and Southworth, both good-hitting outfielders, will fill a gap in the wide ranges of the Braves' outer gardens that has existed for years.

BISHOP WINS TROPHY.

Amateur fencing bouts for the Hammond Foils, donated by Dr. Graeme M. Hammond, were held last night at the New York Athletic Club gymnasium, twenty-four youthful exponents of the art participating. The foils were captured by L. F. Bishop Jr., manager of the Yale fencing team. Bishop, who is a very cool fencer and on the way to becoming a master of the parry and reposte, won six out of seven matches in the elimination round. In the final round he won four matches to three by the runner-up, C. A. McPherson of the N. Y. A. C.

Among the competitors to go through the qualifying round was Robert Gasson of Bridgeport, Conn., who won all seven of his bouts, but he was not allowed to participate in the final round. Gasson, who is a Belgian by birth, and was formerly amateur fencing champion in his native land, was considered by the judges to be fencing out of his class. He was held to be of senior rather than junior rating.

APPEARS IN GREAT FETTLE

Already Preparing for Battle Whose Outcome, He Thinks, Will Put Lost Crown Again on His Head.

Radiating confidence in his ability to "come back," a little slower in his movements than in the past, due no doubt to increased superfluous weight and the addition of several years, but more affable than ever before, Jess Willard, former world's heavyweight champion—just plain Big Jess now—dropped into Manhattan yesterday on business bent. The tall Kansan, who crumpled before the sledge-hammer blows of Jack Dempsey in the memorable ring affair on Maumee Bay, is here for the double purpose of closing arrangements for his prospective return match against Dempsey, scheduled by Promoter Tex Rickard for Madison Square Garden, March 17, and to attend to some oil business which will take him to Boston within a few days. The former titleholder arrived here yesterday afternoon at 1:30, accompanied by Ray Archer, his business manager, and immediately established himself at the Biltmore.

One of the first things Big Jess did upon his arrival was to communicate with Rickard and arrange for a conference to discuss details and terms of the proposed Dempsey bout. Rickard and Willard held council at the Biltmore last night, but the Garden promoter would not divulge the results of the conference. It is expected that he will divulge details of the Garden bout today.

Seems Even Bigger Than Before.

Willard looks and, he says, feels, in excellent health. He is bigger in weight and, to the casual onlooker, in height, than ever before. He appears even bigger than the man mountain of the days before the Dempsey tornado at Toledo. Gripping Jess's right hand induces a feeling of helplessness, for when Jess grips in return the sensation is comparable to that experienced by locking a vise on the digits.

The dethroned champion expects to get another chance at the title which once was his. Willard, in fact, is even now preparing for a bout against Dempsey. He said his understanding of the matter was that the bout was all arranged for March 17, and he is eager to support by evidence his contention that he is Dempsey's superior.

Willard is not convinced that the terrific pasting he took at Toledo was other than an accident. And he is laying his plans to prove this. He has been conditioning himself for the last six or eight weeks, he said, boxing, indulging in gymnasium work and taking long hikes over the country roads in the vicinity of his home, at Lawrence, Kan. The workouts have kept him in good shape, and, with a little sharpening up in his boxing, he thinks he will be fit for another clash with the thumping Dempsey.

Laughs at Tales of Losses.

Willard's finances are not in such deplorable state that he is compelled to seek another match to replenish the family exchequer. Asked about the reports that he was in straitened circumstances financially, Jess guffawed loudly and heartily, and, suddenly stopping, looked serious and exclaimed: "Gosh, if only that was true! Think of all the money I'd save in income taxes." Willard explained it was only his desire to prove that he is Dempsey's master that impelled the quest for a return meeting with the man who toppled him from the ring's highest throne. He is eager for this match, and will agree to it under any reasonable circumstances. The former champion said he would not demand an exorbitant guarantee, but would work on a percentage basis if Promoter Rickard demanded it.

"I'm feeling fine," said Willard, in his typical quiet drawl. "I've been boxing with Jack Hempel, doing gymnasium work and taking long walks over the country roads, and feel great. I've done no running at all, because I never was much for running, either before or after I won the title, and right now I don't see any need for it at all. With a month's strict, hard training, boxing regularly, to sharpen my direction and judgment of distance, I think I'll be ready to stand before Dempsey in better form than I enjoyed at Toledo.

"Our last clash hasn't convinced me that Dempsey is better than I am. Just the contrary. I'm more than ever satisfied that I can beat him. I don't take much stock in alibis. You know you often hear after a battle that a man's been drugged, or was sick, or got bad news from home before entering the ring, or something like that, and I never could see that at all. I've never made an alibi, and don't intend to at this late date.

Calls Beating an Accident.

"When I say that I don't think Dempsey can beat me I mean just that. That bout at Toledo was just an accident, that's all. He clipped me in the first round and after that I didn't know anything. The result was a surprise to me, but in a sense it wasn't. You know, setbacks come in the life of every man. You can't name a ball player who will go along year in and year out, catching fly balls without missing one now and then. It's only natural, and that's the way I regard the Dempsey bout. And I intend to prove this when I face Dempsey again."

Willard's plans for training for the Dempsey bout are undetermined. Not until all arrangements for the match have been completed will the former champion adopt a set program. He said yesterday he expects to come East at least a month before the battle and conclude his training work either in this city or in New Jersey. Asked as to his weight Willard said he guessed it was about 255 or 260 pounds, although in his street clothes he appeared heavier. The former champion expects to stay here about three or four days, or, perhaps, a week, and then go to Boston for several days to transact his oil business.

Next to discussing his prospective bout against Dempsey, Willard likes to talk of his home. He is now preparing to move his family, Mrs. Willard and five children, to a new home at Hollywood, a suburb of Los Angeles, Cal. Jess's objection to Lawrence is that the roads are not ideal for riding and Mrs. Willard is an ardent enthusiast of this form of recreation. Then, too, he says the schools are not quite up to the standard he wants for his children.

WOULD MAKE MARTIN BOX.

Louisiana Asks New York to Help Force Him to Keep Bout Contract.

NEW ORLEANS, Jan. 24.—The Louisiana Boxing Commission announced today that every effort would be made to force Bob Martin, A. E. F. heavyweight champion, to carry out his contract to meet Martin Burke here Jan. 31. Martin has wired that he would be unable to meet the local fighter because he has signed with Tex Rickard to meet Bill Brennan at Madison Square Garden on Feb. 18.

Chairman Ourr of the commission has wired the New York Boxing Commission and the International Sporting Club, pointing out that Martin's contract to meet Burke was signed previously to that with Brennan, and asking those two organization to assist in forcing Martin to keep his date here.

Martin is said to have stated in his message that Tex Rickard objected to his meeting any one before the Brennan engagement.

Tilden and Johnston Lose To Australian Doubles Team

SYDNEY, N. S. W., Jan. 24.—In a series of tennis matches here today between the American Davis Cup players and local experts, William M. Johnston defeated Patrick O'Hara Wood in the singles, 6—2, 10—8, while R. W. Heath won from Watson M. Washburn, 6—2, 6—4.

In the doubles Norman E. Brooks and O'Hara Wood defeated William T. Tilden and Johnston, 6—3, 8—6, 4—6, 7—5.

FIVE GUNNERS TIED IN LIVE BIRD TEST

Shootoff for Hercules Trophy Made Necessary—Wadsworth and McVoy Winners.

Special to The New York Times.

READING, Pa., Jan. 24.—Fifty-six wing shots, the cream of the amateur ranks of the East, faced the Spring Valley traps here today, in the opening day's events of the sixth annual Great Eastern handicap tournament at live birds, held under the auspices of the Hercules Gun Club of Reading. Among the trophy winners were David Wadsworth 3d, of Auburn, N. Y.; Martin J. McVoy Jr. and Walter Bauer of New York City, a trio of New York Athletic Club gunners.

In the Hercules preliminary handicap at twenty birds, sliding handicap, rise twenty-seven to thirty-one yards, Earle Meirath, the Pennsylvania live bird champion, tied with William Clegg of Philadelphia, Aug. Yermal of Tamaqua, R. B. Johnson of Plainfield, N. J., and George M. Howell of Northumberland, for the Hercules Trophy, the high gun prize. Each had nineteen kills. Frank M. Troeh of Vancouver, Washington, the winner of the world's amateur championship at the recent Antwerp Olympic games, tied for the runner up trophy with two down.

David Wadsworth 3d, one of the "winged foot" organization, won the Class B trophy with seventeen kills, while Martin J. McVoy Jr. was awarded the Class C cup, registering sixteen kills. Among the other New York A. C. gunners shooting were Reginald Sinclair and Walter Bauer, who killed fifteen and thirteen birds, respectively.

The Spring Valley Introductory, at fifteen birds, had George M. Howell of Northumberland as honor man with a straight. Frank M. Troeh, the champion, was among the runners up, while Walter Bauer of the Travers Island squad won the Class C cup.

Ben Donnelly, a member of the Olympic trapshooting team, arrived here tonight and with the other members of the New York Athletic Club squad will compete in the classic Great Eastern Handicap, emblematic of the live bird championship of the East, scheduled for tomorrow.

PILKINGTON IS WINNER.

Outpoints Maxwell in 12-Round Bout at Star Sporting Club

Charley Pilkington, former amateur featherweight champion, got the judges' decision over Frankie Maxwell in the twelve-round bout which was the feature of last night's show at the Star Sporting Club. Maxwell took the lead early in the bout but from the fifth round to the finish Pilkington showed to advantage. Pilkington weighed 132 pounds and Maxwell 134 pounds.

The twelve-round semi-final between Sol Seamon and Jimmy Blute resulted in a draw. At the end of twelve rounds the judges disagreed and the referee declared the contest a draw. Seamon weighed 126 pounds and Blute was six pounds heavier.

BACK WITH WILDE'S SCALP.

Pete Herman of New Orleans, former world's bantamweight champion, returned home yesterday on the Carmania, fresh from his knockout victory over Jimmy Wilde in a bout in London, Jan. 13, and eager to secure a return match against Joe Lynch, the west side lad who relieved Herman of the midget title the night before he sailed for England.

Herman probably will start immediately on a campaign for a return bout against Lynch. He had little to add to the cabled reports of his victory over Wilde, the sensational little British flyweight, whom he stopped in the seventeenth round of a scheduled twenty-round contest.

BOXERS ARE SUSPENDED.

Bobby Michaels, local featherweight boxer, was suspended for sixty days, and Johnny Reisler, another local boxer, was suspended for ninety days, it was announced yesterday by the New York State Boxing Commission, as a result of their disqualification in a bout at Madison Square Garden Jan. 14. Referee Patsy Haley disqualified the boxers because of an unsatisfactory bout. In addition to the suspension the commission has notified Promoter Tex Rickard to withhold payment of the money the boxers were to have received for their bout.

COWARD AND VIETOR ADVANCE ON COURT

Play in the second round of the national Class B squash tennis tournament was continued yesterday at the Squash Club, and in addition two matches in the third round were played, as the opponents happened to be present and the courts vacant. There were a few defaults, owing to unavoidable absence of certain players, and there was some very lively squash, too. J. C. Rochester, who is looked upon as the dark horse of the tournament, went through the second round as well as the first by default. In the second round it was F. S. Ritchie of the Harvard Club who was to have met the Squash Club player, but he was called to Boston on business.

C. T. Cooney of the Yale Club defaulted to F. W. Chambers of the Columbia Club and J. A. Vietor of the Yale Club met R. H. Monks of the Princeton Club in a postponed match, which the former won by the scores of 15—11, 15—12. Monks put up a good game, but Vietor's greater speed proved to be the deciding factor.

E. H. Heminway of the Harvard Club beat Basil Harris, Princeton Club, 15—13, 15—9. Harris started well but could not keep up the pace. The Princetonian took the lead in the first game by a score of 10—4, but then Heminway, by speedy, accurate playing, forged ahead and won.

Willis Putnam of the Columbia Club defeated Jarvis Cromwell of Princeton in a peculiar match. At the start Cromwell had things all his own way, but Putnam finally settled down to his game and hit up his speed. Cromwell fell and hurt his ankle close to the end of the game, and thereafter Putnam had things all his own way.

T. R. Coward of the Yale Club downed W. A. Kimbel of the Columbia Club in a third-round match. The Columbia player put up a surprisingly good game except when he tried to speed up, and on such occasions Coward, who played a steady game, gained ground. The score was 15—3, 15—12.

National Class B Squash—Second Round—F. W. Chambers, Columbia Club, won from C. T. Cooney, Yale Club, by default; E. H. Heminway, Harvard Club, defeated Basil Harris, Princeton Club, 15—13, 15—9; H. B. A. A. DEFEATS SHAMROCKS

Boston Hockey Players Beat Crack Canadian Team, 3 to 2.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, Jan. 24.—The Boston Athletic Club hockey team had its hardest match of the season tonight against the Shamrocks of Montreal, and the local skaters got the deciding goal for a 3 to 2 victory only in the final period.

After five minutes' play at the start of the game, McFarland scored for Montreal, and it was not until the second period was well along that the Boston A. A. tied things up on Percy's goal, which was the result of a great rush. O'Sullivan soon tallied and put the Boston team ahead. Just before the bell, however, Spriggins counted for Montreal.

The winning goal, which was shot by Downing in the third period, was a lucky one, the puck hopping over the goal tender's stick. It was a great exhibition of hockey for both teams, but with Boston playing the tightest defense.

The line-up:

B. A. A. (3).		SHAMROCKS (2).
Wylde	G.	Lukeman
Stubbs	P.	D. Campbell
O'Sullivan	C. P.	Musgrove
Downing	L. W.	Desbeian
Hutchinson	C.	McFarland
Percy	R. W.	Spriggins

Goals—McFarland, Percy, O'Sullivan, Spriggins, Downing.

Substitutes—B. A. A., Murphy for Hutchinson, Ingalls for Downing, Shamrock, Herferman for McFarland, Brady for Spriggins, Spriggins for Campbell.

Referees—Clifford and Watson. Umpires—Fruitier and Edwards. Timers—Kanairy, Carleton, Murphy and Hendree. Time of periods—Three of 15 minutes each.

LAD SHOWS SPEED ON ICE.

The youngster was Arnold Kahn. In the final heat he was not able to hold his own with those he had to contend with. J. Theobald was the winner.

The summary:

One Mile, Class A, Handicap—Won by Paul Forsman, N. Y. A. C., 70 yards; H. Neibuhr, Tremont Skating Club, 70 yards, second; Mike McLoughlin, Tremont Skating Club, 75 yards, third. Time—3:22 3-5.

One-Half Mile, Class B, Handicap—Won by J. Jacobs, 40 yards; Al Williams, 10 yards, second; W. Jaffray, 30 yards, third. Time—1:46 4-5.

One-Half Mile Novice—Won by J. Theobald; W. L. Kahn, second; Carl Schaeffer, third. Time—1:56 3-5.

BROOKLYN RIDERS VICTORS AT POLO

Aided by a handicap of three goals, the trio representing the Riding and Driving Club of Brooklyn yesterday defeated the Durland team, No. 1, in a game of the junior polo tournament at Durland's. The final score was 8½ goals to 6.

Alford and Pflug rode cleverly and their mallets accounted for most of the goals scored by the winners. Pflug made two spectacular drives, which gave the Brooklyn trio a lead in the first chukker. Both shots were made from difficult angles. Alford was also busy throughout the period and scored two goals, but in the second session he was penalized half a point for a foul after he had once more sent the ball between the goal posts.

The Durland players were handicapped at two goals each, while the Brooklyn men were handicapped at a single goal apiece. Gilman scored two for the Durland team in quick succession during the first period and Crossman followed with another before the session ended.

Crossman was again prominent in the final session, when toward the end of the chukker he crossed the goal line twice more, once with an extremely difficult shot from the side of the field. Phillips added another to the total.

The line-up:

BROOKLYN (8½).	DURLAND 1 (6).
1—K. Alford.	1—M. Phillips.
2—J. Smith	2—F. Gilman.
Back—C. Pflug.	Back—H.S. Crossman.

Goals—First period: Alford (2), Pflug (3), Gilman (2), Crossman. Second period: Pflug, Phillips, Crossman (2). Penalty—Alford, ½.

Referee—D. O. Nelson. Time of periods—Two of 10 minutes each.

A telegram was received this morning from the Tech management in which willingness to fill the date was expressed. The offer is being considered by the Academy athletic authorities, but there is some doubt as to whether it would be well to play another team as strong as Tech.

THE OPERA

By Richard Aldrich

The Chicago Opera.

NORMA, dramatic opera in three acts and five scenes; book in Italian by Felice Romani, founded on an old French story; music by Vincenzo Bellini. At the Manhattan Opera House.

Pollione .... Forrest Lamont
Oroveso .... Virgilio Lazzari
Norma .... Rosa Raisa
Adalgisa .... Gabriella Besanzoni
Clotide .... Philine Falco
Flavius .... Jose Mojica

Conductor—Gino Marinuzzi.

Having contributed for a good many years a considerable part of the musical season of New York, the Chicago Opera Company opened its engagement of six weeks last night at the Manhattan Opera House. The first performance was one of Bellini's "Norma," which the company gave here last season with Mme. Rosa Raisa in the title rôle. The opera house was crowded, of course, to the doors, though there were a few empty seats, and the greeting given to the visiting singers was enthusiastic, particularly that to Mme. Raisa.

The Chicago company returns to the house to which it traces its origin in the enterprise of Oscar Hammerstein. It comes after a magnificent season of preliminary advertising in columns of newspaper accounts of Miss Mary Garden's appointment to the place of manager; of her views, hopes and plans; of the fabulous number of special cars and trains necessary to move the scenery and transport the singers, and much else of deep import. Miss Garden will not only direct but will also sing. A season of the Chicago opera without her singing would be but a Barmecide feast and inconceivable.

There is thus every expectation of success for the visiting opera in the ensuing six weeks, with performances every evening and a matinée each week; with new and unexpected additions to the répertory; old work resuscitated, new singers introduced, old favorites restored to public acclamation. Altogether a hectic season may be anticipated, in which operatic performances in New York will number at the two opera houses thirteen or fourteen a week.

As for the opening performance of "Norma," sung very loud, it was not so easy to create a profound excitement by it in the breasts of old operagoers. Its appeal to the public taste of this time is not a strong one. Much of the music is sadly faded, even "numbers" which were once household words; and there is much tedium in the long stretches of recitative. "Norma," in fact, is revived in this day only as a "vehicle" for the behoof of a singer. And that singer is, of course, Mme. Raisa.

Her impersonation of the heroine was one that secured the solid and enthusiastic support of a large following in the audience. For those who are deeply impressed by an extraordinary voice of much power and range, capable of giving forth stentorian tones in accents of tragic intensity; by an imposing personality; by a statuesque stage presence that fills the eye, Mme. Raisa's performance was a triumph of artistic achievement.

Others stopped to consider that her voice, if large, is crude in quality; that her singing lacks lamentably many of the finer graces; that there is little legato, that the phrasing is disjected and dismembered, that florid passages are delivered without the finish, the precision and the brilliancy that are their excuse for being. Her singing of "Casta Diva" in the first act was an epitome of the kind of singing that was heard from her through the opera. Mme. Raisa's Norma has undoubtedly a powerful dramatic quality, and in aspect, in pose and gesture is singularly in keeping with the character.

The singing of the other members of the cast also left something to be desired and made it seem clearer than ever that any revival of "Norma" is tolerable only if it be given completely in the style in which it was conceived, a style which presupposes before anything else fine singing in the manner of the "bel canto." Mme. Besanzoni, remembered from her appearances at the Metropolitan Opera House a few seasons ago, was the Adalgisa, no better now in voice and style than when she departed hence, but contributing something to the dramatic action of the piece. The Pollione was Forrest Lamont, whose voice, in itself not without promise except in its lower ranges, is not used advantageously, and whose ideas of the style of the music of "Norma" are hopelessly at sea. Perhaps the best singing that was heard in the performance was that of Mr. Lazzari, the Oroveso, who appeared here last season in the same part.

Mr. Marinuzzi conducted the performance efficiently. The chorus, particularly of the men, sang well. The scenery was of varied excellence, the best setting being that representing the grave of the Druids.

There was much applause throughout the performance, and at the ends of the acts the singers were repeatedly called before the curtain.

MARY GARDEN RECEIVES.

Manhattan Opera House Radiant With Gowns and Jewels.

The large assembly at the Manhattan Opera House last night presented some interesting side features, such as the informal calls paid by many of the boxholders to Miss Mary Garden, the new general director, who occupied a lower box on the left-hand side of the amphitheatre.

The house was radiant with gowns and jewels, and memories of the old administration of this temple of music mingled in the spectacle of a first night, with Mrs. Oscar Hammerstein entertaining a large box party, which included Miss Margaret Wilson, daughter of the President.

Miss Garden received informally, of course, and greeted the President's daughter among those who dropped in to offer congratulations. Miss Wilson was gowned in iridescent green, with a long sash of gold and green, and wore a circlet of gold leaves in her hair. Miss Garden was in black and gold, with a string of large pearls, having a large diamond clasp, and her wide bandeau of small diamonds had a feathery edge of green. Her guests for the evening were Mme. Alda and Arturo Toscanini.

Mme. Tetrazzini occupied a box, entertaining a party of friends, also Mrs. Arthur Hudson Marks, formerly Mrs. Lydia Locke Harrold.

Among the boxholders and those in the orchestra were Harold F. McCormick, Mrs. Charles H. Truax, Mrs. Albert Cornell, Mr. and Mrs. James L. Hand, Mr. and Mrs. Loudon Charlton, Mr. and Mrs. James C. Barr, Miss Dolly Marian Lewis, Mrs. Florence French of Chicago, Mme. Hempel, Mr. and Mrs. John Aspegren, Mrs. Joseph K. Barber, Mrs. Herman Behr, Mrs. William A. Bradford, Mrs. A. D. Bramhall, Mrs. C. Vanderbilt Cross, Sir Joseph and Lady Duveen, Mrs. J. C. Edgar, Mrs. Henry A. Goman, Mrs. C. C. Griswold, Mrs. Frank S. Hastings, Mrs. J. F. Havemeyer, Mrs. N. P. Ketcham, Mrs. A. I. Hamm, Mrs. William F. Sheehan and William J. Sloane.

Among others who will appear in the boxes and act as patrons for the season are Mrs. Vincent Astor, Mrs. J. S. Browning, Mrs. Albert Cornell, Mrs. Ira Davenport, Mrs. William H. Day, Mrs. S. R. Guggenheim, Mrs. Leonard L. Hill, Mrs. William A. Jamison, Mrs J. Langeloth, Francis M. Bacon Jr., Edmund L. Baylies, Tracy Dows, W. B. Osgood Field, Harry Harkness Flagler, Alden Freeman, G. G. Frelinghuysen, Frank Gray Griswold, Lewis Iselin, Samuel K. Jacobs, Leonard L. Landis, H. T. Kingsbury, Livingston Keyes, Willard V. King and William H. Hirst.

Miss Farrar Sings Louise Again.

Charpentier's "Louise," newly produced by the Metropolitan company, was sung for the second time at the Opera House on Broadway last evening before the influential Monday subscription, which applauded Mr. Gatti-Casazza's fine spectacle of nocturnal Paris, as designed by Joseph Urban. Miss Farrar, in the title rôle, added some elaboration of detail to her interpretation of the heroine, as she had done a few years ago with the "later" Louise of a sequel opera, "Julien," to which the composer is now said to have prepared a third follower, with the title "L'Amour du Faubourg." Orville Harrold as the young Julien and Whitehill as the father shared honors last night among a cast of three dozen named parts, and Albert Wolff conducted.

THE PLAY

By Alexander Woollcott

A Fifth Cohan.

Georgette Cohan, young, pretty and strongly resembling the celebrated father whose namesake she is, made her first appearance on the American stage yesterday afternoon when she went on unannounced during one of her mother's songs at the Palace. London saw her in 1919 when she appeared briefly as Peter Pan in the Christmas revival of that Barrie perennial, but all last season's rumors that she was to make a spectacular début here under her father's management and direction came to nothing, and it was a modest and unheralded first appearance that the chance patrons at the Palace attended yesterday with much beating of palms and other evidences of cordiality. To describe her début as unannounced is to put it exactly enough, and yet the well authorized hint that something handsome in the way of a surprise had been arranged to mark Ethel Levey's return unleashed a secret of Polichinelle.

Georgette Cohan did no more than dance a few filial steps in a boyish and awkward manner and sing a few phrases in a voice deep enough to bear witness to a double inheritance. Then, when it was over and the aisle was full of ushers staggering forward with baskets of flowers, she bounced out again, pointed a familiar finger at the audience, and through the side of her mouth proclaimed, "I thank you, and my mother thanks you, and my father thanks you," to the great delight of everybody present.

Ethel Levey returns with all her old skill and vitality. Starting here in the days of the Four Cohans, she departed for London, and there established herself as a great favorite in days when such a phenomenon was far rarer than it has been of recent seasons. She has come back on a flying trip with the poise of a dozen duchesses. Even when she emerged in a mildly Grecian robe and delivered in lugubrious recitative a tasteless and stupid rigmarole called "Destiny," her own extraordinary force and distinction kept breaking through and reminding you that she could probably play Lady Macbeth without incurring disaster.

It was in a song called "Mary Rose"—a faint and somewhat vulgar reminiscence of the "Marie-Odile" travesty of a bygone Follies—that Miss Cohan was introduced. The purport of its several verses was to confront Barrie's star-eyed heroine after her twenty-five-year absence on the Island That Likes To Be Visited and ask her suspiciously, "Mary Rose, where you been?"

Doris Keane to Revive "Romance."

Doris Keane, who has not acted in this country for nearly five years, will be seen here again in Edward Sheldon's "Romance" in February or March. Miss Keane will revive the play at the Alvin Theatre in Pittsburgh on Jan. 31, with her husband, Basil Sidney, in the leading male rôle, which he acted in London. A. E. Anson will also have his original rôle. After a few weeks on tour the revival will be seen in New York. Miss Keane will be under the direction of Lee Shubert.

"Diff'rent" for Matinees at Selwyn.

The newest Eugene G. O'Neill play, "Different," which the Provincetown Players recently acted at their theatre in Washington Square, will be brought uptown next week. It will be played at the Selwyn Theatre on Monday, Tuesday, Thursday and Friday afternoons, with the same cast which appeared in it downtown. "The Emperor Jones," accordingly, will be temporarily withdrawn.

THEATRICAL NOTES.

The opening of "In the Night Watch" at the Century has been postponed until Saturday night.

Rehearsals of "Getting Gertie's Garter," by Wilson Collison and Avery Hopwood, began yesterday. The play was formerly known as "Gloria's Garter."

The new revues on the New Amsterdam roof will be known as the Ziegfeld Garden Frolic and the Ziegfeld Midnight Frolic and will begin at 9 o'clock and midnight, respectively. They will open on Tuesday night, Feb. 8.

The Metropolitan Life Insurance Company has bought out the Morosco Theatre for the performance of "The Bat" on Friday night.

Butler Davenport has purchased the site at 140 East Twenty-seventh Street, adjoining the Bramhall Playhouse, and will enlarge his theatre at the end of the current season. The present building will be torn down and a new one constructed.

The performance of "The Broken Wing" at the Forty-eighth Street Theatre last night was a benefit in aid of the chapel fund of St. Joseph's Academy, Brentwood, L. I.

Grace La Rue has been added to the list of those who will appear at the Hippodrome next Sunday night in aid of the Neighborhood Circle.

Otto Kruger last night made his first appearance in the title rôle of "The Meanest Man in the World" at the Hudson. The part has been acted hitherto by George M. Cohan.

AN ALPHABET OF APPROVAL DONNELLY to HERFORD.
DOROTHY DONNELLY—The humor, truth and charm of the play are irresistible. Its acting is flawless.
WALTER PRICHARD EATON—I went with a strong prejudice against the play because of the criticisms and came away with a fine enthusiasm for it. It struck me in the middle.
EDNA FERBER—A play that makes you say: "But how did Zona Gale know that about me?" It has no appeal for one who has never been a wife, husband, father, mother, daughter, son, old maid, bachelor, sweetheart or lover.
JAMES MONTGOMERY FLAGG—I had a bully time watching Lulu and her relatives because they're so darned human.
RUBY GOSS GOODNOW—I adored it. It is perfect.
ROBERT HENRI—For me the play of the season is "Miss Lulu Bett." It is a great Folk Play. It is beautifully set, beautifully acted in every part. It's healthy and it's full of fun. I love to laugh and I had plenty of that, and the laughs came because the thing was so well said and done, and so true. The play has a great integrity. It's all about America, about us. Everybody ought to see it and have the fun and the feel and the wisdom of it and something to think about days after the curtain is down.
BEATRICE HERFORD—I enjoyed it thoroughly and am going to see it again.
OLIVER HERFORD—I don't know which I liked best—the book, the play or Carroll McComas's performance.

WARNING!
I hereby warn all Theatrical Managers and Producers that Mr. John Meehan has an iron-clad agreement with me, and it cannot be broken without paying the price.
Mr. Meehan's sensational success as the Vagabond in "THE TAVERN" is due entirely to my direction and the words I gave him to speak, and I shall fight legally any man or body of men, attempting to steal his services as Actor or Stage Director.
If Mr. Meehan is, as they say, the find of the year, don't forget that it was I who found him, and I intend to protect my rights.

COMMUTERS' FARES TAXED BY THE STATE

Union Dues Also Must Be Included in Returns, but Charity Donations Are Exempt.

NO LEVY MADE ON PENSIONS

Share in Inheritance Can Be Computed on Basis of Its Present Value.

Questions connected with the administration of the State income tax law were answered by the New York State Income Tax Bureau in a statement issued yesterday. The statement follows:

Mechanic—In my State return may my income be reduced by amounts paid for commutation fares and also my union dues? Answer—No. Commutation fares are not deductible. They are personal expenses. The majority of labor organizations provide money through benefits, insurance against lay-offs, pensions and health, accident and disability insurance. In such cases part of your union dues are in the nature of premiums for insurance rather than membership dues in an organization which it is necessary for you to join in the earning of your living. Unless, therefore, you can apportion the amount of your dues paid on account of membership and the amount applied to insurance and personal benefits, no part is deductible.

Delicatessen—Because of violation of the Agricultural law I was obliged to pay certain penalties to the State. Is this amount deductible in my return? Answer—No. Amounts paid by way of penalties are "not ordinary or necessary business expenses" under the New York Income Tax law and are therefore not deductible.

Bachelor—In my 1919 return as a resident you disallowed $200 which I contributed to Princeton University. An informant volunteers the statement that my 1920 donation to my alma mater is now deductible under the State law. Answer—Yes. Residents are permitted to deduct as contributions to educational, charitable, religious or scientific societies or organizations an amount not exceeding 15 per cent. of their net income, regardless of the location of the association or institution.

Harvard—Are either my club dues deductible or the Federal tax on them? Answer—Your club dues are personal expenses and not deductible, but you may deduct the tax on such dues imposed by the Federal Government.

Argonne—Although I am working I am receiving a disability pension from the Government and cannot find any one who can tell me if these payments are taxed by the State. Answer—No. Pensions received from the United States Government are not taxable.

Nephew—By the death of an uncle in 1919 I was devised his interest in a brewery. This property was sold in an action in partition in 1920 and I would like to know how to estimate my income from this share. Answer—As the title of this property passed to you prior to Jan. 1, 1919, you should take its value of that date and then compute as your profit or loss your proportionate share of the difference between that amount and the price realized at the sale in 1920.
